NAZI'S REIGN OF TERROR BEING SLOWLY THROTTLED IN AUSTRIA

1500 ACRES BURNED; TWO SCORE HURT

Fresh Recruits Sent Out This Morning To Relieve Tired Fighters

BACKFIRE IS STARTED

Flames Within Mile And One Half Of Mt. Lowe Today At Noon Hour

PASADENA, Cal., July 27.—(UP)—Fresh recruits were rushed into the Sierra Madre mountains today to replace a wearied army of fire-fighters, battling a mile-long brush fire that was racing steadily towards populated Mt. Lowe.

Approximately two-score fire-fighters were burned, several seriously. Homes were evacuated in the upper Arroyo Seco, Pasadena's valuable watershed, but authorities hoped to save the residences. More than 1000 acres were denuded.

Sheriff office observers returned from the scene and reported the fire was "running wild."

Rangers, recalling the disastrous Griffith park holocaust of last fall in which more than a score of men were burned to death, kept a close vigil over the fire-fighters to prevent them from being similarly trapped by the flames.

In spite of their vigilance, five men were burned seriously when they were forced to leap through the fire to escape death.

Homes Threatened

The forest rangers said that the world famous scenic railway ascending Mt. Lowe was not immediately in danger, but that the fire might easily veer directly toward the line and the Mt. Lowe Tavern. Scores of private homes are perched on the side of the mountain.

More than 1200 additional CCC workers from camps in nearby counties were mobilized during the night and hurried to the scene of the conflagration.

The fire was termed the most serious blaze in the district since 1889 by William V. Mendenhall, Angeles forest supervisor.

By 8 a. m. the fire had spread over an additional 500 acres of watershed. Four more men were added to the injured list, with scores of fire fighters reported lying exhausted beside mountain trails.

Nearing Mt. Lowe

The fire at noon was within a mile and a half of Mt. Lowe, occupied by many summer homes, the Pacific and Electric scenic railway and a large resort tavern.

Forest service officials believed that the mountain would be encompassed unless the fire is controlled by nightfall.

The east fire of the blaze extended between San Gabriel peak

JURY DISAGREES IN L. A. MORALS TRIAL

LOS ANGELES, July 27.—(UP)—Retrial of Dave Allen, casting bureau manager, and Gloria Marsh, film extra, on charges of participating in an immoral Hollywood orgy was tentatively set for August 20 today after the first trial had ended with the jury hopelessly deadlocked.

The panel, which had been deliberating since late Tuesday, was discharged at 10 o'clock last night; by Judge B. Rey Schauer.

Foreman W. F. Fox revealed that the jury stood eight to four for conviction throughout.

Allen and Miss Marsh were indicted last May 15 on morals charges following testimony of June De Long, an extra, that the defendants and she had participated in a wild Baccanalian orgy. Her testimony was substantiated by Mrs. Pearl Owings, a friend, who told the jury of eight men and four women that she had entered an apartment to find Allen on a bed with the two women, both of whom were nude.

CHIP GAMES IN SEAL BEACH AGAIN RAIDED; SEVEN JAILED

Defendants Are Held On $5000 Bail

Men Unable To Make Bonds On Charges Of Criminal Conspiracy

STRIKING the third time at Seal Beach gambling interests within three days, sheriff's and district attorney's officers made another raid last night on Ballard's Chip Parlor, but instead of charging the seven defendants with misdemeanor charges of gambling, as on the two previous occasions, booked them at the county jail under $5000 bond on charges of investigation of criminal conspiracy to evade the gambling laws, which is a felony.

Included in the seven arrests were Ballard Barron, 40, admitted owner of the chip parlor and Lee C. Benno, 41, drug store owner who acted as cashier and gave cash or merchandise for the chips won on the amusement house.

In addition to jailing the employes in the chip parlor, the officers dismantled the expensive equipment and brought it as evidence to the county jail. The large numbered wheel, electrical equipment and nearly 500 chips were confiscated.

The purpose of filing felony charges against the alleged gamblers was to make it possible to have the cases tried elsewhere than Seal Beach, it was announced. Juries in the beach town usually find defendants in such trials not guilty and sentiment is overwhelmingly in favor of the gambling interests, which practically control the city, according to reports.

Evidence of this trend was shown Wednesday afternoon when eight persons were arrested in Ballard's and then released without bail by Judge Fred Smith, and allowed to return and start up business again.

The defendants arrested last night were scheduled to be arraigned this afternoon before Judge Kenneth Morrison in justice court. At noon, none of the seven had posted bail. Samuel Lackman, attorney representing the chip game employes, tried unsuccessfully last night to persuade Morrison to reduce the bail.

The third raid preceded the hearing in superior court this afternoon, at which time the gambling interests were to attempt to obtain an injunction to restrain the sheriff and district attorney from interfering with their business. Judge George K. Scovel refused to issue the order yesterday and ordered the hearing held today at 2 p. m., at which time the officers were to show cause why they should not be served with the order.

The recent expose stories in The Register, coupled with the bold raids by the officers, have virtually closed up the gambling dens in the beach city. With the exception of Ballard's Chip parlor, the only place operating last night was Larry's Tango parlor, raided Tuesday night, but the patrons were not being charged for play-

GRIP OF HEAT WAVE BROKEN AS RAIN FALLS

Showers Reported In Many States; Death Toll Set At More Than 800

KANSAS CITY, Mo., July 27.—(UP)—As gradually as it had extended its grip over the entire Southwest, the great July drought was being broken today. Weather forecasts gave further hope of relief over a wide area. Heat fatalities were lessening rapidly.

Showers were predicted for many states that have been in the grip of the drought and an accompanying heat wave for 15 days. It was considered probable these showers may develop into heavy rainfalls.

Showers fell intermittently yesterday, last night and early today in several afflicted states, causing temperatures seldom out of the 100s, and never out of the high 90s, for the last two weeks to fall to the low 90s, and, in isolated instances, to the high 80s.

While showers aided suffering humanity considerably, they did little or nothing to lessen rapidly mounting losses of crops and livestock.

Stockmen still were forced to watch their cattle and hogs waste away, although Texas benefitted somewhat by rains accompanying the hurricane along the Gulf coast section.

Deaths had mounted to upward of 800 today, but were expected to diminish considerably from today on.

MISS CRUICKSHANK LOSES IN DOUBLES

SEABRIGHT, N. J., July 27.—(UP)—Helen Jacobs of Berkeley, Cal., and Elizabeth Ryan of California and London today captured the women's doubles bowl of the Seabright invitation tennis championships, defeating Josephine Cruickshank of Santa Ana and Mrs. Marjorie Gladman Van Ryan of Philadelphia, formerly of Los Angeles. Scores were 7-5, 6-3.

The match was well played, with Miss Ryan being the stand-out throughout. Most of the errors made by the victors were charged against Miss Jacobs. Mrs. Van Ryan was the strong member of the losers in the first set, while Miss Cruickshank played superbly in the second set. Miss Ryan's volleying at the net and her all-court tactics and experience swayed the victory to her side.

LATE NEWS FLASHES

WASHINGTON, July 27.—(UP)—Norman H. Davis, United States ambassador at large, who has returned from naval conversations in London, scoffed today at danger of war in Europe and said that social and political upheavals within national boundaries are much more to be feared.

LONDON, July 27.—(UP)—Co-operation with the Nazis in Austria is impossible, Chancellor Von Starhemberg was quoted as saying in a statement published today by the London Evening News.

VATICAN CITY, July 27.—(UP)—The pope snubbed Chancellor Adolf Hitler of Germany, today when he refused to extend papal patronage, or approval, of the German Arbeitsfront (labor front). The refusal was based on the "anti-Catholic attitude" of the labor front.

He Probably Will Fill Up His Church

ST. PETERSBURY, Fla., July 27.—A printer's error might have caused the newspaper much embarrassment if Rev. James A. McClure had not been the sort who sees the funny side of things.

As pastor of the First Presbyterian church, he sent to the paper the announcement that his sermon topic the following Sunday would be "The Secret of Power."

The typesetter hit the wrong letter, the proof reader failed to catch it—and so it was chronicled that Rev. Mr. McClure would preach about "The Secret of Poker."

EIGHT CRUSHED TO DEATH WHEN HIT BY TRAINS

Children Caught On Track While Returning From Day Of Swimming

SHELTON, Conn., July 27.—(UP)—Tragic details of how eight children were crushed to death by a freight locomotive were pieced together by authorities today while this entire factory city mourned the dead.

Bodies of the victims, most mutilated beyond recognition, were identified last night after a laborious process of elimination in which hundreds of hysterical mothers joined. Many fainted when the complete death list finally was announced.

The victims were: George Rumble, 15; Ruth, 12, and Charles Bierwith, 14; John, 12, and Joseph Gentile, 14; Stephen Ratkewich, 7; Joseph Dzwonzik, 14, and Carl Hoffman, 15.

The children, all of whom had been swimming in the Housatonic river, stopped on their way home to supper to play cards on a railroad embankment. They were sitting on the westbound track.

A freight train came roaring down the eastbound track. As it neared them, a westbound freight flashed around a curve 50 feet away. The sound of the eastbound train, which the children saw, drowned the noise of the one bearing down upon them.

Brush Fire Burns 1000 Acres Today In Devil's Canyon

Brush fire which broke out at 10:20 o'clock yesterday morning in Devil's canyon, three miles north of Santa Margarita peak, had denuded 1000 acres at 6 o'clock this morning, and was still blazing this afternoon, out of control.

Three hundred CCC workers and 50 forest and state workers were battling the blaze this afternoon. The country is extremely rough and dry.

TROOPS STILL IN CONTROL AT MINNEAPOLIS

Residents Of City Attend To Normal Business Under Martial Law

BULLETIN

MINNEAPOLIS, July 27.—(UP)—National guardsmen ruling Minneapolis during the paralyzing strike of truck drivers today seized two communist editors, James P. Cannon of the "The Militant" and Max Schactman of "The International."

MINNEAPOLIS, July 27.—(UP)—A half million Minneapolis residents went quietly and almost normally about their affairs today under martial law.

Soldiers with fixed bayonets forbade parking of automobiles in the business district and guarded milk, ice and grocery trucks. They streamed in and out of national guard headquarters almost within stone's throw of the spot where 50 men were shot in a riot early in the week.

Every vestige of the tension which gripped the city during 10 days of a strike of 6000 truck and taxicab drivers had disappeared.

While Adjut. Gen. Ellard A. Walsh, ruler by proclamation of Minneapolis, part of St. Paul and a large portion of Hennepin county, completed organization of the 3600 guardsmen, federal mediators made new efforts to end the strike.

Their first act was to reply to a letter in which employers rejected mediators' terms. The rejection brought proclamation of martial law.

Employers expressed dissatisfaction with virtually all aspects of the plan and charged the strike was fomented by communistic leaders who did not represent their employes.

Gov. Floyd B. Olson indicated that he would not retreat from a definite alignment with the cause of the union.

"I do not agree with you," he wrote to the employers, "that the plea for a living wage for a family man receiving only $12 a week is answered by claiming that man is a Communist."

Mediators proposed a slight wage increase and general election among drivers and inside workers of affected firms to select representatives for collective bargaining.

BERKELEY BANK IS ROBBED

BERKELEY, Cal., July 27.—(UP)—Two bandits armed with a sub-machine gun held up the staff of a Bank of America branch here today and escaped with approximately $1,800 in currency.

One bandit trained the machine gun on W. C. Keys, manager, and Ralph Thompson, teller, while his companion looted cash drawers. Keys and Thompson were the only persons in the bank when the robbers entered.

BARON FRANZ VON PAPEN IS NAMED SPECIAL MINISTER TO AUSTRIA BY ADOLF HITLER

(Copyright, 1934, by United Press)

BERLIN, July 27.—(UP)—Chancellor Adolf Hitler, aware of the hostile gaze of suspicious nations surrounding Germany, took extraordinary measures to placate Europe and rewin the friendship of Austria.

Hitler named Baron Franz von Papen, vice chancellor, special minister to Austria for the duration of the political crisis, in a letter which eulogized him and condemned the Austrian Nazi revolt.

Theo Habicht, German leader of Austrian Nazi legionnaires, whom Germany had given shelter, was dismissed ignominiously.

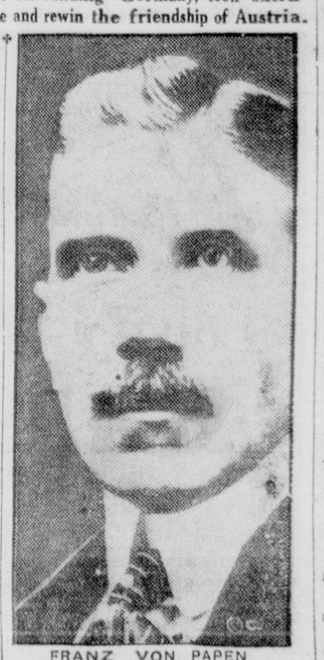

Alfred Frauenfeld, Legion commandant, was forbidden to make a a radio speech he had planned and announced publicly.

These events, following summary recall of Kurt Rieth, German minister to Austria, were a plain token of Hitler's alarm.

His letter to von Papen, naming him minister in Rieth's place, was eloquent of his concern. It follows:

"In the course of events in Austria I was compelled to suggest to President (Paul) von Hindenburg recall of the German minister to Austria from his post because, upon the request of an Austrian cabinet minister and Austrian insurgents, Dr. Kieth (the minister) without asking the government, consented to an agreement reached between the two parties mentioned concerning free conduct for

LONGSHOREMEN REFUSE TO GO BACK TO WORK

Decline To Return To Jobs Until Other Maritime Strikes Adjusted

SAN FRANCISCO, July 27.—(UP)—Faced with the refusal of longshoremen to return to work until other maritime strikes on the Pacific coast are adjusted, federal mediators today began a poll among striking seaworkers to determine their representatives for collective bargaining.

The ballot sent seamen, mates, pilots, deck hands, cooks and other maritime workers asked but one question. It read:

"By what person, persons or organizations do you wish to be represented for the purpose of collective bargaining with your employers?"

Shipowners have refused to recognize the A. F. of L. unions to which many of the strikers belong as truly representative of their employes. A move to have the present unions specified on the ballots failed.

While the poll was being taken, the President's national longshoremen's board renewed its efforts to persuade the longshoremen to return to work Monday. They have agreed to settle their differences with their employers by arbitration.

If the longshoremen insist on remaining out until seamen return to work, the maritime strike may last for weeks, board members admitted. The mediators

PROMISES REVENGE IN BANDIT'S DEATH

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., July 27.—(UP)—A note pledging revenge for the death of John Dillinger found in the slain outlaw's grave in Crown Hill cemetery added a new detail to the already complicated investigations that followed the federal ambush in Chicago.

The note was believed directed to the "woman in red" whose tip enabled federal agents to kill the desperado. It read:

"I am going to get her. John. So long, old boy. "J. H."

The initials are those of John Hamilton, lieutenant of the Dillinger gang.

PEARL HARBOR IS INSPECTED BY PRESIDENT

Chief Executive To Leave This Evening On Return To United States

HONOLULU, T. H., July 27.—(UP)—Turning today to his first love—the navy—tfer the most impressive military review he has seen since the World war President Roosevelt set aside his second day in Honolulu for a visit to the Pearl Harbor naval base.

In completing the picture of the defenses Uncle Sam has erected to perfect his mid-Pacific possessions, the president planned a thorough inspection of the strongly fortified area and of the armament centered there.

After lunching with Rear Admiral Harry Yarnell at the base, Mr. Roosevelt will collect the countless souvenirs of his memorable reception to the Hawaiian capital and turn toward the U. S. S. Houston, which will carry him back to the United States.

The president climaxed the busiest day of his vacation cruise yesterday with a 90-mile swing around the island of Oahu, on which Honolulu is located. The tour

DEATH TOLL GROWS WITH LATE REPORT

Guerilla Warfare Reported In Many Sections Today But Revolt Dying Out

PREPARE FOR FUNERAL

BULLETIN

VIENNA, July 27. — (UP) — Prince Von Starhemberg's Fascist regime slowly throttled Nazi terrorists today in desperate fighting over most of southern Austria. Loss of life was heavy.

A special military court set up by the regime will begin to function Monday and then the hangings will start.

The Nazi insurgents resisted stubbornly the army, heimwehr (home guard) and volunteer forces sent against them. Hand grenades, rifles and machine guns were used generally. The government forces also resorted to light artillery.

Casualties were estimated by the United Press at 165 to 185 dead and 250 wounded.

The fighting centered in the provinces of Styria and Carinthia, the later lying along the Italian border, across which Premier Benito Mussolini's troops are stationed.

Latest advices from Carinthia indicated the situation might be serious, despite the government's assurances that it was in control. As fast as the Nazis were driven from one town or village, they would move into another.

Nazis In Control

Word from the town of Wolfberg, on the main railway line in upper Carinthia, said it was occupied by Nazis at noon. They made a stand against the gendarmes. All communications were cut. Trains through Carinthia were rerouted.

Fighting was reported to have broken out this afternoon in Lueg Pass, province of Salzburg, which extendsd on the north of Carinthia down to the Italian Alps.

The Vienna military courts, under the emergency law of July 18, sentenced two Nazis, Leopold Mitterucher and Oskar Ertel, to five years at hard labor today, and another Otto Kuhr, to six years on a charge of dynamiting.

Three others were bound over to the ordinary courts. (The July 18 courts are distinct from the special military tribunal decreed by the cabinet yesterday for trial of the Nazis who assassinated Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss.)

The government was firmly in control but fighting with the Nazis was savage.

ITALIAN TROOPS, ARTILLERY MOVE INTO POSITION ALONG AUSTRIA'S FRONTIER TODAY

UDINE, Italy, July 27.—(UP)—The newly-motorized Italian army moved with swift precision into position along the Austrian frontier today—Premier Benito Mussolini's warning that Austria must be kept independent.

It was the swiftest movement of troops into fighting position in Italian history.

The first mechanized division of 8000 men in tanks and armored cars advanced with motorized light and heavy artillery of types and shapes hitherto not seen in combat anywhere.

Trucks and tractors with four, six or eight wheels; minature tanks operated by one soldier; removable, bulky armored structures on replaceable chassis moved like huge beetles along the border roads from Montecroce and Tarvis.

While the motorized divisions occupied the main road between Udine and Tarvis, other units, including the picturesque Bersagleris, flowing clusters of feathers in the helmets, were proceeding by motorcycle along the roads toward Montecroc.

Piedmontese lancers, with war helmets, galloped along the highways to strategic points, and were stationed at intervals along the Montecroce road.

Mussolini's sudden command was obeyed like clockwork. The only preparation for movement necessary was the loading of provisions, rations and ammunition on the army lorries.

Every unit called into action and assigned to the Austrian border patrol was ready for service immediately. The divisions had, in fact, conducted summer maneuvers in the border territory, and were familiar with their posts.

Within 60 minutes of the time their first orders came from Rome by telephone, some of the detachments were on their way to the designated destinations.

ing and the entertainment "was on the house."

Five deputy sheriffs walked into Ballard's about 9 o'clock last night and began playing the chip game. The employes recognized the deputies at once but thought the arrests would be merely another misdemeanor gambling charge, it was said. They were considerably astonished to find that felony charges were being preferred. This was said to be especially true of Barron, who at first admitted he owned the establishment but then attempted to deny his connection when he learned the true natur of the charges.

Of the other five men arrested, William Conner, Charles Coleman, 28, Joseph Smith, 33, and Frank Pieper, 51, were all included in the two previous raids on Ballard's, while Ogle Pieper, 23, was in the first and last.

Section 182 of the penal sode, which refers to conspiracy, reads as follows: "If two or more persons attempt to cheat and defraud any person of any property, by any means, which are in themselves criminal, they shall be guilty of criminal conspiracy."

The prosecution is expected to attempt to prove that gambling is a criminal offense and therefore the operators of the chip games and tango parlors are guilty of conspiracy.

Conviction on the charge would carry a sentence of two years in jail, a $5000 fine, or both.

JAILED FOR THEFT

Mack Orparham, 34, Newport Beach, was booked at the county jail last night to start serving a 60-day sentence for petty theft from Newport Beach.

WILL ROGERS says:

ABOARD S. S. MALOLO, July 27.—(To the Editor of The Register:) Poor old Austria, if ever a nation needed to move out and settle among different neighbors its her. They divided her up so much after the last war till there was nothing left, but this little game fighting cock Dollfuss now they got him. There was a fellow that looked like he was doing a heroic job of trying to hold the few strands together of what had been a great nation now its a fresh piece of meat to be thrown to the neighboring wolves.

Yours,
WILL ROGERS.

and Brown mountain, an uninhabited area, and stretched a mile west to the Arroyo Seco, where it burned within a few feet of the bottom of the canyon. Fire-fighters here had the situation fairly well in hand.

A backfire was started in the hope that, aided by a favorable wind, it would veer the flames away from Mt. Lowe.

The casualties were inflicted during the night when more than 600 fire fighters, many mustered from adjacent CCC camps, toiled to stem the blaze. Six of the men were severely burned and one, Douglas Warner of Pasadena suffered critical burns. He was taken to Pasadena hospital.

A CCC worker was trapped with two companions in a 15-ft wall of flame. All three were burned in forcing their way through the fire.

The fire, according to William V. Mendenhall, supervisor of the Angelus forest, is the most serious in the district since 1889. Low humidity, high temperatures and excessive aridity of the brush-covered hills combined to make the situation extremely grave.

A boiling sun, sending the temperature above the century-mark, harried the fire-fighters.

the insurgents and their right to come to Germany.

"Thereby Rieth, without reason, dragged the Reich into the internal affairs of Austria.

"The assassination of the Austrian chancellor, which the Reich government condemns and deplores in the strongest terms though it is without responsibility, has further aggravated the already unstable European political situation.

"It is my wish if possible to help to improve the general situation and especially to see the long troubled relations between the German and Austrian nations revert to normal friendly channels.

"I beg of you to undertake this important task, especially since during our cooperation in the cabinet you have enjoyed, and you still enjoy, my fullest, unlimited confidence.

"Therefore, I have suggested to President von Hindenburg that you ersign from the cabinet and as SAAR commissioner and be appointed for a limited period, and for a special mission, as German minister to Vienna.

"In this position you will be under my direct supervision.

"Permit me to thank you again for everything you once did in bringing together the government in the national uprising and also for what you have done since then, with us, for Germany.

"Hitler."

NAZI'S REIGN OF TERROR IN AUSTRIA DIES

A government spokesman announced:

Makes Statement

"It is a question of only a few hours before the government will control all Austria. The fighting now is confined to skirmishing in the open fields in Carinthia. The Nazis have lost their heads."

A careful United Press survey of the country showed there had been fighting in 24 towns, in scattered villages and, for a short time in the Vienna suburbs.

As careful an estimate as was possible in the circumstances, showed a death list of 150, with more scattered deaths likely.

The government talked peace but was prepared for extensive fighting.

Its strategy was to supress all uprisings, to pacify the larger towns first, and to leave its forces so distributed that there would be no more fighting in a town once cleaned up.

Guerilla Fighting

The situation could not be called one of civil war. It was guerilla fighting.

News that Nazi Germany had repudiated Austrian Nazism and made efforts to clear itself of complicity in the Wednesday putsch, was calculated to discourage Austrian Nazis fighting in the provinces—Styria and Carinthia in the south.

Baron Franz von Papen, new German minister to Austria, is a close friend of several leaders in the Fascist heimwehr. Theo Habicht, German leader of the Austrian Nazi legionnaires, dismissed last night by Chancellor Adolf Hitler, had been regarded as the chief enemy of Austria in Germany.

There was some hope von Papen and Printe Ernst von Starhemberg, acting chancellor and Heimwehr leader, would work out a basis of friendship—which Starhemberg has long sought.

Dollfuss lay in state in the great town hall, the Rathaus. He will be buried at 2:30 p. m. tomorrow.

His body will be blessed at the town hall. President Wilhelm Miklas, Starhemburg, Mayor Max Schmitz and others will deliver eulogies.

Dollfuss Funeral

Escorted by highest government officials and by soldiers, Heimwehr men and special police, the body will be taken to St. Stephen's cathedral. There—partly in token of Pope Pius' horror at the manner of Dollfuss' death—Cardinal Innitzer, archbishop of Austria, will conduct services.

The body then will be taken to Hietzing cemetery for temporary burial. Kurt Schuschnigg, acting chancellor until Vice Chancellor Starhemberg returned to Vienna, will pronounce the principal eulogy there.

Police smashed another attempted Nazi putsch at the Austrian chancellory today, officials of the Heimwehr reported.

The government offices, where Acting Chancellor von Starhemberg is exercising a strong control of the military situation, were heavily fortified against the projected attack.

Machine guns bristled from its windows and heavily armed cordons of troops were thrown around it.

Police spies reported that 100 or more Nazis, disguised in Heimwehr uniforms, entered the inner Vienna district this morning, and that they intended to seize the chancellery and hold the cabinet prisoners, in another desperate attempt to win control of the government.

Many arrests followed discovery of the plot. All police and military contingents guarding the chancellery became suddenly active.

Meanwhile it was reported without confirmation that the new military court set up to try the rebels already had begun to function, and that eight of the supposed ringleaders in the assassination plot against Chancellor Dollfuss had been brought before it.

The police at Hallein, near the Lueg pass, denied reports that Lueg was in the hands of the Nazis.

TROOPS STILL IN CONTROL AT MINNEAPOLIS

Union drivers accepted the plan by a vote of 1866 to 147, but employers would have none of it.

A modified form of press censorship was established by the governor's proclamation, newspapers being forbidden to publish anything "defaming the state of Minnesota, or any member of the national guard in the field." The newspapers of Minneapolis and Hennepin county also were ordered to publish the proclamation for two successive days.

JUDGE WHO FLAYED ATTORNEY ATTACKED

LOS ANGELES, July 27.—(UP)—Presiding Judge Frank C. Collier, who severely criticized the speed with which Eleanor Wilson McAdoo obtained a divorce from U. S. Senator William Gibbs McAdoo, found himself the target of a rebuke today from McAdoo's law partner, Attorney William H. Neblett.

Moving to strike the jurist's remarks from the record, Neblett claimed the statement constituted contempt of court and violated the state bar act by disclosing disciplinary proceedings before the state bar, pending or anticipated against an attorney. The statement was further criticized on the ground it had no bearing on the divorce which was granted less than an hour after the suit was filed.

took him past almost every public works and relief project on the island and finally to the Fort Schofield barracks, where 8000 troops passed before him in review.

The president stood bare-headed in a light rain to watch the great military demonstration.

Honolulu came forward with everything it had to make the president's visit eventful yesterday. He saw native dances on the beach. He watched Samoans do their sword dance in the Mormon temple. He joined in college yells at a Harvard alumni picnic and received a mortar board and cap as souvenir of the occasion. He ate native Hawaiian food and heard music Kanakas had chanted for hundreds of years.

After a reception at the home of Governor Jos. Poindexter, Mr. Roosevelt returned late last night to the coral-pink Royal Hawaiian hotel, where he studied news reports of the world-shaking developments in Austria before he retired. He had no comment to make on the world developments.

Meanwhile all ports on the Pacific coast resumed normal activities. Strikers made no attempt to interfere with strikebreakers. National guardsmen were withdrawn from the San Francisco waterfront. Mayor Angelo Rossi declared the state of emergency ended.

GUN CLUB TRIAL OPENS AT BEACH

Following the selection of a jury this morning, the trial of the Cassadero Gun club opened today in the Huntington Beach justice court before Judge Chris P. Pann.

The gun club is charged with a violation of the county ordinance relative to wasting water from pumping wells by putting the water in duck ponds at the gun clubs.

Attorneys spent yesterday questioning jurors but failed to complete the task before evening. Attorney L. A. West is representing the gun club, and District Attorney S. B. Kaufman and Deputy Leo Fritz the state.

CONSTRUCTION OF S. A. RIVER BRIDGE URGED

Extension of Ocean avenue from Flower street to North Main street, construction of a bridge across the Santa Ana river, and changing the name of the highway to Garden Grove boulevard was recommended yesterday by the Orange County Planning commission.

The recommendation goes to the board of supervisors and thence to the state highway commission for final action.

The resolution was presented to the commission by a committee of the Garden Grove Chamber of commerce, including H. C. Yokey, president; R. E. Johnson, secretary; J. C. Mitchell, E. J. Tobias, C. J. Clarke and L. W. Schauer.

Much inconvenience has been caused travelers by the lack of a bridge across the river, the road being closed during the winter when sand and water covered the roadway, making this route unusable, and by the abrupt ending of the street at Flower street a short distance north of Jack Fisher park.

Extension of the highway eastward to Main street, and construction of a suitable bridge across the river, it is felt, will prove of great value to the city and the motoring public. The work is proposed to be undertaken by the state highway commission.

A proposition for changing the name of West street and a part of Pearl street in Garden Grove to Oak street was referred to the street naming committee.

County Engineer Nat Neff reported for the budget committee that $1200 had been added to the proposed budget for 1934-35 for the purpose of supervision and materials to be used in making land use survey with SERA men. He also stated that request for 30 men to be furnished by the SERA had been given approval.

Consultant Tilton brought out further details of the proposed district and zoning ordinance, and asked the commission to decide as to the matter of architectural control and designing of buildings. It was decided to call upon the county architects' association for a committee from that body to meet with the planning commission at the next regular meeting in this connection.

Present at the meeting were Commissioners Thomson, Macklin, Halsell, Hillyard, Neff, Markel, Consultant Tilton and Supervisor W. C. Jerome.

MRS. REMSBERG IS CALLED BY DEATH

Funeral services will be held Monday at 2 p. m. from the Church of the Messiah, with Smith and Tuthill in charge.

Mrs. Remsberg was born in England and came to this country in 1880. She came to Santa Ana in 1902.

"Swimming is one of the best all round exercises and a useful art to learn," Russick said. "Properly practiced swimming will give one a smooth rounded form. It will develop elasticity of the muscles and will correct faulty posture. Swimming establishes in one a high degree of self reliance and courage."

The hours for swimming will be: Morning 10 to 12; afternoon 1 to 5; evening, 7 to 9. Evenings will be reserved for adults.

Firemen answered a call to the home of W. W. Jones, 108 Hickory street, at 11:15 o'clock this morning, but a small fire in the basement was extinguished before their arrival. Jones had been cleaning the cellar steps and a pilot light of a water heater ignited the fumes and caused a small blaze.

FIND BODY OF UNIDENTIFIED MAN ON BEACH

Possibility that the body of an unidentified man found early today on the beach at Laguna Beach might be Fred C. Caoper, 7711 Canard street, Los Angeles, owner of the small sailboat "Snowbird," missing since yesterday from Newport harbor, was being checked today by Coroner Earl R. Abbey, who ordered an autopsy on the body to be performed at the Laguna Beach funeral home at 3 p. m. today.

Richard and William Rosameff, Rosemead boys, who have been vacationing at Laguna Beach found the body at 7:15 a. m. today at the end of Anita street. It was at the edge of the water, clad only in necktie, underwear and one sock. A blue coat, with a pin stripe, was found about 10 feet away. It bore the label of a Los Angeles tailor, L. Goldford and Son.

The man was about 50, five feet eight inches in height and about 130 pounds in weight, with brown hair and eyes, and a prominent Roman nose. There was an upper plate in the mouth and three lower teeth were missing.

The possibility that he had been aboard a capsized boat and had partially undressed, while trying to swim ashore, was considered in view of the report that the "Snowbird," a small sailboat with a green sail, had been missing since yesterday. Newport police had asked Laguna Beach authorities to keep a lookout for the boat.

GAINS RELEASE BY PAYING $35 FINE

Posting a fine of $35 with jailers, Charles McLaughlin, 26, 618 South Claudina street, was released from the county jail last evening after being committed at 10:20 a. m. from Placentia to serve 17 1-2 days for violation of the city handbill ordinance.

McLaughlin was booked by Chief Gus Barnes of Placentia, following pronouncement of sentence by Judge S. C. Harmony. The defendant was found guilty on Tuesday by a jury after it was alleged that he was distributing Communist literature in the city.

ARGUMENTS IN CASPARI CASE TO END TODAY

Closing arguments in the trial of A. M. Caspari, charged with conducting and maintaining a saloon at the Hof Brau cafe, were scheduled for the afternoon session today, following the conclusion of testimony at noon in the police court.

Over the strenuous protests of Defense Attorney Alex Nelson, City Attorney Clyde Downing succeeded in having A. F. Maendele, special investigator, relate details of his observations on other dates than that charged in the complaint, as part of the rebuttal testimony. At this time, Maendele told of conditions of drunkenness, disorderly conduct and the serving of liquor without food in violation of the state law.

The final witness for the state was Carl Edgar, beer distributor, who testified that he furnished beer for the Hof Brau, all of which was either four per cent, or 3.2 per cent, and above one-half of one per cent, the legal limit for non-intoxicating beverages.

Nelson questioned J. M. Hohan, Robert Stassin and Howard O'Neal concerning their instructions and duties as employes in the Hof Brau. They said they had instructions to serve food with beers and wines, and that meals were served from the kitchen. Caspari also took the stand and told of the weekly consumption of food, and also that the law was not being violated.

Both Maendele and J. N. Hernandez, another investigator, yesterday testified that they saw considerable drunkenness, disorderly conduct and many young people in the Hof Brau on various occasions. They said that intoxicated persons staggered from table to table, fell over the backs of chairs, and reeled on the dance floor.

Maendele said he saw one man pour out drinks from a flask and that food was not served when drinks were ordered and served.

Harry Holmes, special police officer employed in the cafe, said he worked Saturday nights, denied that beer was sold without food, and said there were only occasional disturbances or drunken patrons.

A. F. Granas, manager of the Coast Beverage company, was called by Downing to tell of the alcoholic content of Pisco punch, which was allegedly sold at the Hof Brau. The beverage by government label, contains more than one-half of one per cent of alcohol, he testified.

B. Z. McKINNEY
—for—
District Attorney

We take this opportunity to endorse B. Z McKinney as a candidate for the office of District Attorney of Orange County, feeling that we can perform thereby a service to the people by bringing before them his exceptional qualifications to serve them in the important task of Law enforcement.

We have the utmost regard for his ability, experience and integrity as a lawyer and citizen, eager as well as able to preserve respect for our laws. We are confident that the gambling interests, for example, would get short shrift were he in the District Attorney's office.

Both of us are former District Attorneys of this county, familiar with the problems of that office. We do not hesitate to say that B. Z. McKinney has both the determination and the capacity of giving Orange County that aggressive and clean-cut type of law enforcement which it particularly needs at the present time.

McKINNEY HITS DOUBLE INCOME FOR DEPUTIES

"One of the paramount issues in the campaign for the office of district attorney, aside from the issue of enforcing the gambling laws in this county, is the question of double incomes in the district attorney's office, and its relation to law enforcement," declared B. Z. McKinney, district attorney candidate, in a statement here today.

"I am convinced that one reason contributing to the freedom of gamblers to prey upon Orange county citizens, is the evil of private practice among deputy district attorneys.

"The voters should not permit their attention to be diverted from the gambling issue and this contributing cause, by efforts to raise a false issue of whatever description.

"The double income is wrong economically, but its greater wrong to the general public is its weakening effect upon efficiency of the district attorney's office. Deputy district attorneys should not be permitted to occupy their time with their private cases. The taxpayers of this county pay them full-time salaries and have a right to expect full-time service in the prosecution of criminals."

BIDS SUBMITTED FOR PARKER DAM

That actual construction of Parker dam, important unit of the Colorado river aqueduct, may be under way within 30 days was indicated following the opening of bids Thursday on the building of this structure. Bids were opened at the Los Angeles office of the United States Reclamation bureau, under whose direction the dam is to be erected.

Six Companies, Inc., the construction firm which is now building Boulder dam for the federal government, submitted the lowest total bid for the day and the diversion tunnels which will bypass the waters of the Colorado river while the job is under way. Six Companies' bid totaled $4,239,-884, including $1,100,841 for the tunnels and $3,138,993 for the dam itself.

In addition to Six Companies three other firms submitted bids to the Reclamation bureau. Southwestern Contracting Group, Inc. bidding on both the dam and the tunnel, submitted a figure of $5,-496,072.10, including $1,283,017.50 for the tunnels and $4,213,055.60 for the dam. The West Construction company bid $887,910 for the tunnels alone, and S. S. Magoffin Company, Inc., submitted a figure of $948,177, also for the tunnels alone.

FIST FIGHT BETWEEN MAYOR OF SAN CLEMENTE, OLE HANSON ENLIVENS STATE PARK PICNIC

An impromptu fistic argument between Ole Hanson, founder of San Clemente, and Mayor A. T. Smith of that city, was an unheralded event on a program at the Spanish Village yesterday, during an outdoor picnic at the state park of visiting soldiers from March field.

The unexpected diversion came during a speech by Hanson in which he demanded that the State Park board obey the city ordinance requiring that all structures in the city be of the Spanish type of architecture.

The speech apparently excited the ire of Mayor A. T. Smith, who interrupted the speech and called Hanson an agitator and a Communist, finally forcing his way to the platform. Jumping on the table, he struck Hanson twice, pushing him off the platform.

Hanson took off his glasses and and struck the mayor twice in return, the force of his blows knocking the mayor into the crowd of soldiers and citizens, it was reported.

When the mayor retreated, Hanson resumed his speech and demanded that the law should be enforced against the powerful as well as the weak. A resolution was then passed by unanimous vote demanding the resignation of the mayor, it was said today.

Hanson said in part: "Law and order must be the rule. 'We have or should have, government of law and not of men. The law must be enforced against communist and patriot alike; against the little citizen who breaks the ordinances as well as the state of California. Right over there, the State Park board is allowing the construction of a frame shack in this beautiful State park. The ordinances of the city state plainly that only Spanish type white residences with tile roof can be built.

"The city mayor standing there has allowed this to proceed. If government wants laws obeyed, they must obey their own laws."

It was at this point that the scramble took place.

Hanson, after finishing his speech, sent a telegram demanding that Governor Merriam's Park board obey the city law as well as the humblest citizen.

In an interview Hanson said: "Mayor Smith simply lost his head. When one is in the wrong he loses his temper. He resented the fact that I told the assemblage that a light was burning in front of his house without him paying therefor, and also resented the fact that I desired to protect the city I built.

"When I hear from the governor, we shall know if the law applies to all or just a few."

Hanson, a guest at the picnic, was introduced to the crowd by Councilman Von Bon Horst. Hanson launched into an attack on the council and mayor for permitting construction of the CCC camp barracks in the state park, which he charged was in violation of city building regulations, and accusing city officials of not enforcing the law.

Summer Arrives; 94 This Morning

Yes, summer has arrived, but even at that, it isn't so hot.

At 11:30 o'clock today it was only 94 by the Knox and Stout thermometer. A year ago today it was 92.

It was rather warm yesterday, to be sure, with a high point of 99 being reached between 2:30 and 3:30 o'clock in the afternoon. But a similar temperature was recorded one day early in the spring, when a summer day arrived prematurely.

"HANDY ANDY" AT WEST COAST TODAY

Hailed as the greatest picture in which Will Rogers ever appeared, "Handy Andy," his latest film play, opens a week's engagement at the West Coast theater today.

Arrangements have been made by Manager Lester J. Fountain to run matinees every day starting at 2 p. m. and continuous shows will be screened Sunday. These arrangements were made to assure everyone a chance to see the picture, Fountain said.

After deserting his drug store business under protest and at the goading of his wife, Peggy Wood, who wants him to play, Rogers starts playing with a vengeance. His playing results in what are said to be the funniest scenes the noted comedian ever appeared in.

Selected short subjects which show with "Handy Andy" include a new cartoon, "The Toy Shoppe," a sport reel, "The Fox Hunt," a screen song, "Love Thy Neighbor," a musical novelty with Abe Lyman and his famous band in "Tin Hat Harmony," and World News events.

5000 COPIES OF BOOKLET ORDERED

The booklet "I, Assemblyman from Orange County, and How I Supported Upton Sinclair," written by Thomas E. Pickerill, Santa Ana attorney and writer, is having a wide circulation throughout the state, according to word received today from the local EPIC headquarters.

Yesterday Pickerill received from the Sinclair headquarters at Redlands an order for 5000 copies of the work, to be distributed free to the homes in the cities of Redlands and Colton, in conjunction with the assembly campaign from that district.

The author of the booklet is not a candidate for the assembly, but prepared the imaginary story of the campaign for the state legislature to constitute what he terms "a companion story to Upton Sinclair's 'I, Governor of California.'" The work contains an endorsement from Sinclair and has been approved by the state campaign committee. Locally the booklet is being used in the EPIC movement in the interest of the candidacy for Herbert F. Kenny for state assembly.

The principal subject will be the Roosevelt recovery program's progress and accomplishments to date, it was said, with James L. Davis of Santa Ana, Democratic candidate for congress, as one of the principal speakers. Preceding the rally, a group of local Democrats will hold a dinner at the Golden Bear cafe at 6:30.

WILKIE DECLARES EFFICIENCY NEEDED

Attacking political influences in law enforcement agencies and policies seeking to perpetuate office holders in office rather than impartial enforcement of laws, Capt. Don Wilkie, former U. S. Secret Service agent and candidate for sheriff, addressed meetings of the Fullerton Round Table and the Anaheim Lions club today.

The voters today are demanding efficiency on the part of law enforcement officials, and are voting on qualifications for the job rather than on glad-handing propensities, the speaker said.

He charged that many officers, fearing to enforce the law because it would mean a loss of votes, sit idly by until the public becomes aroused and private individuals make complaints to enforce action, whereas it is the clear duty of such officials not only to investigate, but to take the lead in bringing complaints and enforcing the law.

Motives For Attacks Upon The Register Exposed

REGISTER'S OPPOSITION TO COMMUNISM OFTEN MADE KNOWN THROUGH EDITORIALS

The position of The Register and its publisher in respect to Communism, or any other "ism" that would employ force and violence, or would attempt to undermine law or society, is too well known to be affected by untruths and misrepresentations in Orange county.

For many years the publisher of The Register has not only spoken openly and frankly upon all economic questions, but his views have been presented upon almost every phase of these questions.

REGISTER'S OPPOSITION

We have given expression to our views primarily through our editorial columns. Neither friend nor foe has ever accused us of either indecision or ambiguity or equivocation. The volumes of these editorials are here in our office. The files of The Register are here under our roof.

And we challenge any man to find one solitary word that by any mental gymnastics could be even remotely twisted into a claim that we stand for any man or group that would achieve its ends by force or violence or the overthrow of government.

We have written upon this very question many times, and we are herewith printing a recent editorial published in our paper of Saturday, April 28th, of this year.

Read it and then ask any of these men, who are trying to slander our institution and break down the influence of The Register and what it is standing for, to produce any utterance The Register publisher has made, or any word that has ever been printed by him that is contrary to this editorial:

THE ABSURDITY OF THE COMMUNISTS' REASONING

If there were real ground for fear, because of Communism, the way to meet it would be to show the false basis of the Communist political organization, as well as to show a better way to meet the difficulties of our social life, which gives the Communist his opportunity to challenge anyone.

We note that there are those who claim that their object in life is to fight the "red radicals," as they call them. But chiefly they fight them by denunciation and not by argument. Denunciation convinces no one. It may arouse passion, but it leaves intelligence cold.

We have just been looking through a pamphlet that is published by the "Workers Library Publishers." It is being distributed, we understand, by actual members of the Communist party. There are many things of interest in it. In a chapter headed "Building the Party," we have found some striking statements. This is one of its sentences:

"While preparing for ILLEGALITY, the party must at the same time struggle against every attack upon its LEGAL rights through the development of mass struggles."

Take that sentence—and its content. The party acknowledges that it proposes to defy law and accomplish its purpose by other methods than legal ones. In other words, it is an organization of force. It does not propose to appeal to the intellect, to the reason or the judgment. It proposes to compel by strong power. It acknowledges this and then says: "While preparing for that we must defend ourselves against every attack upon our LEGAL rights."

This show the hypocritical and the pernicious character of its program. It would use, for the protection of its individual members, the very institutions which it would destroy in endeavoring to accomplish its purpose. It fails to recognize that all problems really are of the mind, and if the mind of the people is wrong, and is not changed, the problem remains unsolved. They depend upon force. Force is war. War never settled any question. It cannot settle questions, in the very nature of them.

You may, by force, prevent a man or an animal from doing certain bad things. But as long as he wants to do them, the problem is still there. The man can have the facts so presented that he doesn't want to do them, because he has the power of reason. The animal cannot. More than that, one can never even achieve what he is after by force, unless he has the major portion and the greater power, which means the majority, or at least the control of the means of force. In our country, this is only possible through majority action. And when one gets the majority, he can gain his ends without force. There is no basis upon which the program of the Communists, in this respect, can be defended.

This is what forces it into such foolish, inconsistent statements as we have just quoted. Let us paraphrase their statement: "While preparing for the time when we can accomplish our ends by force, we must protect ourselves from an attack by force, through the appeal to the law." In spite of this, we believe that even they should be protected by law in all the rights that any individual should have under our constitution and law. This is not for their good, however, but for ours. For if we should permit any man to be denied the protection which the law affords, we cannot insure the protection of the law to the rest of us.

The only way those of us, who believe that the only method to achieve ends is through legal and constitutional methods, can be assured of the protection of the law, which we desire, is to be sure that its mantle of protection is thrown upon every other individual. This is the only insurance we have of protection of property, person and life.

We should be interested to know on what theory of equity or ethics the Communist, in this sentence, asks the protection of the very institutions which it is his purpose to destroy.

IZ ZAT SO?

By STRIPPED BARE
(Not Bugs Nor Max)

PLACENTIA, July 27.—(Delayed Dispatch)—Your correspondent is a little late with his report of the great Communist trial. He got hysterics, too, and has been a little slower than the others in recovering. Please excuse it, and we won't let it happen again.

Anyway, probably nothing like that ever will happen again. Don't talk to us about Laurel and Hardy; nor Amos and Andy, for that matter. Tom and Soppy have 'em all tied to a stake.

There was a big crowd on hand. Some orange growers, and a lot of chamber of commerce boosters, which seemed strange to us, as this was police court, not the treasurer's office. Somebody told us they were getting ready for the banquet. "Gosh," we muttered, looking at the Communist, "They aren't going to eat him, are they?"

We knew they expected Tom to tear him to peices, but he scarcely looked edible, even shredded, and with sugar and cream on him. "Oh, well," said our informant, "you have to be prepared to eat anything at a chamber of commerce dinner. These boys are used to it."

• • •

"Who's them fellers along the back of the room?" we asked him, pointing to a row of large, puffy chaps, with big jaws and small eyes. "Oh, them. Them's Tom's crowd. They got scads of cash," he added enviously. "What they doing here?" we wanted to know. "Oh," he replied, "they came to meet Sloppy."

"It's Soppy, not Sloppy," we corrected him.

Meanwhile, Tom and Soppy were talking earnestly, and it looked like they might be mapping out the prosecution of the case, so your correspondent edged closer to get maybe a few tips on what was coming.

But they saw us, and dropped their voices. So we sat looking around, and things were pretty dull, and finally, doggone it, we fell asleep.

Well, that was that. We missed all the trial. So we haven't any report of it to send you. The only thing we've got is our dream, and since we've got to send you something, we might as well send you the dream. Here is what we dreamed Tom and Soppy said to each other:

"Thanks, Tom, for getting me this chance to make a speech and do some flag waving," Soppy was saying. "Things are getting pretty hot for me, and this may help. You've done a swell job of getting attention away from the gambling business by doing a lot of yelling about Reds, so it may be that the voters can be foozled yet. I'm much obliged."

• • •

"Boy, I owe you something, any-

To The Voters Of Orange County

An attorney of Anaheim, who is also employed by the city of Placentia, has made a Roman holiday of a misdemeanor committed by a misguided youth, who claims he is a Communist. He staged the affair really as a political proposition, in order to give his friend and comrade, the district attorney, an opportunity to make a speech and to misrepresent the attitude of the Santa Ana Register.

Mr. McFadden, the attorney in question, and the district attorney knew full well, as lawyers, that the attempt to make The Register "Communistic" was utterly silly and absurd. They knew full well that The Register and its publisher are opposed to force and violence and the overthrow of government, but they were grasping at straws and trying to make an issue against the paper and its editor. Why?

It was because of what The Register stands for as a publication in Orange county, and what those interests stand for, that this attorney has been representing in Orange county. The Register has been taking an open, frank position against law violations, particularly against public gambling, against bootlegging, and, incidentally, it has been against any special privilege being granted by politicians to the influential, at the sacrifice of the general good.

MR. McFADDEN, WHO STAGED THIS SHOW ON BEHALF OF HIS FRIEND, "SOPPY" KAUFMAN, HAS BEEN REPEATEDLY THE LEGAL REPRESENTATIVE AND ATTORNEY FOR THE ELEMENTS IN THIS COUNTY THAT THE REGISTER HAS HAD TO FIGHT, AND HE AND THOSE WHO HIRE HIM FOR THESE PURPOSES, HAVE RECOGNIZED THAT IF THEY COULD BREAK DOWN THE INFLUENCE AND POWER OF THE REGISTER, THEY COULD "GET AWAY" WITH THEIR MACHINATIONS UNVEXED AND UNTROUBLED BY AN AROUSED PUBLIC OPINION.

WHAT McFADDEN REPRESENTS

Mr. McFadden has been repeatedly the attorney for bootleggers.

He has been the attorney for the gambling interests.

He was the attorney for the gambling devices in Orange county, and actually obtained an injunction against the sheriff to prevent him from performing his duty in rooting out the slot machines.

When it was found that a moral pervert had been abusing little girls in Santa Ana, so that the motherhood of this city was aroused, as it has not been on any other proposition for 10 years, it was this same attorney who appeared on his behalf, using every device known to the law to protect and defend him.

We do not say that no attorney in Santa Ana would have taken this case; we do not say there is no other attorney who would take it in Orange county, but we do say that the attorney, who has been the main legal stay of the bootleggers, the gamblers and who tied up the sheriff from carrying on his work as sheriff, as far as the gamblers were concerned, was the attorney who was called upon and accepted the job.

Nor was this case of the pervert an isolated instance of its kind. Some time earlier a man charged with molesting a little school girl at Westminster had been before the court. His defender was this same Mr. McFadden. Not content with the court defense, he brought suit for damages against the sheriff, claiming false arrest, the sort of maneuver that tends to break down and intimidate law enforcement.

"PROTECTION" IS OBJECTIVE

He is an attorney in Anaheim. It was in Anaheim where practically open gambling and an indecent show were put on without let or hindrance, and when The Register was "tipped off" by the man who was on the inside, The Register was told that high county authorities had pledged protection for that gambling and indecent party.

AN AROUSED ELECTORATE IN ORANGE COUNTY IS DEMANDING BETTER THINGS. THE REGISTER HAS BEEN UNCOVERING THIS FLAGRANT AND CHALLENGING AND IMPUDENT VIOLATION OF OUR GAMBLING ACT AND THE WHOLE MISERABLE FRATERNITY, WHICH IS TRYING TO GET ITS INCOME FROM THE HONEST LABOR OF THE PEOPLE, IS AROUSED AND ANGRY AT THE REGISTER FOR THESE EXPOSURES AND FOR ITS OPPOSITION.

They see the day approaching when the electorate will place in the office of the district attorney, a man who is more honest in determination to make Orange county law-abiding and to protect the county from these ravaging wolves, who are no better in the manner, in which they get their money, than common thieves.

DISTRICT ATTORNEY HIS PAL

So here was the opportunity to make the combination. Here was the opportunity for this "special pleader" for this group to do some "hot" and "fast" work for his faithful friend, the district attorney.

So this man who has succeeded in protecting his clients, possibly, beyond the powers of other attorneys to do it, stages a performance, brings in the district attorney, who is supposed to be on the other side in these controversies, who is supposed to be his opponent in these activities, and metaphorically putting his arms around him, placing his generous and expansive hand upon his shoulder, this man representing, as an attorney, this underworld element in Orange county, in this manner places upon the district attorney the stamp of his unqualified approval.

He declares: Here is a man who is four-square. In effect he says: This is the man whom I, the attorney for this group, want elected district attorney. This is the man who, when he is district attorney, and on the other side of the case, enables me to tie up the sheriff from doing his duty, through an injunction.

McFADDEN'S MESSAGE

NOTING MR. McFADDEN'S ACTIONS, HIS STAGING OF THE POLITICAL SHOW AT PLACENTIA, HIS INTRODUCTION AND ENDORSEMENT OF KAUFMAN, HIS TYPE OF CLIENTELE, AND THE INTERESTS HE HAS BEEN PAID TO PROTECT FROM THE LAW, THERE IS NO DIFFICULTY IN GETTING HIS MESSAGE TO THE PEOPLE OF ORANGE COUNTY AS CLEARLY AS IF HE HAD USED THESE IDENTICAL WORDS:

"THIS IS THE MAN (KAUFMAN) WHO IS SUPPOSED TO BE ELECTED TO DRIVE FROM THE HAUNTS OF DECENT SOCIETY THE VERY CLASS OF PEOPLE WHOM I AM DEFENDING.

"'THIS IS THE MAN WHOM I WOULD PREFER ABOVE ALL MEN TO HAVE ELECTED.

"I HAVE BEEN REASONABLY SUCCESSFUL WITH THIS MAN AS DISTRICT ATTORNEY.

"I MIGHT NOT BE ABLE TO GET AN INJUNCTION, TIEING UP THE SHERIFF FROM TAKING OVER GAMBLING DEVICES, IF MR. McKINNEY WERE DISTRICT ATTORNEY, SO I URGE YOU TO VOTE FOR MR. KAUFMAN, THE 'FOUR-SQUARE MAN,' THE 'FOUR' CONSISTING OF ME, MY CLIENTS, MR. KAUFMAN, AND AGAINST THE REGISTER.

"MR. KAUFMAN IS OPPOSED BY THE SANTA ANA REGISTER, THE INSTITUTION THAT IS FIGHTING THE TRAFFIC IN WHICH MY CLIENTS ARE ENGAGED. I WILL GRANT MR. McKINNEY IS A GOOD LAWYER, BUT HE IS IN FAVOR OF THE POSITION WHICH THE REGISTER TAKES UPON THIS QUESTION. VOTE FOR MR. KAUFMAN AND YOU WILL HAVE MY UNDYING THANKS AND GRATITUDE."

PROTECTING GAMBLER CLIENTS

We are not urging, understand, that Mr. McFadden shouldn't do what he is doing as an attorney. We are not claiming that he isn't looking after his clients' interest in his activity for the district attorney.

We are not claiming, for a moment, that his clients should complain at the manner in which he is endeavoring to get the district attorney back into office. We are just pointing out that as an attorney, representing those elements which are subversive to the public good, his leadership on behalf of his clients is naturally contrary to the good of those elements in society that realize that there is a terrible undermining and destructive force being carried on by those in whose interest Mr. McFadden makes his appeal. And what is for their interest is against the interest of the county.

The voters of this county cannot be fooled.

GAMBLERS FOR KAUFMAN

This is the issue in Orange county. All the men who are intelligent, concerning the political situation in this county, see instantly, in summing up what communities will be carred by Mr. Kaufman for district attorney, begin with Seal Beach and declare that he will get that without any question by a very large percentage, as it is the Monte Carlo of Orange county, and defying law with constancy, and has been for weeks.

They declare that he will probably carry Newport Beach, but not by as big a majority as he will Seal Beach. For there are more people in Newport Beach who realize that the gambling fraternity is robbing the people of money that should go to the merchants and to the landlords, and that people can only stay a day or two in frequent cases, because of this robbery, when they had money enough to begin with to spend a period.

They say he will carry Newport Beach, however, with the aid of this fraternity, by a vote of possibly 60 to 40.

They declare that this man McFadden's influence will probably bring a majority of the voters of Anaheim to him, with all that Mr McFadden represents. And elsewhere, wherever this group is sufficiently numerous, it is declared that votes will be "stacked up" that way.

MONEY FOR CANDIDATES

The whole racketeering element is happy and rejoices whenever the Register and its publishers are abused. There are newspapers which are expressing the abuse and hatred which that unsavory outfit feels. We know that that group is putting money into this campaign for candidates.

We do not say that they are hiring these newspapers to make these assaults. These newspapers and men interested, like Mr. McFadden, may be doing this for nothing and boarding themselves.

But verily, some way or other, they are receiving or expect their reward.

But let it be known that there are striking and marked exceptions to this attitude of sychophancy to these interests among the newspapers. The exception among the dailies is that of the Orange News.

You can examine for yourself and see your own weekly paper as to its attitude in abusing The Register, in proportion as The Register is exposing the combination of gambling and bootlegging in the county.

MR. KAUFMAN IS WELCOME TO THAT KIND OF SUPPORT THAT STAGED THAT SPECTACLE AS A POLITICAL STUNT OVER IN PLACENTIA. IF MR. McFADDEN HAD STOOD FOR EITHER MR. GUY OR MR. McKINNEY IN THIS CAMPAIGN, WE WOULD HAVE HAD SOME DOUBT IN SPITE OF THE FACT THAT THE REGISTER'S REPRESENTATIVES IN CONTACTING PROFESSIONAL GAMBERS AT SEAL BEACH AND ELSEWHERE, FOUND NONE OF THEM FOR GUY OR McKINNEY.

RESENT REGISTER'S INDEPENDENCE

There has been a constant effort to break down the influence of The Register before the people of Orange county. The politicians are desperately opposed to independence. They desire that a paper shall publish that which is agreed upon by a bunch of men who are trying to run the politics of the county and who are in league with the elements that are preying upon its citizens.

The desperation of this gambling, bootlegging, racketeering outfit to break down the influence of an independent journal in Orange county is now patent to everyone who is capable of reading.

AT DISTRICT ATTORNEY'S DOOR

The real liability for lax law enforcement, for permitting criminal conditions in any county lies right at the door of the district attorney. With a district attorney able, determined, devoted to the interest of the protection of his county, with a sheriff who is reasonably fair upon the question, he is bound to succeed.

WITH THE BEST-INTENTIONED SHERIFF IN THE WORLD, LAW VIOLATORS CANNOT BE BROUGHT TO BOOK, CONVICTED AND SENTENCED WITH AN INDIFFERENT AND PASSIVE DISTRICT ATTORNEY, SAYING NOTHING ABOUT ONE WHO IS DEPENDING FOR HIS ELECTION UPON THE VOTES OF THE VERY ONES WHOM HE SHOULD DRIVE, AS ENEMIES OF THE REPUBLIC, FROM THE HAUNTS OF HONEST MEN.

Recently we spent a few weeks in the east. When we returned, we were told on every hand about the licentious and flagrant manner in which the gamblers were carrying on at Seal Beach. We could not believe it possible that they had become so bold and impudent.

We sent representatives of the paper there and found it was as open as at Tia Juana or Monte Carlo.

By constantly turning on the searchlight and arousing the people to the desperate condition, the places were forced to close for a period. Why must conditions reach such a point as this?

WHY ENFORCEMENT FAILS

One of the reasons why the 18th amendment failed to the degree it did was because men in sympathy with the liquor traffic were selected to enforce the law. The man whom the law-abiding mothers and fathers, wives and husbands, can depend upon to sustain the reputation of this county, as one of the finest counties for home-seekers in this country, is the man whom the elements that are trying to break down the bulwarks of law and order in the county want defeated.

We heard one time of a man who had a large family and an extremely small income. They seemed to be getting along in a pretty fair way. His neighbors asked him finally how he did it. His reply was: "I find what each one of my children doesn't like, and then I give him all he can eat of it."

THE BEST DOSE THAT CAN BE GIVEN THOSE WHO WOULD UNDERMINE SOCIETY, DESTROY ITS INSTITUTIONS AND RUIN ITS WORTH IS TO FIND OUT WHAT IT IS THEY DON'T WANT, AND GIVE IT TO THEM IN LARGE AND COPIOUS QUANTITIES. THEIR CRY IS: "WE DON'T WANT McKINNEY." THE REMEDY IS PLAIN. GIVE THEM THE DOSE.

FACTS ON ARREST OF COMMUNIST FOR DISTRIBUTING LITERATURE IN CITY OF PLACENTIA OUTLINED

We have ignored, personally, the stories that have come out concerning the trial of this Communist for distributing literature in Placentia.

The publisher of The Register knew nothing of the episode until after it had taken place. The attorney for this man asked two men connected with The Register to sign the bond for this misdemeanor, and in each case it was signed without knowing who the man was, what he was charged with, or his political ideas. They signed this, as they have similar bonds before for the clients of this attorney, and as we would ourselves sign a bond by application by any reputable attorney for his client, for the amount of $50.00 for a misdemeanor.

FACTS ON ARREST

The attorney said that when he was called into the case, he had thought that the man had been distributing copies of The Register. The news dispatches emanating from Placentia said that he made some statement indicating that the man had worked for The Register. We do not know what was said.

We only know that this man, nor no other man of his ideas concerning force and violence and the overthrow of government, has ever worked for The Register or has ever done anything for The Register, except to make it more difficult for The Register and all others who believe in correcting the evils of society by democratic methods to do so.

The only thing that The Register has insisted on has been that those people who do recognize the evils of society, and are trying to aid the distressed and the unemployed, and who are trying to do it, such as President Roosevelt and our various philanthropic agencies, shall not be charged with being Communist simply because they are trying to help.

We further maintain that the dangers to our civilization and our system come infinitely more from the criminal class, who are finding it profitable to carry on their criminality and are able to employ attorneys to defend and protect them, and to have newspapers "smear" those who are fighting the law violator, than there is from an insignificant group of misguided and nondescript youth, who, penniless and helpless, are carrying on so foolishly as this man was in Placentia.

If the Communists ever get to the point where it is profitable for them to racketeer, when they are numerous enough to have votes, they will then find lawyers to protect them and newspapers to defend them.. We believe, however, that more can be gained by teaching even those people that America stands for law, it stands for order, it stands for equity, it stands for impartiality in the application of law.

POLICE SEEK MAN WHO HURT PHOTOGRAPHER

FULLERTON, July 27.—Police as yet have not found George Lister of Fullerton, against whom a newspaper photographer, Tommy Welles, has filed charges of assault and battery and damage to property.

The complaint grew out of an attempt on the part of Welles, photographer of Los Angeles, to take a picture of Mrs. Josephine Gray, as she came from Judge Halsey I. Spence's court Tuesday evening. She, along with Lister, had been defendants in a suit brought by her daughter, Miss Josephine Wright of Hollywood, on a charge of disposing of a dog belonging to Miss Wright. the jury granted the judgment and awarded her $275 damages.

As the photographer tried to get a picture of Mrs. Gray, Lister jumped on him, and according to the complaint, injured him and destroyed, in part, the camera. He will be arraigned when he is found, police said.

WOMAN RELEASED AS MAN CHARGED WITH OPERATING DISORDERLY ESTABLISHMENT

FULLERTON, July 27.——Mrs. F. C. Richter, charged with operating a disorderly house at Placentia, was found not guilty of the charge when it was determined late yesterday in court here that she was not proprietress of the business place in question.

Mrs. Richter of Corona was arrested by Chief of Police Gus Barnes after the officer had arrested one man in the Richter restaurant for cutting the throat of Manual Tafolla on July 1. The complaint issued was for arrest of F. C. Richter, and the defense attorney, Harry Westover of Santa Ana, brought evidence that Mrs Richter was not the proprietor of the restaurant, and that neither is she manager.

Near the close of the afternoon, after the defense was presented, the judge issued a warrant for the arrest of F. C. Richter, who had been shown to be proprietor, and for Lasaro Ayala, manager of the restaurant on West Santa Fe avenue, who were arraigned, and pleaded not guilty to the charge of running a "notorious, disreputable house, where rioutous and disorderly conduct takes place." The date for the jury trial was set for August 16 at 9 a. m., and bail was set at $100 each.

The state placed Gus Barnes, police officer, on the stand first, and he testified that on the particular night in question, July 1, from 30 to 40 people were in the restaurant, and that two-thirds were intoxicated. Tafolla was placed on the stand, and said he had merely entered the cafe to get his friend to take him home, and that the friend, who was drunk, had cut his throat to prevent it.

Barnes also testified that of the six such places on West Santa Fe avenue, the Richter place was noisiest.

On cross-examination, it was shown by Barnes that the order for arrest was not issued for Mrs. Richter alone ,but for Mr. and Mrs. Richter, and the defense showed that all licenses, and the license from the state for sales of liquors, was issued to Mr. Richter.

Many guests of the restaurant, and many "character" witnesses were presented to testify as to the character of the restaurant and of the proprietor, and that Richter and Ayala employed and discharged help, while Mrs. Richter merely carried out Richter's orders, while he was sick.

Ralph Pantuso, deputy officer, testified as to undue noise and said he had stopped fights and taken drunks home from the place.

Other testimony was presented by Joe Simon, who said the noise worried his mother, who lived near. The defense brought out that Simon owned buildings where liquors are sold, running in opposition with the Richter place.

ASKS ELECTION OF MAN WHO IS AGAINST WARS

Stating that "the peace of the world is menaced as certainly, tonight, as it was 20 years ago on the eve of the World war," Russell Stroup, candidate for Congress from the 19th district, speaking at a political rally last night in La Habra, called upon the voters to "cast their vote for peace."

Reminding those present that should the critical situation in Austria develop into a European conflict the decision as to whether or not America will become involved rests with the next Congress, Stroup stressed the necessity of sending to Congress men who understand the international situation and the measures which are necessary to insure the neutrality of the United States.

"It is amazing to me," he stated, "that in a world crisis charged with dynamite the candidates for Congress who ask for your support should appear to be blissfully unaware of anything beyond the confines of their own district. It seems incredible that I should be the only candidate who offers to the people a program which deals with the issue of war and peace so vital to every mother every wife, every man among us. Not even the question of economic recovery, important as it is, can compare with the necessity of preventing a war which would not only bring death and destruction in its wake, but would plunge us into a depression far worse than the one from which we are but now emerging."

Stroup went on to say that "while it is true that America is opposed to war and in favor of peace, this feeling of itself is not sufficient to save us from becoming involved in a world conflict We must take constructive steps at once to make war for us impossible." Stroup then presented a program of action which he claimed would do much to accomplish this end, and pledged himself to seek to secure its adoption by Congress if he should be elected.

"First," he said, "we must take the profit out of war by adopting as a part of our national defense act the American Legion proposal that the government draft money and industry as well as men in time of war." He stated that "this would make enthusiastic workers for peace out of the men who now are favoring war that they may reap again the profits which they secured in the last world tragedy."

The second proposal was that the government should own and operate all munition factories, thus ending "the diabolical threat of the munition makers, those merchants of death, who profit from the blood and tears of humanity."

Stroup's third proposition was that the government should prohibit all foreign nations from borrowing money in this country to finance their wars or preparation for wars. "No nation," according to the speaker, "could successfully wage a war of long duration without the financial assistance of this country, and we know from past experience that to allow nations to finance their wars in this country leads inevitably to our participation in the war which we have financed. Incidently it might be added that we have learned to our sorrow that war debts are never paid. Let us hope that we have profited from our lesson."

Finally, the speaker proposed that the government should declare an embargo on the shipment of war materials to all nations engaged in war. "The president has been given the power to do this, and it is up to Congress to see that it is done."

Stroup concluded this portion of his speech by stating that such a program as he had suggested would be "the best insurance that could be devised for preventing the participation of America in another war."

In the remaining portion of his address Stroup presented his program for dealing with the problem of unemployment and economic recovery. He stated that he was the only candidate who had pledged his support to the Townsend Old Age Pension plan and the proposals for a managed currency and socially controlled credit system.

PLAN WAGNERIAN CONCERT AT BOWL

LOS ANGELES, July 27.—Musical stars illuminating the skies of Hollywood Bowl next week are Sir Hamilton Harty conducting his final concerts, Nelson Eddy, baritone; stellar artists in Cavalleria Rusticana, two outstanding pianists and a brilliant young violinist.

Eddy, who has made a sensational rise to fame on the concert stage, over the radio and in talking pictures, will be the star of an All-Wagnerian program Thursday night, August 2. He will sing the ever popular song to the Evening Star from "Tannhauser" and the highly dramatic Wotan's farewell from the Valkyries.

For the opening program next week Sir Hamilton has selected another group of compositions indicating his rare ability as a program builder. Margaret Kuenne, gifted young violinist, is soloist on the Tuesday night program playing the Bruch Concerto in G minor.

Nathaniel Finston will conduct "Cavalleria Rusticana" Friday night, August 3, with Elsa Alsen, Richard Bonelli, Dr. Carl Omeron, Eleanor Woodforde and Jean Chown singing the principal roles. The Los Angeles Opera Chorus of 60 voices again will sing. William Tyroler trained the chorus.

Irma Olssen-Seffer and Joana Leschin, pianists who were chosen by the Bowl's audition committee, will play on the popular Saturday night program. The youthful artists will play compositions by Richard Strauss and Liszt.

Children are admitted to all Hollywood Bowl concerts for 25 cents.

WORLD YOUTH FACES DANGER OF MILITARISM

LAGUNA BEACH, July 27.—"Marching Feet" was the title of an address delivered yesterday afternoon by Mrs. George H. Bunnell, of Redlands, at the assembly room of the St. Mary's Episcopal church, dealing with the youth movement in Europe and the Orient. Mrs. Bunnell is the chairman of international relations of the Federation of Women's Clubs of California.

She called attention to the youth movement in Japan which, intensely nationalistic in character, is supporting the policy of the military leaders. A similar attitude has been adopted by the youth of China, who resenting foreign interventions effected by force of arms, today have raised the cry "Dare to Die" in the defense of national interests, the speaker declared. Stalin, the Communist ruler of Soviet Russia, must have had a keen appreciation of psychology for instead of addressing his prograc of reconstruction to the grown ups of that country, he appealed to the enthusiasc of the youth, Mrs. Bunnell explained. The speaker added but for the support given the five-year plan by the youth of Russia, it might have terminated in a failure.

The rise of Adolf Hitler in Germany the speaker ascribed to his ability to capitalize the nationalist spirit of the German youth who in recent years are more and more protesting against being compelled to pay for the wrongdoings of their elders. "The youth of Germany feel that they had nothing to do with the making of the war and therefore resent the heavy burdens placed upon them for generations to come," the speaker observed. In this connection, Mrs. Bunnell, while deploring Hitler's treatment of Jews in Germany, took issue with those who are attempting to stir up strife in this country by urging boycott of German goods." The Jewish question in Germany is not one to be settled in the United States or any other country," she declared.

Coming to Italy, the speaker voiced her admission for Mussolini who, after saving his country from Communism, had injected a new life into the nation and done wonders for the youth of that country. But here again "marching feet" are in evidence, she added.

In conclusion, Mrs. Bunnell voiced her complete confidence in the youth of America—millions of young men and women who should have the sympathetic cooperation of the elder generation. "The thought of the American youth should be directed by the religious leadership of the nation toward love of country and loyalty to its institutions, thus creating a nation-wide youthful enthusiasm for national ideals in government," Mrs. Bunnell concluded.

Members of the Queen Esther circles of La Habra will also attend the picnic and those who attended the camp this summer will give reports about their vacation.

WHIPSTOCKING CHARGES PAID BY OIL GROUPS

HUNTINGTON BEACH, July 27.—Some of the companies operating wells whipstocked into the ocean have made their settlements with the state, and the Standard Oil company, as to paying the state a portion of the royalty and obtaining a clearance with the Standard Oil for trespassing on Standard ground to reach the tidelands.

Among the larger operators who have effected settlements are the McVicer-Rood company and the Wilshire company. They paid the state the first of the back royalty partial payments. The back royalty due for the period the wells operated from the time production started until a settlement was effected with the stae is to spread over 48 payments.

The first one of these 48 equal payments was made. The same basis of settlement is available for all the wells that were slanted into the ocean, and probably all will take advantage of it. In some of the wells the back royalty is small, but in the case of the larger wells the state will receive a great many thousand dollars, running into hundreds of thousands of dollars, extending over the next 48 months.

In addition to the installments for back royalty, the wells signing up with the state will pay the state about 16 per cent of the gross monthly production. The state will derive millions from the wells from a section of tidelands the voters of California refused to throw open for drilling.

CHRYSLER SALES SHOW INCREASE

Complete passenger car registration figures for the first five months of 1934, compiled by R. L. Polk and company, show that the registrations of Chrysler cars in that period exceeded those of the corresponding five months of 1933 by 536 units, 9,826 against 9,290. It also is revealed that in three of these five months Chrysler registrations were ahead of the 1933 figure.

Because of the problems involved in designing new tools for the Airflow bodies, Chrysler had very little production in either January or February. In March, however, cars began to come off the line in good quantities, and 1879 registrations were reported in that month against 1611 for 1933. This figure almost doubled in April when 3529 Chryslers were registered against 2282 in 1933. May found still another big gain, with 3713 Chryslers in 1934 as opposed to 2698 in 1933, according to O. K. Haan of the Cadillac Garage company.

Editor The Register:
Santa Ana, California.

I am glad to see that we are to have a chance to vote upon repeal of the advertising and music tax, and under present conditions most of us will surely vote "Yes" for such repeal.

We approved the tax when things were going good in 1926 but with a "donating" council and a chamber of commerce which talks economy but asks for $4250, it seems best to remove the tax entirely.

The situation is one which can be expected when a private corporation, of political aspirations, with a hand-picked board of directors, sees a handful of tax money in sight. The spenders always did find things to spend vast quantities of tax money for, and now they're at it again.

The funny part is that the spending crowd doesn't stop to think whether it's right or wrong to spend publix tax money through a privately controlled agency, with its executive meetings from which the public is barred.

They would object to the Y. M. C. A., the Salvation Army, Builders Exchange, or any other private group raiding the treasury like that, but they seem to consider themselves a superior, favored group who can do no wrong.

They want the public money, and because they want it, the amount is "reasonable" and the rightness or wrongness of the question doesn't bother them in the least. They haven't thought of that.

Yours truly,
C. A. HARNOIS.

G. O. P. WINNER AT BALL GAME ABOARD BURROS

ANAHEIM, July 27.—Republicans scored a victory last night at the city ball park when they defeated a team of Anaheim Democrats at Donkey baseball. The score was 6 to 5. The game, according to authorities, was a hard fought contest—but the fighting was principally between the players and their mounts.

While the Republicans, officially, won the game, members of the Democratic squad indicate that they may ask for an investigation by congress, or somebody. They charge that Ralph McFadden, an ardent Republican, was chief umpire, and Thomas McFadden, Anaheim attorney, also a Republican, was catcher for the winning team.

While the Republican team, captained by William Schumacher reversed recent history by winning the decision, the Democratic mules on which they were mounted won practically all of the individual decisions in private contests. Also the Democrats had a very difficult evening riding their mules. In fact, both teams had a "50-50" evening—on their donkeys half the time and on the ground half the time.

Tonight colored teams representing the northern and southern sections of the county will play in the second game of the series being sponsored by the Anaheim Legion post and the Anaheim lodge of Elks.

CHILD IS INJURED IN AUTO ACCIDENT

ANAHEIM, July 27. — Bobbie Gene Daugherty, 402 South Olive street, received minor injuries yesterday when struck by an automobile driven by Frank S. Garrett, 554 South Lemon street, this city. Garrett took the boy to the Anaheim Sanitarium where Dr. Truxaw administered first aid for a skinned elbow and knee before the boy was sent to his home.

According to Garrett's report to police the boy was injured when he ran in front of the car driven by Garrett. Garrett said that the accident happened on South Los Angeles street near Santa Ana street. He had stopped to allow a train to pass and when he started his car, according to his report, the boy ran in front of the machine.

Anaheim Police Notes

ANAHEIM, July 27.—An adding machine reported stolen several days ago by Dr. Gail Harmon was recovered yesterday by Anaheim police. Dr. Harmon had offered a reward for recovery of the machine.

J. Peralta, 613 East Wilhelmina street, reported last night to the police that his automobile had been stolen from its parking place on South Los Angeles street.

WARRANT OUT FOR MAN UNDER BOND

ANAHEIM, July 27.—At liberty under $25 bond on a drunk charge O. Haldane of Orange was named in a warrant issued today by Police Judge Frank Tausch charging him with battery. The complaint was signed by Mrs. M. Montgomery of Anaheim. Chief of Police James Bouldin expected to take Haldane in custody this morning and arraign him on the new count.

Haldane was arrested Monday night by Anaheim police at the same time they took into custody Frank Carter, also of Orange and charged him with drunken driving. Carter plead guilty to the charge and is serving 50 days in the county jail in lieu of $100 fine.

The men were arrested as they were leaving a house where a party was in progress and it is alleged that it was at the party where Haldane slapped the woman.

WITHDRAW CHARGES IN BATTERY CASE

ANAHEIM, July 27.—Charges of battery preferred against Orton Haldane of Orange and on which he was taken in custody yesterday by Police Chief James Bouldin were withdrawn late yesterday by Mrs. M. Montgomery who signed the complaint. The charges were withdrawn after Haldane had posted $50 bail to secure his liberty pending hearing before Police Judge Frank Tausch August 3. Haldane also is at liberty under $25 cash bond on a charge of intoxication which he still must face in police court this afternoon.

The second charge was preferred by Mrs. Moutgomery as a result of a party which it is alleged, both attended During the party Mrs. Montgomery called police and charged that Haldane had slapped her. Haldane had departed but was picked up a short time later by police when they arrested Frank Carter, also of Orange, on a drunken driving count. Haldane was in the automobile with Carter and, according to police, was intoxicated.

ANAHEIM MEN ARE HONORED BY LEAGUE

Rymer was appointed chairman of the upland game committee and a member of the upland game bird committee.

CARE OF FEET WILL BE TOPIC OF BROADCAST

Dr. A. P. Browne, experienced Chiropodist, will speak in detail on the care of the feet during the "Healthy Feet" broadcast from KREG tonight at 7:45 and sponsored by the Dr. A. Reed Shoe Store at 318 North Sycamore, Santa Ana, it was announced.

Dr. Browne's discussion will show that there are many important factors regarding the care of feet that are generally overlooked. He will explain how relief may be obtained by certain methods of treatment that anyone may use in their own home, without cost, and he will tell of the importance of proper footwear, properly fitted shoes and the necessity of consulting an approved Chiropodist when the occasion arises, it was stated.

The "Healthy Feet" broadcasts are being made each Friday at the above time, for the purpose of edifying listeners on the care of the feet, a subject about which so much is taken for granted and to which little attention is paid until serious developments make speedy action necessary, it was said.

"CONSULTANTS" IN ANOTHER EPISODE

Following the noisy and excited arrival of "Louie" and "Mama" at the railroad station last week, "Dr. Schlitzenheimer" and "Horace" are in for a few complexities and mixups during tonight's broadcast of "The Business Consultants" from KREG at 6:45, it was stated, as "Louie's" knowledge of the English language is anything but comprehensive!

For 2 dollars per answer, "The Business Consultants" are still doing business, answering any and all questions on any and all subjects. Many questions are surprising, to say theleast, while the answers "pondered" by "Dr. Schlitzenheimer" are frequently none the less remarkable.

The feature is produced and presented each Friday exclusively on KREG by Jud Sutherland and "Doc" Jones, both of Santa Ana.

PASTOR ATTENDING CHURCH CONCLAVE

Walker, pastor of the Presbyterian church, and Mrs. Walker are in Los Angeles today attending the California-Nevada Presbyterian synod in session at Highland park. The synod opened last night and will continue until next Wednesday and will attract approximately 600 official delegates from the two states.

While the Reverend Mr. Walker attends the men's conferences being held in the Presbyterian church of Highland Park,

WHAT ABOUT CAVALCADE

A pair of older horses may find it their duty to prove the real worth of Cavalcade.

Equipoise might well test the English-bred colt at any distance up to and including a mile and a quarter, and from there on Dark Secret might take up the attack.

By whipping these two, Cavalcade would indeed prove himself a remarkable horse. Until that time, the status of the bay son of Lancegaye must remain something of a doubtful quantity, notwithstanding the fact that he already has demonstrated that he is the best 3-year-old in a number of years.

Cavalcade propelled by a powerful pair af hind legs, has raced across the American turf firmament to take his place beside the luminaries that have faced the barrier since Man o' War.

That Cavalcade is no Man o' War goes without saying. Mack Garner declined to rate Cavalcade with Exterminator at a time when he figured to be particularly enthusiastic—a few minutes after Mrs. Isabel Dodge Sloane's big earner had packed the veteran jockey to his first Kentucky Derby victory.

Probably the Brookmeade Stable star is no Twenty Grand. But assuredly he belong in the better class, which includes the majestic Gallant Fox, Reigh Count, Equipoise and Crusader.

BETTER THAN TWENTY GRAND?

Cavalcade, though he has shown neither the blazing speed of Man o' War, nor the wonderful get up of Twenty Grand, enters the month of August with a better record than even Twenty Grand boasted.

Twenty Grand, it will be recalled, went to Saratoga with two defeats, Mate having trimmed him in the Preakness and Classic Stakes.

Gallant Fox entered the same stage of the season undefeated, having captured the Derby, Preakness, and the Classic, Belmont and Dwyer Stakes.

Cavalcade copped the Kentucky Derby, American and Detroit Derbies, and the Classic and Chesapeake Stakes. His slate for the year perhaps would be unblemished had Garner urged him a second sooner in the Preakness, in which his stablemate, High Quest, beat him by a nostril.

In attempting to rate horses, the opposition must be thoroughly considered. Twenty Grand had the strongest kind of opposition from a group of really high-class horses, such as Sweep All, Mate, St. Brideaux, and Spanish Play. Moreover he whipped good ones like Jamestown and Sun Meadow, and absolutely tow-roped the world's greatest money winner, Sun Beau.

PEACE CHANCE ONLY RIVAL

Cavalcade admittedly has faced more formidable rivals than any colt since Twenty Grand. But his adversaries will not stand exceptionally close scrutiny.

Discovery apparently cannot carry scale weight. Riskulus is the same sort, except that he will run only under a feather of weight. Mata Hari seemingly is only a sprinter. Rose Cross can't make the grade, and First Minstrel broke down.

Peace Chance, possibly the ablest horse in America of his age, excepting Cavalcade, had no chance in the Kentucky Derby, notwithstanding a phenomenal finish. The Widener entry is a horse of scorching speed for a mile, and has turned in a noteworthy mile and a half.

While Cavalcade must still show his complete superiority over Peace Chance, he has come like an electric fan in the desert of comparative mediocrity which the thoroughbred game has seen since Burgoo King broke down and was retired several years ago.

Tonight's Games

Santa Ana at Long Beach; Huntington Beach at Westminster; Anaheim at Torrance.

Fearing the "law of averages" more than the opposition itself, Santa Ana's Stars stalk Long Beach tonight in a National Night league baseball game at Long Beach.

The lowly Admirals, who play their home contests on a fine new ocean-front park once the site of the famed Virginia hotel, have not won a start this year. They dropped 14 in succession during the first half, and have lost five in a row since the second half got under way.

Every manager in the league approaches the Long Beach assignment with trepidation, feeling the tailenders are bound to win one eventually. The leaders expect to be knocked off now and then by other contenders, but dislike losing valuable ground to a club they figure to beat.

Santa Ana's Bill Cole, braving this "law of averages," frankly expects to make hay tonight. He sees no reason for the Stars to lose, counts on his men going into a tie for first place because he thinks Anaheim will whip the Nevaless Torrance unit.

Cole is so confident of success at Long Beach that he proposes to pitch either Ira DeBusk or Wilbur Stinchfield, probably the former. Jim Coates, who was forced into extra innings both Tuesday and last Friday, gets a well-earned rest unless the other members of the Santa Ana mound department prove ineffective.

Long Beach will be somewhat strengthened by the addition of several members of the Long Beach County league nine, which merged with the National leaguers early this week. Manager "Lefty" Beeson hasn't announced his starting pitcher, but it probably will be Bobby Dalton, veteran change-of-pace expert, who gets by more on "savvy" than stuff. Deene Downer, who held Santa Ana 3-2 and 7-1 in the early '34 games, will be available if Beeson wants him. Other possibilities are Kordish and Foster, drafted from the County league club.

The Admirals will line up with Al Davis or Tom Ferrell back of the plate; Beeson at first base; Cliff Edmundson, second; Clark, third; Red Lake, short, and Clarence Clemens, Perry Callahan and Brooks Sackett in the outfield. The Long Beach outfield is dangerous offensively. Clemens is one of the best bounce-hitters in the wheel, Sackett a terrific hitter when he connects. He is one of the few men in the league ever to pole a ball out of the Santa Ana Bowl.

Olive turned back Fullerton, 7-2, in the usual Thursday night league game at Olive.

Loose fielding by Fullerton in the first and third innings gave the Grenadiers a five-run lead. Gunther's homer put the Bellhops further in the hole.

Fullerton got a run in the second inning on Morill's walk and two infield hits, and another in the eighth on Thomas' home run.

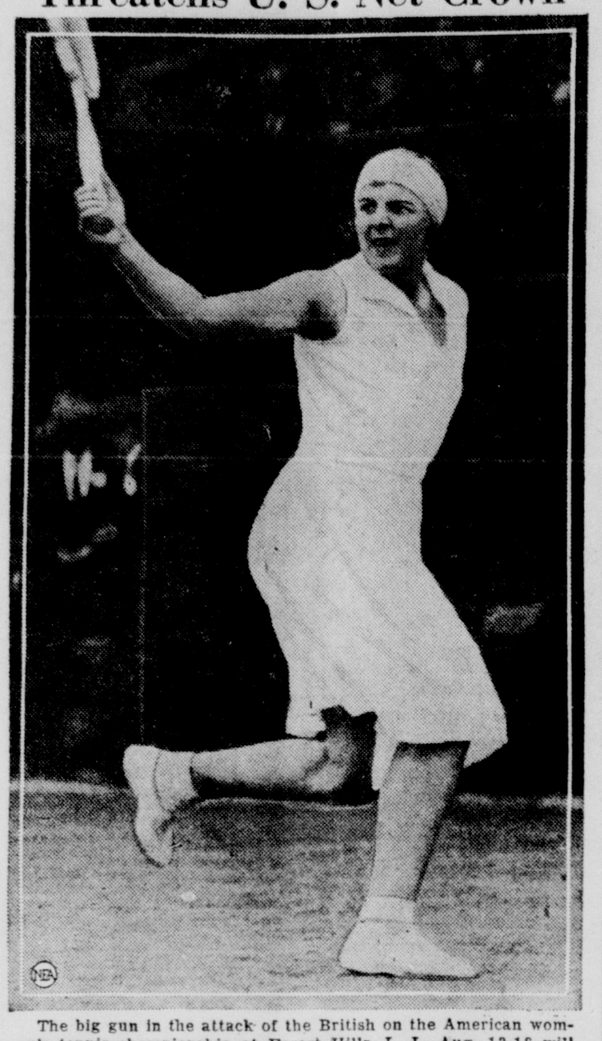

Jack Dugan pitched steadily for Olive, keeping nine hits nicely scattered.

Threatens U. S. Net Crown

The big gun in the attack of the British on the American women's tennis championship at Forest Hills, L. I., Aug. 13-18 will be Betty Nuthall, above, star of the English Wightman Cup squad. Miss Nuthall leads a team of three—Freda James, Miss E. K. Stammers and herself—in an invasion of the United States. Last year Betty and Freda won the U. S. doubles title.

MARTINEZ TOO GOOD FOR SUB MAIN-EVENTER

"Where's Elmer?" was a question propounded by thousands last year, but it was "Where's Eddie Shea?" at the Orange County Athletic club last night.

Shea, one-half of a great main event with Johnny Martinez, at Long Beach early this week, was scheduled to meet Matinez in a rematch here, but Shea never showed and a lot of fans were disappointed.

Martinez was on deck, as advertised, and they threw him into the feature against old Benny Gomez, a fair-to-middlin' trial horse but not much of a heavyweight. Martinez coasted for five rounds, working just hard enough to be sure of the decision which he got from Referee Regile Gilmore.

The match was colorless. Martinez had fat Benny on the floor in the third round and won every other round comfortably.

Substitutes Plentiful

Substitutes also appeared in nearly every other bout. The card was full of them.

Art Arroya of Westminster decisioned Norman Green of Santa Ana in the semi-final, a real fight after it got started. Green gave away too much weight to the Mexican.

Al Lemon, Fullerton light heavy, knocked out Benny Gonzales in the first round of the special event. Gonzales was down twice before the kill.

Jesse Sanchez, local featherweight who is developing into a good puncher, stopped Eddie Orosco in the second. A blow to the midriff put Orosco out of commission.

Anaheim's Don Venzoe decisioned Tony Torres, although both boys visited the canvas.

Frank Barrago defeated "Buck" Durbin decisively, although Gilmore had to make the decision because the judges disargeed.

Mesa Beats Cook

Merrill Mesa took a decision from Bill Cook, Orange lightweight. Cook didn't show the aggressiveness that marked his previous engagement here.

Al Ponce shaded Tommy Haxby, willing Long Beach 138-pounder. Haxby was on the mat twice, Ponce once. It was very close and exciting.

The first fight was the best, Tony Levaro getting credit for a technical knockout over Ray Romeriz when the latter sustained a severe cut over his eye in the fourth round. Until then there was plenty of action.

The crack Ebony club of Los Angeles, the foremost stable in amateur boxing, invades the Orange county arena next Thursday. Bill Wana, Paddy Guillen, Frankie Trott and other local favorites will be on the card.

Al Watrous Leads Wood; Shute Ahead

WILLIAMSVILLE, N. Y., July 27.—(UP)—Al Watrous of Birmingham, Mich., was 2 up on Craig Wood of Deal, N. J., as they reached the halfway mark today in their 36-hole quarter-final match in the P. G. A. tournament.

Watrous, who had eliminated Gene Sarazen, shot a 67, five under par. Wood carded a 69. The Birmingham pro held a 1 up advantage at the turn of the morning round.

Densmore Shute, Philadelphia, overcame a 1 up lead by Al Houghton of Bethesda, Md., and was leading 4 up as they completed the morning round.

Paul Runyan of White Plains, N. Y., and Dick Metz, of Lake Forest, Ill., were all even when they reached the half-way mark.

36 COLLEGIANS SELECTED FOR CHICAGO GAME

CHICAGO, July 27. — (UP)—A collegiate All-America football team that actually will play has been picked by 165,000 fans, officials and coaches in a nation-wide poll.

The team, composed of 36 collegians who were seniors last fall, will meet the Chicago Bears, professional football champions for the last two years, at Soldier field the night of Aug. 31 in the first real test between college and professional players.

The game promises to draw a crowd of 100,000.

Ed ("Moose") Krause, former Notre Dame 220-pound tackle, got the most votes. He received 65,296, more than any other man. George Sauer, Nebraska fullback, polled more votes than any other back, 64,123.

Third in the voting was Aaron Rosenberg, Southern California guard, who just shaded Charlie center, 54,924 to 54,891.

The first team, on the basis of the poll, would line up as follows:

Tackles—Krause, Notre Dame, and Schwammel, Oregon State, 39,415.

Guards—Rosenberg, Southern California, and Schammel, Iowa, 39,737.

Center—Bernard, Michigan.

Quarterback — Laws, Iowa, 62,466.

Halfbacks — Lukats, Notre Dame, 52,512, and Feathers, Tennessee, 46,813.

Fullback—Sauer, Nebraska.

Other members of the squad will be:

Ends — Canrinus, St. Mary's; Manske, Northwestern; Gilman, Ohio State.

Tackles — Wistert, Michigan; Mehringer, Kansas; Rosequist, Ohio State.

Guards—Jones, Indiana; Corbus, Stanford; Gailus, Ohio State; Hupke, Alabama; Maneikis, Chicago.

Quarterbacks — Pardonner, Purdue; Griffith, Southern California; Montgomery, Columbia; Masterson, Nebraska.

Halfbacks — Everhardus, Michigan; Cramer, Ohio State; Sebastian, Pittsburgh; Cook, Illinois; Danowski, Fordham.

Fullbacks — Mikulak, Oregon; Hecker, Purdue.

ENGLAND MADE 10-7 FAVORITE IN CUP SERIES

WIMBLEDON, England, July 27.—(UP)—America's Davis Cup team today put on its last practice for the campaign goal—the challenge round against England, which starts tomorrow.

Sidney Wood, slim New York lad who stunned the world with a victory over Jack Crawford of Australia, voiced the feeling of the American squad.

"If we could lick Australia, we can take England. Shields can whip 'Bunny' Austin, and I still think I can lick Fred Perry," he said.

While the American group—Wood, Frank Shields and the doubles pair, George Lott and Lester Stoefen—holds what it considers as an edge in morale over England, form players favor England at about 10 to 7.

Few grant England's doubles pair, Perry and Pat Hughes, more than an outside change against Lott and Stoefen, who blasted the Australians, Crawford and Adrian Quist, off the Wimbledon turf last Monday.

The match seems to center on the ability of Austin, No. 2 man on the English squad, to beat either Shields or Wood. Shields defeated Austin in the recent All-England play, and Wood seems to be the better of the two Americans.

Figuring at least an even chance for Wood and Shields against Austin, and a decisive edge for the doubles team, it would appear the odds should be even money.

The singles matches open tomorrow with Shields facing Austin and Perry meeting Wood. On Monday, Lott and Stoefen play Perry and Hughes in the doubles, and in the final matches Tuesday, Shields will battle Perry and Wood will take on Austin.

MISS KIGHT LOSES 100-METER SPRINT

DETROIT, July 27. — (UP)—Champion Lenore Kight, Homestead, Pa., was dethroned in the 100-meter free style event of the women's A. A. U. swimming championships yesterday afternoon by 18-year-old Olive McKean of Seattle.

The event was won in 1:11.7, Miss Kight placing second. Alice Bridges, Whitsinville, Mass., was third and Dorothea Dickinson, New York, fourth.

However, Miss Kight retained her title in the one-mile winning from Sue Robertson, New York, who placed second. Evelyn Rawls, Miami Beach, Fla., placed third and Mary Lou Petty, Seattle, fourth. Miss Kight's time was 25:-10.7.

Katherine Rawls, Miami, Fla., took 133.44 points in retaining her championship in the springboard diving event. Dorothy Poynton, Los Angeles, was second; Mary Hoerger, Miami Beach, third; Janice Lifson, New York, fourth.

BAER DOES SONG AND DANCE IN CHICAGO; FILMS BECKON

CHICAGO, July 27.—(UP)—Max Baer, the man who couldn't get a date with Sally Rand, arrived in Chicago today.

Max stepped on Sally's home lot wearing a broad, professional grin, a gray, checkered coat, light trousers and an open neck shirt.

The subject of a date with Sally was tactfully broached.

"What," said Max, "me call her up? After the story she put out about me? I wouldn't even talk to her."

The story Sally put out about Max was that she couldn't be bothered. Max, it appeared, called her in New York and asked her out to lunch. Sally enlarged on her opinion of Max for the press, pointing out that Max was a public nuisance as far as she was concerned and that she had enough to think about with her fan dance and all. Besides, she was engaged to an anonymous gentleman.

Miss Rand, informed of Mr. Baer's new attitude, said today that it suited her fine. She was awakened from a sound sleep induced by the rigors of her "bubble dance," which has supplanted her fan routine.

As for Baer, he was met at the station by his brtoher, "Buddy," who wears a suit several sizes larger, and by several hundred of his admirers, mostly women.

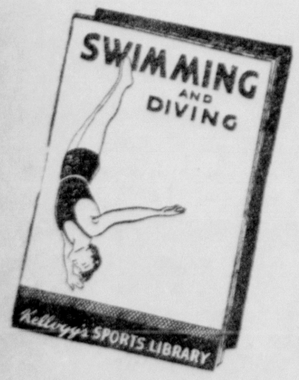

Max's first question was:

"How many shows do they have at that joint?"

The "joint" was the theater where Max will conclude a vaudeville tour this week.

Max will sing and dance in an act, which critics call terrible, all next week. Then he will entrain for California for another motion picture appearance.

Orange County Night league ball teams complete the third quarter of their 1934 season next Monday, going into that round with three clubs, Orange, Brea and Fullerton, tied for the lead.

There were four deadlocked for first place until last night, when Anaheim bowed to Brea, 6-1. Jean Arroues batted in all of Brea's runs with a single, two doubles, a triple and a long fly.

Orange fractured Huntington Beach, 16-2, after "Whitey" Pea started the attack with a homer in the first inning.

Irvine overwhelmed Olive, 14-3. Staples, Buxton and Thomas got successive home runs in the eighth.

MRS. COLBURN WINS WOMEN'S GOLF PLAY

Four down to par, Mrs. Jack Colburn took first place in a match play tournament for Santa Ana Country club's women golfers yesterday.

Five players tied for second, all seven down. They were Mrs. J. L. McFadden, Mrs. N. W. Miller, Mrs. Don Andrews, Mrs. Norbert Lentz and Miss Marguerite Way.

Class B victors were Mrs. Ludy Schaffer and Mrs. E. H. Guthier, with 81 in a point tournament.

Schneider Victor At Salinas Rodeo

SALINAS, July 27. — (UP)—Johnny Schneider of Livermore, twice the world's champion cowboy, was off to a flying start toward top honors in the annual Salinas Rodeo today.

Schneider, in the first day's competition, won the bronco-busting contest and placed in two other events, the calf roping and the steer decorating tests.

Thousands of persons flocked into Salinas for the annual show, restoring to the former frontier town the scenes and the activities common half-a-century ago. The rodeo—the 23rd annual—was to extend through to Sunday.

The opening contests, with Gov. Frank F. Merriam as the most distinguished visitor, drew 8000 persons.

The Twenty-Thirty club had company today at the top of the Santa Ana City league standings. By defeating the Elks, 6-3, at the Bowl last night, the Commercial National bank moved into a tie for first place.

Playing raggedly behind Claude Gregory, who was wild with men on bases, the Elks let in three runs on errors in the second inning, and two more the same way in the fifth. The Bankers' tally in the third came from doubles by Foltz and Smiley.

Roy Stout outpitched Gregory through most of the tussle. Stout's only bad inning was the fourth when Garlock's single, Levens' triple and Ojeda's single accounted for two runs. Gregory's double, a wild pitch and an infield out produced another Elk tally in the seventh.

Union Oil, first-half champions, jolted the First National bank's pennant hopes in the 8 o'clock windup. The score was 5-0, Lloyd Lichtenwalter holding the First Nationals to six hits. Gene Hitt, toiling for the bank, allowed only four but was wild. He issued three walks in the first inning and McCullough's double drove in three runs. Another pass led up to a run in the second. Hits by Eaton and McCullough yielded a final counter in the sixth.

City leaguers draw a vacation until Monday when the Union Oil team plays the M. E. South Juniors at 7 o'clock, and the Commercial National zank battles the M. E. South Seniors at 8.

Villa Given Draw In Kid Moro Bout

SACRAMENTO, July 27.—(UP)—Kid Moro, Manila lightweight, had placed himself among the better coast fighters today as a result of his showing against Manuel (Pancho) Villa, Mexico City, in a 10-round fight that went to a draw. The decision was unpopular with the crowd, which figured Moro had outpointed the favorite.

FUN A-FISHIN'

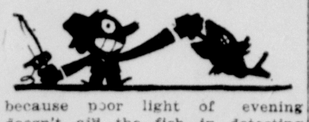

BY JIMMY DONAHUE
(NEA Service Sports Writer)

This is the time of the year when trout become the most temperamental critters on earth. They are shy and retiring in the day, mainly because of increased water temperature. Heat makes them sulky, and they feed in the sunshine only on rare occasions.

The trout angler, therefore, must turn to fine terminal tackle to fool his game. Low, clear water enhances vision of the fish, and long casts generally are necessary.

But there is one time of the hot summer day when trout put on the feed bag in lusty fashion. This is just at dusk, and a couple of hours after the sun goes down.

Fine leaders, small flies and long casts are not essential then, because poor light of evening doesn't aid the fish in detecting the artificials which sometimes, in the hand sof the tyro, land clumsily on the water.

We have stood in a trout stream at dusk and, in stretches that appeared barren of fish during the day, seen numerous rises ruffle the surface of pools. Casts anywhere near these rises were sure to bring strikes.

A good-sized fly of a light pattern is the best fish-taker at dusk. A fan-wing royal coachman, white miller, parmachene belle, professor or yellow may, in sizes ranging from 10 to 6, are most apt to attract attention. Bi-visibles too, have exceptionally taking ways.

THE TINYMITES

STORY by HAL COCHRAN—PICTURES by KING

The battle looked simply great. Said Goldy, "I can hardly wait until I know what we're to do, now that this wall is made.

"To act as nurse, I do not mind, with this fine place to hide behind. No matter what the Meanies do, I will not be afraid."

"Well, they've been quiet as can be," one Cheerful Chap said. "Seems to me that they'd be pulling some surprise, like we are trying to do.

"Perhaps, though, Scouty has upset all of their plans. He would, I'll bet, if he had half a chance. He'll trick the Meanies, ere he's through."

"I hope you're right, but I don't know," said Coppy. "I wish I could go right over to the other camp and find out what is what.

"If our friend Scouty still were free, I'm just as certain as can be that he's return to us. He is a prisoner, I'll bet."

"Well, we will very soon find out," a Chap replied. "You've heard, no doubt, about the things called hand grenades. Well, we will use them now.

"They'll bring no harm to anyone, but will be thrown out just in fun. I hope they'll scare the Meanies and, perhaps, start quite a row."

"You see, our hand grenades will be plain gumdrops. If you'll just watch me, I'll show you how to throw them so they'll cover lots of space.

"But, first, we'll have to haul them here. Thank goodness, they are very near. Before we're through we'll have gumdrops spread all around the place."

Then Duncy cried, "I'll do my part. The big gumdrops are in a cart. I saw them back among the trees. I'll get them, if you'll wait."

It was no sooner said than done. As Duncy came up, on the run, wee Windy cried, "Oh, look at them! To throw them will be great.

IN BAD

The prevailing heat wave is nothing in the way of high temperature to the language which is being used by the rank and file of the air corps regarding Major General Benjamin Foulois. The occasion for this outburst of temper is the signing by the general of the report of the Baker board on aviation. General sentiment in the corps was for separation of its activities from the general staff of the war department. The fliers wanted to be completely out of control of the general staff.

But the Baker board report recommended no separation of the air force, and, since General Foulois gave his approval to this attitude by signing the report, the air corps feels that he sold it down the river. On the other hand, Jimmy Doolittle's stand in filing a minority report contending for the freeing of the air corps from war department domination has endeared him to the rank and file.

Also, Bill Mitchell's blast condemning the report has increased his influence with the men, which was always very great. They regard him as their spokesman and leader, and have been enthusiastically for him ever since he sacrificed his military career by publicly denouncing his military superiors for ignorance and incompetence in the field of aviation.

Mitchell's attack on the report was encouraged by some of the air corps officers who belong to the impatient and restless element. As soon as the report was circulated in the war department, before it was made public, they were in touch with Mitchell and urging him to take a crack at it. This he did very promptly, describing it as "just another whitewash" and "the greatest exhibition of ignorance that ever came out of the department."

He said the army chiefs did not know anything about aviation and did not want to know anything. The statement that this country was immune from attack by air by any fleet which would have to cross the sea was singled out for especially caustic treatment. According to Mitchell, an enemy air force could reach Alaska with comparative ease and from there strike terror into this country. He said a force of enemy planes flying at a height of 35,000 feet could reach New York from Alaska without being heard and with a load of nauseating gas, which one plane alone could carry, that would be able to cause the evacuation of the city. This is what Mitchell believes, and the air corps applauds.

UNSTABLE EQUILIBRIUM—

Advices received here from Germany are such as to give official circles less concern about the political than the economic situation there. The threat to the Hitler regime which gave der fuehrer the jitters and led to the butchery of those suspected of seeking to overthrow him is thought to have diverted his attention from foreign enterprises and made him realize he had enough to do at home for the present. This lessens the danger to peace in Europe.

But the economic situation in Germany is reported to be growing rapidly worse. She cannot obtain credit sufficient to carry on ordinary commercial transactions. Foreign traders are insisting upon cash payments. This applies to the cotton supply. Two-thirds of it is not paid for and is being released only for cash.

Crop conditions also are not good. Drought made a short potato crop and purchases of 4,000,000 marks worth of potatoes have had to be made since the first of June.

The government, which means Hitler and his immediate crowd, is in something of a pickle because of this crop situation. Scarcity puts prices of all food products up and the farmers benefit, but the millions in the towns and cities suffer. If the government arbitrarily fixes prices at a low figure, to please the city dwellers, it angers the farmers, and, if it leaves them high, to benefit the farmers, it displeases the city dwellers. And, since the government assumes to regulate everything and has promised everything, it is bound to get blamed; whichever course it takes.

The government is also being forced, whether it wishes or not, to step in in the case of other industries. Indications are that the next one to be controlled will be the textile industry. It is said the big industrialists, who have all along backed Hitler and have used him for their purposes to get control of labor, are beginning to fear that the government control they invoked is getting out of hand. Instead of being about to manage it for their own benefit, they see it slowly swallowing them up, so that soon the government will have taken over everything. This was not what they bargained for.

GROTESQUE—

One of the absurdities of autocratic government action is the fixing of exchange values for the mark according to the pretense that Germany is on the gold standard. This is pure fiction, since the gold coverage is around 2 per cent, yet the worthless mark is set by fiat of the government at 39 cents in terms of U. S. dollars. With full gold coverage, its value was about 24 cents.

Not much business can be done between the two countries, except by barter, on such terms as that. American traders would hardly care for long to buy German goods at such a disadvantage in exchange, nor would they care to sell at such a discount, even if the mark had any backing.

In the light of the present state of affairs, it is almost amusing to look back to 1931, just before the moratorium was sought and arranged. Then the whole financial world was trembling with apprehension and fright because the German gold reserve was about to go below 40 per cent. If that happened, it was predicted, the heavens would fall.

Now Germany has virtually no gold reserve, she has refused to pay interest on her debts, a small portion excepted, and she has all but repudiated them. But, in place of the wild excitement her condition created three years ago, there is now comparative calm.

SUBTLE

The Treasury didn't ask for bids on its new offering of $100,000,000 Federal Farm Mortgage Corporation bonds—an unprecedented procedure—just for fun.

Normally the Treasury sets its own price on its issues when they are floated and that's that. The farm mortgage bonds are essentially direct federal obligations—since they are fully guaranteed by the government—and the usual system could have been followed with perfect safety. But it wasn't and here's why.

The government is gunning for low interest rates on its big conversion operations this fall. Of course it could flatly announce a bond issue at 2 1-2 per cent or 2 3-4 per cent when the time comes. The banks and other large investors would be almost certain to subscribe adequately—if not with zest. But a certain amount of unpublished resentment would probably develop at such high-handed tactics (as it did in the case of the famous Mellon 3s) with possible damage to the government and the Treasury's relations with the banks. So we have a subtle technique instead.

NOSE

By requesting bids on a 3 per cent issue—and announcing that no bids will be accepted at less than par—the Treasury allows the bidders to name their own interest at anything BELOW three per cent they like. It can't be higher. Thus the banks themselves will be paving the way to a still cheaper rate in a couple of months. The precedent will be established—the more effectively because the farm mortgage issue is technically (but only technically) inferior to straight Treasury stuff.

What's more, the maneuver will work. The bidders will submit terms that should make Mr. Morgenthau happy—not out of love for the Treasury but because they're so feverishly eager for sound investments. Authorities predict that the rate will be around 2.80 per cent. As for the amount—big investing institutions can take $100,000,000 in stride and hardly notice it. While no definite bids were pledged in advance the Treasury's New York contracts reported accurately that no risk was attached to the plan.

Wall Streeters expert in such matters applaud the Treasury's skill in playing supply and demand on the nose to gain its ends.

FAUX PAS

Don't get the idea that the Harriman Hosiery case is washed up because Deputy Administrator A. R. Glancy announced settlement of the strike and restored the company's Blue Eagle.

Insiders will tell you that the fun has just started. The institution looks like a complete victory for conservative industry—but the trouble is it's too darned complete. A modest turn to the right by NRA might have gotten by—but an unqualified about face is something else again.

The question which intrigues New York is whether Glancy's superiors can upset a decision he was fully authorized to make. Such a reversal would raise hob with NRA prestige. But however that works out the informed rate is a 20 to 1 shot that no move which labor takes as a slap in the face will be permitted—by the government itself—to stand unchallenged in the present delicate state of labor relations and that every precaution will be taken to guard against repetition of the faux pas.

Some Manhattan conservatives rejoice that the government is on the spot. The more thoughtful fear the reaction from the Harriman ruling will bust up what progress they've made toward revamping NRA to their specifications.

SEARCHLIGHT

Stock Exchange authorities are nervous as a hen with one chick about attempts at manipulation. A questionnaire is sent out at the first symptoms of unusual activity displayed by any stock. Lately the questionnaires have averaged more than two a day.

The Curb Exchange is doing the same thing and some of those who have been quizzed say there is excellent team work between the big board and its smaller brother. Both are doing the most thorough job of policing in their history in the hope of forestalling complaints or disciplinary action by the Securities Exchange Commission. They don't know how tough the SEC may turn out to be and are taking no chances.

There's as much difference between the casual inquiry into last summer's alcohol pools and the gimlet-eyed scrutiny of current transactions as there is between a candle and a searchlight.

CREAM

Banking and heavy industry circles are bringing all the pressure they can find on Washington to please settle the Russian debt business quick.

It's argued that Russian trade is the only salvation for heavy industry and that recovery is impossible until it gets out of the swamp. It's argued further that PWA and the housing program are inadequate as life-belts because they're too slow and too uncertain.

The recent 20 per cent jump in Soivet trade helps inspire these urgent pleas. The figures prove

Decrease In Per Capita Costs In Santa Ana Outlined

LEAGUE TOLD EXPENDITURES IN PAST YEARS

Through wise economy and efficient city administration, Santa Ana has decreased its per capita cost of government from $23.92 in 1929-30 to $12.50 during the year just completed and has set an enviable record for the state, it was declared by L. D. Gifford, director of research for the California Taxpayers' association, speaking last night before the Orange County League of municipalities in Newport Beach.

The drop in governmental costs in Santa Ana was made by the city council which took office in 1931, of which only one elective member remains in service now. Since the appointment of councilmen to fill the last three vacancies on the board, a reversal of a policy of economy has been noticed.

Gifford prefaced his comparison of expenditures in Orange county cities by pointing out that the per capita cost method was not exactly fair, since the services and methods of government varied in each city. He pointed to Newport Beach, for example, as having an exceedingly different problem because it surrrounded a harbor, was bonded for harbor improvements, covered a wide area and was a resort town. The city of Aanheim controls its water and power systems, yet this does not show in a report taken from state records. All the beach cities have different conditions from those inland, he said.

The city figures, which do not include public service expenditures and trust funds, as quoted by Gifford follow: Santa Ana, $15.89; Anaheim, $23.39; Fullerton, $22.21; Orange, $16.69; Brea, $19.84; La Habra, $10.79; Newport Beach, $131.89; Laguna Beach, $22.39; Placentia, $5.96; Seal Beach, $36.58; Tustin, $11.17; and San Clemente, $89.30. Figures for Huntington Beach were not available.

Referring to the outstanding records made in Santa Ana, Gifford said that the per capita cost in 1929-30 was $23.69, $20.92 in 1930-31, $19.21 in 1931-32, $15.89 in 1932-33, and about $12.50 for 1933-34.

"The only way to control municipal cost is by having a responsible and efficient administration," Gifford said. "Cities must have good officials, backed up by public openion. Costs can be substantially reduced in most cities without impairing the services offered and needless expenditures can be avoided."

Gifford gave a striking illustration of the trend of taxation. In 1929, incomes were estimated to total $83,000,000,000 and expenditures for taxes, $12,000,000,000, or 14 per cent. During 1933, incomes dropped to $33,000,000,000 and taxes were $9,000,000,000, or nearly 25 per cent.

Considerable discussion on the feeding of prisoners in the county jail was held, and the league's stand reaffirmed that the cities should pay an equal rate for boarding prisoners as that charged the county. Asked for a ruling, George Holden, city attorney of Anaheim, said that if a city prisoner is committed to jail for violation of a state law and he pays the fine in jail, the city is entitled to the fine.

President A. C. Hasenjaeger of Santa Ana, former city councilman, offered his resignation but was asked to retain his post until the regular election in October.

Former Mayor Paul Witmer of Santa Ana resigned as a member of the advisory committee of the state league and Mayor Charles Mann of Anaheim was elected as a director to succeed him. Hasenjaeger, former President Leo Sheridan of Anaheim, and several others lauded Witmer's work in the league.

George Bates, Placentia, protested against the practice of having certain county officials accepting private work or being paid on a fee basis, and urged those present to vote for candidates who held this view.

Mayor Hermann Hilmer of Newport Beach welcomed the city officials at the meeting, which was held in the American Legion hut. Candidates introduced included Lloyd Banks, running for county auditor; Harry Riley, seeking the sheriff post; H. F. Kenny, candidate for assembly, and Elmer Guy, running for district attorney.

Mayor W. L. Foler of Redlands and Secretary J. W. Charleyville of the state league outlined the program for the state convention to be held in Pasadena from September 24-27 and announced that the chief topics of discussion would include emergency relief, tax assessing, gasoline tax, liquor control, special assessment districts, municipal liability, uniformity of licenses and civil service.

Newport Beach extended an invitation to attend the Tournament of Lights Saturday night at the harbor.

Russia Fatally Misinterprets French Note; A German Telegram Arrives Too Late

By MORRIS GILBERT
NEA Service Staff Writer

JULY 27, 1914 — and Europe's harried statesmen, though they continue to utter words of peace, know in their hearts that war grim and terrible must come....

Aboard the "Hohenzollern."—The Kaiser, learning of Serbia's answer to Austria, writes: "It is a brilliant moral success for Austria. But it banishes all reason for war, and Giesl should have stayed quietly in Belgrade. After that, I should never have ordered mobilization."

(The Kaiser means that if he had been Berchtold he would never have ordered Austrian mobilization.)

Paris.—Von Schoen, German ambassador, of whom Poincare later wrote, "he worked sincerely on his own part for the maintenance of peace," returns to the Quai d'Orsay to say that he is ready to insist personally to his government that the same plea for restraint which he asked Paris to send St. Petersburg should be sent from Berlin to Vienna.

Berlin.—The German ambassador in London telegraphs that Sir Edward Grey finds the Serb reply most gentle, and asks the German Foreign Ministry to urge Vienna by telegraph to be moderate. The telegram is sent, but arrives too late.

At sea.—France's premier, Viviani, accompanying Poincare on the cruiser France returning from Russia, telegraphs to Russia that France "is ready to second entirely in the interests of peace the action of the imperial government." This message has great importance since it is interpreted in Russia as meaning that France would back Russia unconditionally. This interpretation later seems to the French to be unjustified.

London.—Winston Churchill telegraphs high naval officers a warning to be ready to follow foreign warships and to prepare all ships for orders, as a simple measure of precaution.

SIXTH CONCERT PLEASES CROWD IN BIRCH PARK

In presenting the sixth concert of the summer series in Birch park last night, the Santa Ana Municipal band gave its most outstanding performance to date. Interspersed with novelties and surprises, and featuring as soloist Benjamin Klatzkin, distinguished trumpet player of the San Francisco Symphony orchestra, the concert literally thrilled the audience.

The vibrant March and Cortege from Gounod's "La Reine de Saba" opened with a brilliant flourish of trumpets that electricified the crowd. This dramatic march was filled with original melodies, the lyrical middle section being contrasted with the more majestice bégining and ending sections.

Director Leland Auer revealed his ambitious nature by selecting the "Egmont" Overture for the second number on the program and proved his understanding of Beethoven's intentions by the clean-cut and dynamic way in which it was handled. The climactic coda was especially well done. In welcomed contrast came the exuberant "Waltz of the Flowers" from Tschaikowsky's (Nutcracker) Suite." The beautiful theme in the French horns was particularly appealing, and the cross rhythms near the end were cleverly executed.

Mr. Klatzkin played the Schubert "Serenade" as his first solo number. In it he displayed a remarkably clear, rich tone in pianissimo as wel las fortissimo passages. After continued applause Mr. Klatzkin gave "Vilia Song" from Lehar's opera "Merry Widow."

Tenderness and depth of feeling characterized the Largo from Dvorak's "New World Symphony." The piquaint English horn solo which appeared at the beginning and also further on, captured the attention of the listeners. Following this were three short, colorful numbers, Rimsky-Korsakow's "Dance of the King and Princess" from his opera "The Golden Cockerel", of decidedly oriental flavor, with unique instrumentation; Bizet's ever-refreshing "Serenade Espagnole"; and "The Magpie and the Parrot", a clever little number with captivating rhythms and bird calls, from Bendix's "A Love Episode in Birdland.

Ravel's famous "Bolero" provided the surprise of the evening. In it Mr. Klatzkin presented an unusual solo interpretition of the bolero, using a piccolo-tromba. This peculiarly small instrument was at once fascinating to the audience; its wailing tone lent a dramatic accent to the throbbing, sensuous "Bolero." The audience was so enthusiastic that the last half of the "Bolero" was repeated.

A fantasy, "The Evolution of Yankee Doodle," by Lake, was a description work in which the theme "Yankee Doodle" is used in various ways to depict the land of the pilgrims, an Indian dance, the waltz era, and numerous phases of American life up to the spirit of 1917. The concert closed with the march "Gloria" by Losey.

Fred Kelly Wins Race With Stork By Plane Change

Dr. Stork lost a race to a combination of radio and airplane recently when Fred Kelly, former Orange county man and No. 1 pilot for the General Air lines, beat him to Los Angeles for the birth of his son.

Kelly was flying his plane on the Los Angeles to Salt Lake City run when his company sent word over the radio to him that his wife had been taken to the hospital and the new arrival was expected any minute. He landed his plane at Las Vegas and instead of going on to Salt Lake City traded places with the inbound pilot and returned to Los Angeles in time to welcome his son.

Kelly was a track man while in Orange Union High school, and at U. S. C. and in 1912 was sent to the Olympic games in Stockholm, where he won the high hurdles for the United States.

PLANS ON NEW S. A. CITY HALL GET APPROVAL

Preliminary architect's plans for the new $100,000 city hall to be built at Third and Main streets were approved yesterday afternoon by the city council and a committee of business men, following consultations with city department heads regarding the required quarters in the new structure.

There was virtually no change in the plans, except a revised plan for the third floor, which expands the city council chambers to seat about 300 persons. It was definitely decided to include a tower, ramp driveway to the basement and first floor public restrooms in the final plans, since there was a little previous discussion on these points.

Austin and Wildman, associated architects, have arranged for several alternative plans to enable the cost to be reduced if necessary. These include the elimination of the southeast corner of the third floor, leaving part of the third floor unfinished, eliminating partitions, and other minor items.

It was pointed out that the uncertainty of the cost of labor would be an important factor. Since the building will be financed with federal funds, PWA labor from the National Re-employment service will have to be used and these men are limited to a certain number of hours per week and are of varying skills.

It will require about five weeks for the plans to be completed and from two to three weeks for approval from state engineering authorities. Three weeks are required to advertise for bids, which would make it possible to actually start work on the building in October, barring unforeseen delays. The uncertainty of labor may prolong the building time from 120 to 150 days, it was said.

The meeting yesterday was called after a mass meeting Wednesday of councilmen and business men. W. B. Martin, Asa Hoffman and James Harding, a committee appointed by the Santa Ana Civic Affairs association, and several other business men discussed the project yesterday and gave the approval to the plans.

OWENS VALLEY ROAD

The Owens Valley highway between Palmdale and Reno, a section of the Three Flags highway, is to receive federal designation, according to a report received by the National Automobile club.

GREAT STRIDES BY MEXICO TOLD IN LIONS TALK

Great success has attended the national educational program of Mexico instituted following the Madero revolution of 1911 and nearly all Mexicans can now read and write, according to Alphonso Mendoza, dean of men in the Institute of Monterey, Mexico, addressing members of the Santa Ana Lions club yesterday noon at James cafe.

Mendoza attended the Santa Ana grammar and high schools, then Pomona college and Northwestern university, where he received his master's degree in 1930, and was then called to Mexico for his chosen work.

Five thousand rural schools per year were established under the General Obregon regime, and the percentage of illiteracy has gone steadily downward, Mendoza said.

A much better understanding now exists between the people of Mexico and the United States, to which the establishment of Lions and Rotary clubs in the southern republic has contributed greatly, he declared. There are many Rotry clubs in Mexico, Mendoza said, and a Lions club was recently formed in Monterey.

Another important factor in this better understanding between the two nations was the late Ambassador Morrow, who, with Colonel Lindbergh, helped to establish the present good relationship between the two countries, he said.

"Morrow was the greatest man you ever sent to Mexico, Mendoza declared. He also paid tribute to Ambassador Daniels, who, he said, has gotten very close to the Mexican people and carried forward the goodwill efforts of Morrow.

Virtual slavery for the peons existed under the Diaz regime of 33 years, when the country was controlled by foreigners, Mendoza said, and the cry for land brought on the Madero revolution. Madero was a great man, he declared, but was far ahead of his time. The partition of great estates bought or confiscated following the revolution turned out well for the people in many instances but was not always successful, he said.

Calles he hailed as the "grand old man" of Mexico who comes forth from retirement whenever his services are needed to steer the country through troublous times.

Mendoza was introduced by Lee Mohler, chairman of the day, and recalled boyhood days in Santa Ana with Vic Walker, Chet Horton, Ray Adkinson, Joe Peterson, and other Lion members. Preceding his talk, Clarence Gustlin entertained with two piano numbers, including a Spanish Serenade and his own transcription of a song by Mme. Manuela Budrow-Rafferty.

Four new members were welcomed into the club yesterday, including Lee Mohler, Frank Harwood, E. L. Vegely and Milburn Harvey.

SEEKS OFFICE

Herbert Osborne, of Fullerton, candidate for the office of county surveyor.

ENGINEER FOR PAST 30 YEARS SEEKS OFFICE

Carrying 30 years of engineering experience into his campaign, Herbert Osborne, C. E., of Fullerton, was today actively campaigning for election to the office of county surveyor. Osborne has pledged himself to devote his full time to the office as set by statute.

Osborne, a practicing civil engineer in Orange county for the past 15 years, has a background of experience which he feels amply qualifies him for the office of county surveyor.

A graduate of the University of Cincinnati, where he attained his C. E. degree, Osborne served seven years as an engineer on the Panama canal. Among his other major activities he designed the water and sewer system for the city of Torrance. Three were were spent as a division engineer on the Canadian Pacific railroad.

In his Orange county experience he did much of the engineering and survey work in the subdividing of the La Habra Heights district and also of the city of La Habra. He has also been connected with the oil industry in an engineering capacity in recent years.

During activities of the Civil Works administration in Orange county Osborne served as chief engineer and purchasing agent.

Osborne is a member of the American Society of Civil Engineers and is prepared to bring to the office the benefit of wide and successful experience, if elected.

. . . . . Fun in the Boy's Dept.

More fun than playing golf or going fishing.
We said Boys' Department—but read on.

This is Thursday morning. Here is 9-year-old Virginia —with her mother. Virginia is being fitted (and we mean FITTED) with one of our boy's elastic waist blue overalls and a boy's fast color knitted lisle polo shirt with blue and white stripes (What could be more practical around their ranch?). And she looks so cute that we get all excited about it!

An hour ago a letter came from Flagstaff, Ariz., for a bleached denim slack pant and a blouse for a 10-year-old girl. Their letter said they asked a party going through there by automobile where their girl bought the outfit she had on. Beautifully tailored by a real navy tailor, too! And how the boys do keep us busy trying to supply them in sizes from 2 to 16 with these bleached denim dungarees! Yesterday at least a dozen of these slacks and blouses were sold to ladies and girls for their outing trips. They certainly do fit! Girls and women are buying these boys' and men's polo shirts, sweaters, wool jackets, leather jackets even more than the men folks themselves!
And plenty of fine lisle Phoenix sport sox for girls and ladies now. We feel sorry for people in other businesses; ours is so much fun.

ANN MEREDITH'S MIXING BOWL

EAT AND GROW SLIM

String bean and tomato salad
Chopped egg sandwich
Clear tea, lemon and saccharin allowed.
Calory total—305.

Freshly cooked or canned string beans are used for the salad. Left-over string beans are used in this instance. Line a deep salad plate with crisp lettuce hearts, slice the tomato over the lettuce and strew the beans over the tomato. Dress liberally with mineral oil mayonnaise. For the sandwich cut two very thin slices of whole wheat bread (1 of the ready-sliced breads may be slit in two easily.) Spread the bread with diet mayonnaise, hard-boil and mash an egg, seasoning it with salt, pepper and an extra teaspoonful of mayonnaise.

You can't beat a good omelette for emergency use. One of the sum'shus ones is cheese omelette, tangy tasting and nice'n' brown on the bottom.

For each person served allow 1 1/2 eggs (mediums). Beat the eggs to a thick froth, then add 1 tablespoonful of cold water for each egg, and a dash of salt and pepper. Have ready for 6 eggs, 1 cup grated sharp cheese. On the fire have two small frying pans, buttered and piping hot. Estimate the amount and take out what you think will make an individual omelette. Pour the egg into the hot pan and as it cooks strew a handful of grated cheese over the top. Now, take your knife and cut the cheese down through the cooking egg, letting soft egg and cheese flow onto the hot pan. Keep the pan well shaken and when softly done, fold over and put on a hot service plate. Garnish with slices of tomato and serve with hot corn muffins and jam.

TELL DETAILS OF GUARD DASH TO STRIKE ZONE

ORANGE, July 27.—Details of the strike duty carived on at the San Francisco waterfront by members of Company I of the Orange National Guard, were related by Captain A. M. Wunderlich and First Lieut. H. E. Chambers at the regular dinner meeting of the Orange Rotary club, held Thursday noon in the American Legion clubhouse.

Wunderlich stated that the recent strike in San Francisco was the handwriting upon the wall, warning the American people, and that if they don't wake up and do something about the red menace there will be serious internal trouble soon. He related that the experience gained by the guardsmen during duty in the strike zone provided fine training for the men and put confidence in the leaders that the men are capable of coping with all emergencies.

The guardsmen were in annual camp at San Luis Obispo when the order came to prepare for the dash to San Francisco and all preparations were compleaed within three hours. On the journey to the bay city, all lights in the train were turned out so no advance warning of the troops' arrival could be given.

After arrival of the entire guard personnel in San Francisco, there were no more riots, Wunderlich said, and the Orange guardsmen's duty was patrolling the highways in trucks to see that order was maintained. The spirit of the Orange members was inspiring, the captain said, and many of them seemed disappointed they dod not get to see more active duty.

Carl Glasbrenner was welcomed into the club as a new member. The meeting was in charge of C. H. Robinson, while Dr. Leon Patrick served as program chairman for the day.

THE WEEKLY PANTRY SHELF

DARLING FOOL

by MABEL McELLIOTT

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Monnie O'Dare, 20 and beautiful, is unhappy because Dan Cardigan who processes to be in love with her is influenced by his snobbish family. Charles Eustace, handsome newcomer to Belvedere, pays Monnie marked attention. He helps her with family difficulties and when Kay, her younger sister, tries to run off with a traveling salesman, he and Monnie bring her back without scandal.

Sandra Lawrence, one-time friend of Monnie's, tries to win Dan away from her. Sandra's maid, Hetty, thinks Sandra is trying to vamp James, the chauffeur, and is jealous. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XVI

Monnie heard Kay's voice and looked up. It was Sunday morning—11 o'clock, to be exact—and Monnie was enjoying the sweet freedom of her "day off," celebrating it by the weekly washing of her burnished bronze hair. Sitting out under the apple tree in a shabby old basket chair, looking extraordinarily childish in the white smock she wore, she answered her younger sister.

"Yes? What is it?"

A new Kay, since the adventure. A curiously silent, obedient, almost pathetically-anxious-to-please Kay, Monnie reflected. It had been lucky—it had been really miraculous—that no one else had learned of Kay's brief flight with Chester Bigelow, from which Charles Eustace and Monnie had providentially rescued her.

"Monnie, I want to do something!" Kay's voice, her expression were tragic. Her sea blue eyes, long lashed, shadowed faintly with mauve, stared straight ahead. "I've got to find something. I—I'll go crazy if I don't."

Monnie said mildly, "But there aren't any jobs for you in Belvedere—"

"I know," Kay interrupted. "That's exactly what I mean. If I could get away—to Chicago. Or New York—"

Her voice fell on the name. The magic name of The City. Kay, staring through apple-branches at the sky, was seeing, instead, the high minarets and towers publicized by the picture postcards—the famous "skyline." She was seeing the Empire State building and the Chrysler tower, the winking lights of Times Square.

"There'd be a chance for me there," Kay stated eagerly. "I could make something of myself—be somebody. Get some place."

Monnie sighed. They had gone over this ground before. She sympathized, wholly and utterly, but what could she do about it?

"You're too young to be on your own," she said with gentleness. "Even if we had the money to stake you for a while—which we haven't—you're far too young to go off that way by yourself. Mother would never hear of it."

"Girls not one bit older than I am," said Kay with fervor, "are earning scads of money in the movies."

"Oh, the movies, of course," said Monnie, dismissing them.

"Well?" Kay seemed to think she had made a case.

"Yes, but for the half dozen who are successful," argued the older sister, "aren't there hundreds who starve? Turn on the gas—all kinds of things. You read about it every day."

"I," said Kay magnificently, "would be successful."

Monnie gave her a speculative look. "You might," she said slowly. "And then again you might not. It's not being pretty and talented alone that puts you over. I read just the other day that a good camera man could make an actress and an unfriendly one ruin her chances. There are tricks — why, some of the most successful ones are not a bit pretty if you meet them face to face! Don't you remember Lilias Martingale, the girl I told you I met at Sandra's last winter? She was plain, really. Angular—and her skin was awful. Yet Sandra said she got a screen test that was wonderful. And she's getting along very well. I saw her picture outside the Cameo the other day when I came home."

"I forgot you'd met her," said Kay interested. "Was she really ugly?"

"Not ugly—but, well, plain in a distinguished kind of way. She," remembered Monnie, "was the girl Sandra met in Florence. From an old Boston family, I think."

Kay frowned. "Sandra, by the way, is throwing a big party tomorrow night. Having people from the city and the usual snooty crowd here. Wonder she wouldn't invite you! You used to be awfully clubby."

Monnie threw the bright veil of hair over her eyes. "Don't be silly," she said with affected lightness. "You wouldn't expect me to be asked to every party Sandra gave."

"She might have done it this time anyway," Kay went on, stubbornly loyal. "I know her. What she wants is to get Dan Cardigan all to herself. She worked hard on that job. She deserves him. All I hope is," prattled Kay, turning the knife in her listener's heart with blissful unconsciousness, "is that she gets Mamma Cardigan with him! They'd be a fine pair. Both bosses. Neither one will give an inch."

"What makes you think," asked Monnie in a muffled voice, "that she's going to 'get' Dan, as you so elegantly put it?"

"Well, I'll tell you," began Kay confidentially. "Mind you, Monnie, I wouldn't be talking this way if I weren't certain you'd got over Dan—and a mighty good thing that is, too," she interpolated. "Ever since that night you turned him down when he asked for a date I've been awfully glad. I was afraid," said Kay with sisterly candor, "you might be turning out to be the sort of dumb bunny who cries with joy when a boy shows her any attention. And that, with your looks, would be dumb!"

"Thanks." Monnie was brushing her hair now. It did not matter if her face had crimsoned.

"What I say," cried Kay warming to her subject, "is let Sandra have him, and good riddance! Charles Eustace is a better bet any way you look at it."

"You're not insinuating," said Monnie, between tears and laughter, "that Charles is in love with me? Because I never heard such nonsense in my life."

Kay whistled like a boy. "Maybe not yet, but all you have to do is lift a finger," she advised.

"That's absurd. If there's anyone he's interested in that way, it's you. He's always talking about your looks and your liveliness—"

Kay giggled. "Charles is? That's good." She seemed vastly amused.

"You talk as if he were Methuselah," said Monnie, nettled at the reception her bit of news received. "He's not yet 30."

"That's right, stick up for him," Kay told her. "He's O. K. I'm think he's swell. But not for me. He's just not the—not the type. Even if he is a cross between Ronald Colman and Gary Cooper."

"He's been everywhere, seen everything, knows everyone," Monnie said quickly, glad the talk had shifted from Dan to less dangerous ground.

"And he's very, very rich," Kay added shrewdly. "Mr. Briggs was saying only the other day—when I was there at dinner — that his mother inherited scads from old Mr. Waterman and that his father was an eastern millionaire."

"Not a bit spoiled though," Monnie reflected, pretending to be rapt in her subject, although, all the time, the thought of Dan was hammering at the back of her mind. So she was supposed to have relinquished him to Sandra, was she? Her fighting blood was stirred.

"What did you say?" She had been thinking of other things, her thoughts worlds away, but Kay was prattling on.

"I said she might have invited you, anyway." Kay was on the subject of the party again. Monnie frowned.

"I couldn't have gone," she said obliquely.

"Why not?"

"I have another engagement." She smiled at her sister's mystification.

"Monnie! Not a new beau!"

"Wait and see."

A little later, pressing the deep, crisp waves into her still damp hair, frowning intently at her reflection in the mirror, she said to herself that Dan Cardigan should not go to Sandra's party to be flaunted as her prize possession.

There were things Sandra Lawrence had to learn. One of them was that she was not nearly so subtle as she thought herself. The other was that Dan Cardigan was not hers for the snapping of a finger.

She, Monnie O'Dare, knew better than that.

"You seem in good spirits," her mother said to her at the luncheon table.

"I am!" Monnie's bronze hair, capping her small head like a molded casque of metal, seemed fairly to crackle with vitality. Her eyes sparkled.

She would show Sandra Lawrence that she was a foe worthy of respect!

ALL-BRAN MADE HIM REGULAR AS CLOCK

Delicious Cereal Corrected His Constipation

We quote from his voluntary and enthusiastic letter: "After reading your advertisement, I decided to use ALL-BRAN. I had been taking pills right along. But now I don't have to take pills.

"I take ALL-BRAN every morning, and am as regular as the clock. It has done me a lot of good."—Stephen Higgins, 51 S. Nein St., South Norwalk, Conn.

Common constipation frequently causes headaches, loss of appetite and energy. Yet this condition can be overcome, usually, by eating Kellogg's ALL-BRAN.

Tests show this delicious cereal provides "bulk" and vitamin B to aid elimination. ALL-BRAN is also rich in iron for the blood.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that in leafy vegetables. Inside the body, it forms a soft mass. Gently this clears out the intestinal wastes.

Isn't this safer than taking harmful patent medicines? Two tablespoonfuls daily are usually sufficient. Chronic cases, with each meal. If seriously ill, see your doctor. ALL-BRAN makes no claim to be a "cure-all."

Enjoy ALL-BRAN as a cereal with milk or cream. Use it also in making fluffy muffins and breads, etc. Get the red-and-green package at your grocer's. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

way, don't I?" responded Tom heartily. "I'll say I do. If it wasn't for you, where would me and my boys be?" Soppy nodded. "I guess that's right, Tom. Some of the boys, anyway, would be in jail, most likely."

"We've got to get something on this guy, Burke, and The Register, though," Soppy continued anxiously. "If we don't, I won't be on hand to help you and the boys after New Year's, old boy, old boy. And then good-bye tango and slot machines, eh, Tom?"

* * *

"Leave it to me, pal," said Tom. "I'm pretty good at the tango myself. Watch the song and dance I do here today for the reporters, er, I mea nthe jury."

"But when do I get to make my speech, Tom," Soppy wanted to know. "Can I talk to the jury, too?" Tom considered a moment. "No, I don't think we'd better make it quite that raw. But we can cut this trial out any time we feel like it and go over to the chamber of commerce. You can talk there at dinner. We arranged it especially for this. The trial don't matter. We don't give a whoop about this poor fool Communist, anyway. It's The Register we're after."

That was about all of it just then. But I happened to leave the courtroom just behind them, after it was all over. Soppy was looking dejected.

"We slipped up again, Tom That damn Communist didn't say anything that would hook him up with Burke. I told you to look out. I've been trying for two years to put something over on him. Once I thought we had it but found we had a phony witness trying to stick him on a criminal offense. It backfired in my face, and they showed the witness was perjuring himself, if two other honest witnesses were telling the truth.

* * *

"Oh, well, we'll get The Register yet," Tom growled. "We'll get it yet," affirmed Soppy, and they shook hands on it. "Meanwhile, Tom, remember that anything I can do for you and your boys may be considered the same as done." "Okeh," says Tom.

News Behind the News

UPSET

Tammany's old guard is highly indignant at the proposal to indorse Fusionist McGoldrick for New York City Comptroller. They plan to force the nomination of Frank Prial whether the Farley-Dooling-Al Smith new guard likes it or no. It's their last chance to prove they still amount to something and they'll put everything on the ball.

If Dooling et al. refuse to name Prial—which is probable—they intend to back him in the Democratic primaries and expect to win. New York Republicans wish them luck. Such a development would upset Farley's carefully balanced applecart for fair.

SIDELIGHTS

The Republican old guard would like to draft Congressman Jim Wadsworth for Governor to ditch Kingsland Macy. The hitch is that Wadsworth—unlike Barkis——isn't willin'. . . . Dooling has a minor worry—Tammany is flat broke.

MILLION-DOLLAR GOLD STRIKE!

—Right Here in Orange County—

Most every home in Orange County has from ten to fifty dollars' worth of never-worn jewelry, out-of-date jewelry, watches, dental work, etc. Turn this into cash. Just a few days ago we paid a lady from Tustin $9.00 for a small watch case. You, too, can turn your old jewelry into cash at our store, AT HIGHEST PRICES!

We buy hundreds of dollars' worth of gold, turning same over the U. S. Government Mint, at a small profit to us. We also hold a license to buy newly mined gold.

Our place of business is located at 105 West Third Street. A number of our customers have returned to us the second and third time to sell their gold, because they were so well satisfied with the price they received. So bring us your old gold, and we will test and weigh for appraisal before your own eyes. Gold prices are high now and it is good business to take advantage of this FACT!

DO IT NOW! Go to the old dresser drawers and sort out that old gold jewelry . . . bring it to us and receive cash—

NRA MEMBER U.S. WE DO OUR PART

REPUBLICAN PARTY ALIGNMENTS FAST CHANGING

The political alignments inside the Republican party are fast changing.

The old political "machine," with all of its protection for special privilege, is organized behind the man, who, genial and amiable, is in no danger of starting a rebellion at any point. He is tried and true.

You can wrap the reins around the whipstock and he will take you home. He stands without hitching. And liberals, more or less organized, and a lot of the straight-laced prohibitionists are whooping it up for this candidate with the same oracular joviality.

Governor Young, who made a good governor, seems to be creating no excitement and no challenge. Probably the most experienced business man in the group, he hasn't seemed to sense the urge of the present social conditions in the state, either that, or his devotion to figures and business is so great that he seems unable to express it, and some of his political alliances are far from reassuring.

Mr. Quinn seems to have caught a vision of the situation and is emphasizing a program. There is a great deal of reason why Mr. Quinn will receive fine support in various sections of the state.

The one man, however, on the Republican ticket who seems to be attracting growing attention is Raymond Haight. Raymond Haight is a man of vision and of promise.

He served as corporation commissioner, and the work he did in cleaning up certain bad messes, stands out as an unusual public service. Mr. Haight is not a politician, in the ordinary sense of the term. He has made a study of public questions.

His attitude upon them is that of a statesman. He will be a candidate finally in the run-off.

He sees the situation in California from the standpoint of the deficit, of the taxpayer, of the unemployed, of the business man, as it is.

We are rather inclined to believe that as the days go on between now and the primaries, there will tend to come about a trek toward the candidacy of Mr. Haight.

He is the one man in the state for whom men are organizing, aside from the politicians, aside from those who are looking for power and position, besides Sinclair. He is the one man who seems to have created a challenge in the young men of the state, and with the Christian leadership of the state, who is running on the Republican ticket.

Our suggestion is to watch Raymond Haight. He will either be nominated on the Republican ticket and elected by the combination of the Republican votes and the Progressive and Commonwealth party, or he is pretty likely to be the factor which will determine who will be governor of California.

THE MAN WITH A PLACE

We wonder if President Roosevelt's trip to Honolulu may not have been, in part, to avoid political entanglements all over the country back home.

He is to return, we understand, on the 10th of August. That is, then is when he will land on the Pacific Coast. It will only be slightly over two weeks before the primaries are being held pretty much all over the union.

There will be such a volume of administrative work pressing for his decision and conclusion, that some of the politicians, urging for a personal word, can find no fault that they are not able at that time to lay the whole situation completely before him. And Mr. Roosevelt will avoid making enemies of the group whom he might not favor.

Mr. Roosevelt's political birthday did not occur recently. In fact, politically, he seems to be older than his own life. He knows that any one or any institution that must depend upon the votes of the people, cannot afford to divide it or his followers, in the preliminary skirmish.

There are lots of amateurs who do not understand that. There are some men running for all kinds of offices this year who are searching their very souls for expressive English to tell how much they are opposed to this man, that man, or some plan. One is everlastingly against Merriam, another against Creel, another against Wardell, another is against Sinclair.

But the truth is that the people are not looking for the men who are "agin", but for the man with the program. That is why they are for Roosevelt.

Roosevelt knows it, and he doesn't propose to be ruined by getting in the cross-fire of the small skirmishes. He is wise because the only hope of putting his program over is by the support of all the factions.

ALBINO SNAKE FOUND

Sober scientists of Wooster College, Ohio, were confronted with a pink snake the other day. The strange reptile which measured about three and a half feet long, was captured in Holmes County, Ohio, by three workers on the Federal corn-hog staff.

Some of us stupid folks might have thought that the snake was one that had just shed its skin for it is reasonable to suppose that the fresh newly exposed skin is a delicate thing, pink and white. But we don't know anything about it. That's one of the reasons we should honor the professors. They can set us right on many matters. This isn't their busy season so they went into the nature of the snake quite thoroughly and they decided that the curious snake is an albino specimen of the pilot black snake.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA SHOWS "HOW"

They just can't get ahead of Southern California!

In almost every walk of life, in every endeavor of personality, in the sports field, in music, art and other cultural developments, Southern California boasts her achievements.

There is no need to alibi for our boasting, for we can "tell the world" we have the "stuff." If they do not think so, just let them step up and find out.

In the sports field in particular, this spring it seemed as though almost every champion came from California, and a goodly majority of them from Southern California. University of Southern California furnished the tennis singles champ; California the winning crew at Poughkeepsie; Stanford's track team won the two major track meets; Olin Dutra scored in the United States open golf championship, and there were other victories too numerous to mention.

It seems as though the other sections of the country have been leading Southern California in one field—that of heat marks. But yesterday the affront stood no longer, for some longstanding heat records in Southern California were broken, and we had a heat wave also. No longer will the Middle West wave its banner triumphant, for it has fallen. Viva Southern California!

And not to be outdone, Southern California offers relief from this heat wave. Not the least of this remedy is found on Orange county's coast line, than which there is none finer. Truly it is thickly populated these days, and well it deserves to be. When more and better heat waves are developed, remember the coast of Orange county from Seal Beach to San Clemente!

Even with the hot weather and the larger numbers of residents who spend the latter years of their lives here, we fortunately do not have the death toll which they have in other sections of the country.

OPTIMISM, PESSIMISM AND JOY

A writer in one of the august magazines says that in countries where people have a pessimistic outlook they enjoy a happiness which people highly optimistic toward the future do not enjoy. Where people have little to hope for, where none of them are so foolish as to hope to be rich and own automobiles and even in other countries where there are millions of people always a little hungry the people find a kind of joy in simple little events of everyday life. Being denied exalted ambitions they have pleasure with the little things which can bring happiness.

There is something in the argument. Nora Walln in an article, "Notes from a Flower Diary," in the July Atlantic gives several instances of this outlook. Each one is connected with the Oriental's love for and his joy in flowers. In a country where the people hold high hopes for the future they are so busy planning and worrying for the future that they don't enjoy the present. When that glorious future never comes, one has lost the very real enjoyment which is to be found in each day. It is one thing to build for the future but another thing, and not so good a thing, to be obsessed by it.

Tlachtli—It's A Game!

Christian Science Monitor

It is not clear from the accounts whether the old game of the Aztecs, Mayas, or Mixtecs, which is to be revived in modern Mexico, is as hard to play as its name is hard to pronounce—tlachtli. This ancient game, played, apparently, for both secular and religious purposes, was, judging from the many courts which have been discovered by archaeologists, a popular sport in pre-Columbian Middle America. Emperors played it and brilliant tournaments were held. The best players evidently enjoyed some of the hero worship bestowed on the modern giants of athletic prowess. And, something which moderns might emulate, the game was used as a substitute for war. Monarchs, rather than fight, played the game with each other to settle a point or an argument.

The decision of the Mexican Republic to revive and restore this game and to adopt it officially is an interesting incident in the Indianistic movement of Mexico. Many of the ancient institutions and customs of old Mexico have been preserved without alteration throughout the four centuries of Spanish and Europeanized rule. They were, however, mainly those which did not conflict with the ideas and purposes of the exploiting foreigners. But, unfortunately, many of those which might have contributed to the happiness of the Indian were forced into disuse.

Ever since the Revolution the modern leaders of Mexico have acted on the assumption that the lost civilizations of the Indians had customs and institutions which should be restored not merely because of their inherent worth but because the Indians of their land had a right to them and would be happiest only when many of the traditions, of which the rocks and ruins about them speak so eloquently, came to life again. The Mexican liberals differ from many others in this respect. They do not condemn an institution merely because it is old. In restoring not only institutions but the conditions in which the Indians can express themselves most fully, modern Mexico is on the way to enrich not only herself and her Indians but the world with their arts—and their amusements.

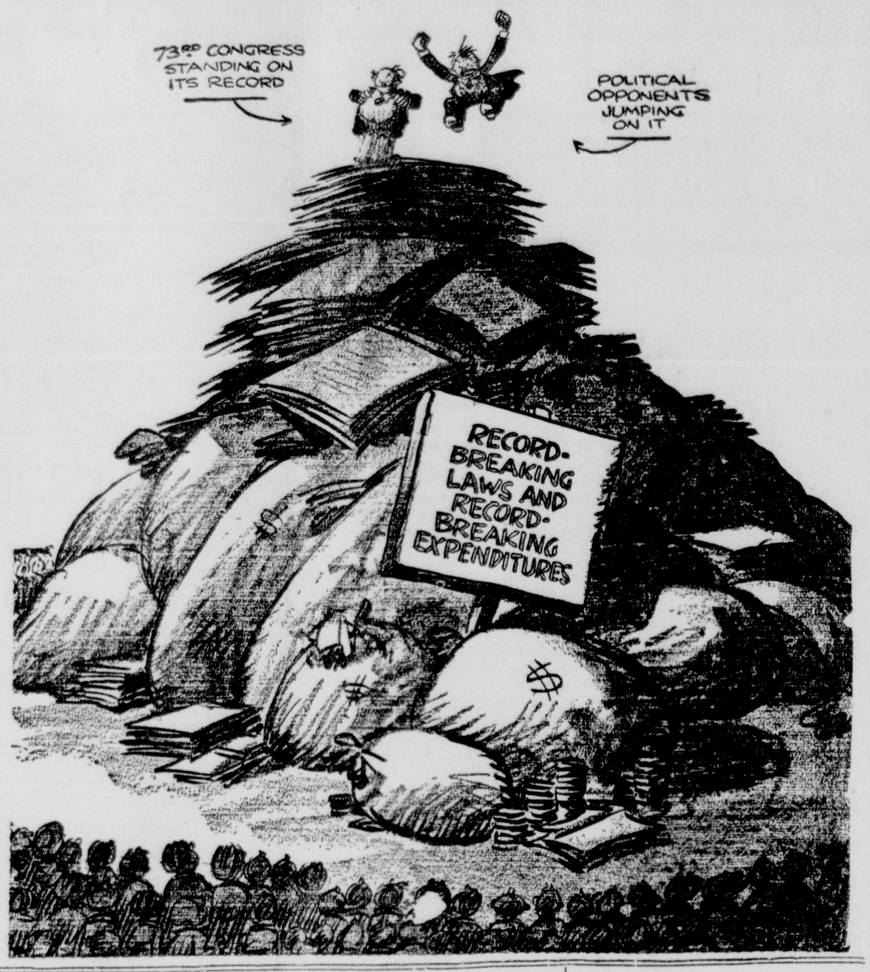

Thank The Collectors

Oakland Tribune

At the end of this year, present estimates holding, we may thank the stamp collectors of the nation for contributing $1,800,000 to the Federal income.

It had been assumed that the Postmaster General was not issuing the many special stamps, just for fun, or even to give artists the chance to display their wares. He knows that special stamps are bought in huge quantities by the collectors, tucked away in collections and never used, and that this portion of the issue represents almost a clear profit. So there came the Byrd issue, the Maryland Tercentenary stamp, and the Mother's Day one. The first of the National Parks series has been put out and also the Wisconsin Tercentenary. There will be a Presidential series.

More Truth Than Poetry

ART FOR ART'S SAKE

We are growing a trifle uneasy,
For our costly old dining room chairs
Seem destined some day
To crumble away
Beyond any hope of repairs.
The Sheraton high-boy is wabbly,
But we've stuck it together with glue
And a few strands of rope
Which leads us to hope
That perhaps it may possibly do.

Our bedstead is really a jewel—
A genuine old Duncan Phyfe—
But it swings to and fro
When the gentlest winds blow
And but feebly is clinging to life.
The ancient divan in the parlor—
Our most highly prized work of art,
An admitted antique—
Is beginning to squeak,
And we fear it is falling apart.

Through many long years we've collected
Good things that were hard to obtain,
But we always have found
They were frail and unsound
And shortly cracked under the strain.
So we're going to dispose of these relics
And buy stuff at a furniture store;
It may not be art
But we're plumb sick at heart
Of having to sleep on the floor.

FRED FEERNOT AS A SPY

Act 1

Scene, inside the enemies line.

Fred Feernot. Well, here I am on a dangerous mission and I'm not even hardly nerviss. I got to find out just exactly what time the enemy is going to charge us, because if we know that we can spoil their whole attack and take a buntch of prizzners of war and discourrage the whole enemy and then attack them ourselfs while they're feeling down harted. But I better be careful because about 20 of our spies have tried to find out already and not one has came back alive. I think I'll get behind these bushes till this sentry goes passed.

Act 2

Scene, the same.

Sentry. Halt. Who goes there, frend or foe O, I didn't reckonize you, general, how are you

Generel. I's a darn site better than you'll be if you leave any spy find out what time we're going to attack. The enemy certeny seems curious to find out, ha ha.

Sentry. Ha ha.

Act 3

Scene, the same.

Sentry. Halt. Who goes there, frend or foe

Fred Feernot. Foe. I just wanted to ask you if you'd mind telling me as a special favor what time you're going to attack.

Sentry. Hands up you're my prizzner of war, you spy.

Fred Feernot. April Fool, I'm a frend! The generel made me put on this diskize to find out if you was a good sentry or not, and you certeny are, all rite. G, that's a hot one, now I can't remember myself just what time we're going to attack. Holey smokes I hope I don't start too soon and make the enemy sispicious. I remember now, 10 after 10.

Sentry. No, you darn fool, midnite. Do your want to spoil everything

Fred Feernot (disappearing rapidly). I'll say I do.

The end.

In the Long Ago

From the Register Files 14 Years Ago Today

JULY 27, 1920

Mrs. Z. B. West jr. and little daughter Elizabeth, arrived from Palo Alto to spend the remainder of the summer with Mrs. West's parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Yarnell.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred L. Russell of Prosser ,Wash., left for Abyssinia after a short visit here. They had been honored on the previous night at a reception in the United Presbyterian church, under whose auspices they were to establish a new mission in Abyssinia.

"I'm kind of ashamed to put the neighbors to all this bother," declared Governor Calvin Coolidge of Massachusetts as he watched the building of a platform at Northampton where he was formally notified of his nomination as Republican vice presidential candidate.

Thoughts On Modern Life

BY GLENN FRANK

THE WEAK LIKE DICTATORSHIP

I approach with profound sympathy the instances in which, since the war, harassed peoples have chosen transient dictatorship in preference to the tragic anarchy of governments which, in the midst of panic disintegration and lacking the capacity to govern, let run unharnessed the wild horses of conflicting interests.

The intricate and interdependent life of a modern nation cannot tolerate non-government by stampede.

But this is something quite apart from the fashionable turning of tired radicals and impatient liberals to the alluring possibility of taking a shortcut to the triumph of their desires.

It is this latter, which has been so evident in the United States during the last few years, that presents a problem with definite and, in my judgment, dangerous implications for the American future.

The lure of dictatorship in a phase of unsettlement makes strange bedfellows. Since 1929 we have seen the most conservative business men and the most radical theorists alike flirt with the nation of dictatorial direction as a way out of our difficulties. That they differed about the nature of the dictatorship that would be most desirable does not change the similarity of impulse that has moved their minds.

When the fever of these days has subsided we shall see that this wistful admiration of the flourish of dictators was a delusion and that this insistent cry for action, without the much satirized discussion of democratic procedure, whether the criers be practical business men or theoretical liberals, was the cry, not of strong men, but of weaklings.

It is the business men who were blind when the economic tides were running high and the liberals who did not know what to do when they had a chance to govern who have lately surrendered to the lure of dictatorship.

Both, a bit ashamed of their record for leadership, are looking for a shortcut to action that will relieve them of the exacting demands of leadership.

Our Children

By Angelo Patri

A TIP-TOE

Standing on tip-toe and trying to reach something beyond one's range is about the most fatiguing thing one can do. The strain cannot be prolonged. Strength and courage fail and one sinks to his own level with a sigh of relief.

This is plain to us but we forget that it applies to mental reach as well as to the physical and we are guilty of making children stand on tip-toe in an effort to extend themselves beyond their power. We do it daily in every school and home in the land. "But try. You are not half trying," we say, when the child is worn out by his effort.

We do nŏt mean to be cruel. We cannot see the mental strain and suffering until the child cracks physically. This is usually shown by a burst of tears or temper or both and we make it an occasion for more advice, more injunctions to "try."

"When you sit at table tonight don't talk. Don't wiggle. Don't fiddle with your knife and fork. Let your napkin lie in your lap. Remember, don't make a sound until you are spoken to. Keep still as a mouse." Of course he cannot do that. He can stay still only for a few minutes because Nature has cvreated him as a creature of activity. He grows so tired he wishes he could fall off the chair. Then he spills his soup or tips his glass or speaks at the wrong time. Not because he was naughty but because he was tired of stretching to the adult standard of table manners.

"Mary Louise, what's getting into you? This is the third poor mark this month. You can get A's as easy as you can get D's. Let me have no more of this. Put whatever notions you have in your head right out now and get to work." So speaks the teacher of the A student who has failed to maintain her high standard.

As easy to get A's as D's. You know better than that. No student can get an A without effort. He might make one. A recitation by luck or intuition but he can't make an A record and sustain it for any length of time without downright hard work. That means he gets very tired and unless some outlet, some form of relief is offered him he begins to fall to a lower standard. Fatigue is like a drepresant poison to the mind. Instead of scolding the failing child try giving him a change, a rest from routine.

And then come conduct and manners. "Now why did you do that? Yawn right in the visitor's face and slouch down in your chair and behave as though you had no manners at all." The answer is simple. He behaved that way because he was tired out by the effort he had to make to reach the adult standard of manners and conduct. He had to be polite too long at a time.

The spirit needs a vacation now and then. It needs to find relief in some quiet place where "the wicked cease from troubling and the weary are at rest." In short don't expect too much for too prolonged a time, from children and youth. Give them time to rest from well doing and they will do better.

(Mr. Patri will give personal attention to inquiries from parents and school teachers on the care and development of children. Write him in care of this paper, inclosing a three-cent stamped, addressed envelope for reply.)

BACKFIRE IS STARTED

Flames Within Mile And One Half Of Mt. Lowe Today At Noon Hour

PASADENA, Cal., July 27.—(UP)—Fresh recruits were rushed into the Sierra Madre mountains today to replace a wearied army of fire-fighters, battling a mile-long brush fire that was racing steadily towards populated Mt. Lowe.

Approximately two-score fire-fighters were burned, several seriously. Homes were evacuated in the upper Arroyo Seco, Pasadena's valuable watershed, but authorities hoped to save the residences. More than 1000 acres were denuded.

Sheriff office observers returned from the scene and reported the fire was "running wild."

Rangers, recalling the disastrous Griffith park holocaust of last fall in which more than a score of men were burned to death, kept a close vigil over the fire-fighters to prevent them from being similarly trapped by the flames.

In spite of their vigilance, five men were burned seriously when they were forced to leap through the fire to escape death.

Homes Threatened

The forest rangers said that the world famous scenic railway ascending Mt. Lowe was not immediately in danger, but that the fire might easily veer directly toward the line and the Mt. Lowe Tavern. Scores of private homes are perched on the side of the mountain.

More than 1200 additional CCC workers from camps in nearby counties were mobilized during the night and hurried to the scene of the conflagration.

The fire was termed the most serious blaze in the district since 1889 by William V. Mendenhall, Angeles forest supervisor.

By 8 a. m. the fire had spread over an additional 500 acres of watershed. Four more men were added to the injured list, with scores of fire fighters reported lying exhausted beside mountain trails.

Nearing Mt. Lowe

The fire at noon was within a mile and a half of Mt. Lowe, occupied by many summer homes, the Pacific and Electric scenic railway and a large resort tavern.

Forest service officials believed that the mountain would be encompassed unless the fire is controlled by nightfall.

The east fire of the blaze extended between San Gabriel peak

JURY DISAGREES IN L. A. MORALS TRIAL

LOS ANGELES, July 27.—(UP)—Retrial of Dave Allen, casting bureau manager, and Gloria Marsh, film extra, on charges of participating in an immoral Hollywood orgy was tentatively set for August 20 today after the first trial had ended with the jury hopelessly deadlocked.

The panel, which had been deliberating since late Tuesday, was discharged at 10 o'clock last night; by Judge B. Rey Schauer.

Foreman W. F. Fox revealed that the jury stood eight to four for conviction throughout.

Allen and Miss Marsh were indicted last May 15 on morals charges following testimony of June De Long, an extra, that the defendants and she had participated in a wild Baccanalian orgy. Her testimony was substantiated by Mrs. Pearl Owings, a friend, who told the jury of eight men and four women that she had entered an apartment to find Allen on a bed with the two women, both of whom were nude.

GRIP OF HEAT WAVE BROKEN AS RAIN FALLS

Showers Reported In Many States; Death Toll Set At More Than 800

KANSAS CITY, Mo., July 27.—(UP)—As gradually as it had extended its grip over the entire Southwest, the great July drought was being broken today. Weather forecasts gave further hope of relief over a wide area. Heat fatalities were lessening rapidly.

Showers were predicted for many states that have been in the grip of the drought and an accompanying heat wave for 15 days. It was considered probable these showers may develop into heavy rainfalls.

Showers fell intermittently yesterday, last night and early today in several afflicted states, causing temperatures seldom out of the 100s, and never out of the high 90s, for the last two weeks to fall to the low 90s, and, in isolated instances, to the high 80s.

While showers aided suffering humanity considerably, they did little or nothing to lessen rapidly mounting losses of crops and livestock.

Stockmen still were forced to watch their cattle and hogs waste away, although Texas benefitted somewhat by rains accompanying the hurricane along the Gulf coast section.

Deaths had mounted to upward of 800 today, but were expected to diminish considerably from today on.

MISS CRUICKSHANK LOSES IN DOUBLES

SEABRIGHT, N. J., July 27.—(UP)—Helen Jacobs of Berkeley, Cal., and Elizabeth Ryan of California and London today captured the women's doubles bowl of the Seabright invitation tennis championships, defeating Josephine Cruickshank of Santa Ana and Mrs. Marjorie Gladman Van Ryan of Philadelphia, formerly of Los Angeles. Scores were 7-5, 6-3.

The match was well played, with Miss Ryan being the stand-out throughout. Most of the errors made by the victors were charged against Miss Jacobs. Mrs. Van Ryan was the strong member of the losers in the first set, while Miss Cruickshank played superbly in the second set. Miss Ryan's volleying at the net and her all-court tactics and experience swayed the victory to her side.

LATE NEWS FLASHES

WASHINGTON, July 27.—(UP)—Norman H. Davis, United States ambassador at large, who has returned from naval conversations in London, scoffed today at danger of war in Europe and said that social and political upheavals within national boundaries are much more to be feared.

LONDON, July 27.—(UP)—Cooperation with the Nazis in Austria is impossible, Chancellor Von Starhemberg was quoted as saying in a statement published today by the London Evening News.

VATICAN CITY, July 27.—(UP)—The pope snubbed Chancellor Adolf Hitler of Germany, today when he refused to extend papal patronage, or approval, of the German Arbeitsfront (labor front). The refusal was based on the "anti-Catholic attitude" of the labor front.

He Probably Will Fill Up His Church

ST. PETERSBURY, Fla., July 27.—A printer's error might have caused the newspaper much embarrassment if Rev. James A. McClure had not been the sort who sees the funny side of things.

As pastor of the First Presbyterian church, he sent to the paper the announcement that his sermon topic the following Sunday would be "The Secret of Power."

The typesetter hit the wrong letter, the proof reader failed to catch it—and so it was chronicled that Rev. Mr. McClure would preach about "The Secret of Poker."

EIGHT CRUSHED TO DEATH WHEN HIT BY TRAINS

Children Caught On Track While Returning From Day Of Swimming

SHELTON, Conn., July 27.—(UP)—Tragic details of how eight children were crushed to death by a freight locomotive were pieced together by authorities today while this entire factory city mourned the dead.

Boides of the victims, most mutilated beyond recognition, were identified last night after a laborious process of elimination in which hundreds of hysterical mothers joined. Many fainted when the complete death list finally was announced.

The victims were: George Rumble, 15; Ruth, 12, and Charles Bierwith, 14; John, 12, and Joseph Gentile, 14; Stephen Ratkewich, 7; Joseph Dzwonzik, 14, and Carl Hoffman, 15.

The children, all of whom had been swimming in the Housatonic river, stopped on their way home to supper to play cards on a railroad embankment. They were sitting on the westbound track.

A freight train came roaring down the eastbound track. As it neared them, a westbound freight flashed around a curve 50 feet away. The sound of the eastbound train, which the children saw, drowned the noise of the one bearing down upon them.

Brush Fire Burns 1000 Acres Today In Devil's Canyon

Brush fire which broke out at 10:20 o'clock yesterday morning in Devil's canyon, three miles north of Santa Margarita peak, had denuded 1000 acres at 6 o'clock this morning, and was still blazing this afternoon, out of control.

Three hundred CCC workers and 50 forest and state workers were battling the blaze this afternoon. The country is extremely rough and dry.

TROOPS STILL IN CONTROL AT MINNEAPOLIS

Residents Of City Attend To Normal Business Under Martial Law

BULLETIN

MINNEAPOLIS, July 27.—(UP)—National guardsmen ruling Minneapolis during the paralyzing strike of truck drivers today seized two communist editors, James P. Cannon of the "The Militant" and Max Schactman of "The International."

MINNEAPOLIS, July 27.—(UP)—A half million Minneapolis residents went quietly and almost normally about their affairs today under martial law.

Soldiers with fixed bayonets forbade parking of automobiles in the business district and guarded milk, ice and grocery trucks. They streamed in and out of national guard headquarters almost within stone's throw of the spot where 50 men were shot in a riot early in the week.

Every vestige of the tension which gripped the city during 10 days of a strike of 6000 truck and taxicab drivers had disappeared.

While Adjut. Gen. Ellard A. Walsh, ruler by proclamation of Minneapolis, part of St. Paul and a large portion of Hennepin county, completed organization of the 3600 guardsmen, federal mediators made new efforts to end the strike.

Their first act was to reply to a letter in which employers rejected mediators' terms. The rejection brought proclamation of martial law.

Employers expressed dissatisfaction with virtually all aspects of the plan and charged the strike was fomented by communistic leaders who did not represent their employes.

Gov. Floyd B. Olson indicated that he would not retreat from a definite alignment with the cause of the union.

"I do not agree with you," he wrote to the employers, "that the plea for a living wage for a family man receiving only $12 a week is answered by claiming that man is a Communist."

Mediators proposed a slight wage increase and general election among drivers and inside workers of affected firms to select representatives for collective bargaining.

BERKELEY BANK IS ROBBED

BERKELEY, Cal., July 27.—(UP)—Two bandits armed with a sub-machine gun held up the staff of a Bank of America branch here today and escaped with approximately $1,800 in currency.

One bandit trained the machine gun on W. C. Keys, manager, and Ralph Thompson, teller, while his companion looted cash drawers. Keys and Thompson were the only persons in the bank when the robbers entered.

Defendants Are Held On $5000 Bail

Men Unable To Make Bonds On Charges Of Criminal Conspiracy

STRIKING the third time at Seal Beach gambling interests within three days, sheriff's and district attorney's officers made another raid last night on Ballard's Chip Parlor, but instead of charging the seven defendants with misdemeanor charges of gambling, as on the two previous occasions, booked them at the county jail under $5000 bond on charges of investigation of criminal conspiracy to evade the gambling laws, which is a felony.

Included in the seven arrests were Ballard Barron, 40, admitted owner of the chip parlor and Lee C. Benno, 41, drug store owner who acted as cashier and gave cash or merchandise for the chips won on the amusement house.

In addition to jailing the employes in the chip parlor, the officers dismantled the expensive equipment and brought it as evidence to the county jail. The large numbered wheel, electrical equipment and nearly 500 chips were confiscated.

The purpose of filing felony charges against the alleged gamblers was to make it possible to have the cases tried elsewhere than Seal Beach, it was announced. Juries in the beach town usually find defendants in such trials not guilty and sentiment is overwhelmingly in favor of the gambling interests, which practically control the city, according to reports.

Evidence of this trend was shown Wednesday afternoon when eight persons were arrested in Ballard's and then released without bail by Judge Fred Smith, and allowed to return and start up business again.

The defendants arrested last night were scheduled to be arraigned this afternoon before Judge Kenneth Morrison in justice court. At noon, none of the seven had posted bail. Samuel Lackman, attorney representing the chip game employes, tried unsuccessfully last night to persuade Morrison to reduce the bail.

The third raid preceded the hearing in superior court this afternoon, at which time the gambling interests were to attempt to obtain an injunction to restrain the sheriff and district attorney from interfering with their business. Judge George K. Scovel refused to issue the order yesterday and ordered the hearing held today at 2 p. m., at which time the officers were to show cause why they should not be served with the order.

The recent expose stories in The Register, coupled with the bold raids by the officers, have virtually closed up the gambling dens in the beach city. With the exception of Ballard's Chip parlor, the only place operating last night was Larry's Tango parlor, raided Tuesday night, but the patrons were not being charged for play-

BARON FRANZ VON PAPEN IS NAMED SPECIAL MINISTER TO AUSTRIA BY ADOLF HITLER

(Copyright, 1934, by United Press)

BERLIN, July 27.—(UP)—Chancellor Adolf Hitler, aware of the hostile gaze of suspicious nations surrounding Germany, took extraordinary measures to placate Europe and rewin the friendship of Austria.

Hitler named Baron Franz von Papen, vice chancellor, special minister to Austria for the duration of the political crisis, in a letter which eulogized him and condemned the Austrian Nazi revolt.

Theo Habicht, German leader of Austrian Nazi legionnaires, whom Germany had given shelter, was dismissed ignominiously.

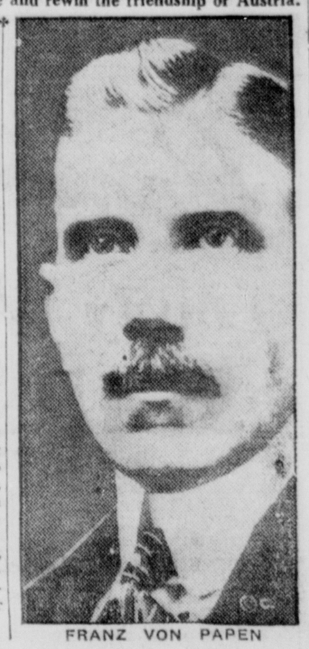

Alfred Frauenfeld, Legion commandant, was forbidden to make a a radio speech he had planned and announced publicly.

These events, following summary recall of Kurt Rieth, German minister to Austria, were a plain token of Hitler's alarm.

His letter to von Papen, naming him minister in Rieth's place, was eloquent of his concern. It follows:

"In the course of events in Austria I was compelled to suggest to President (Paul) von Hindenburg recall of the German minister to Austria from his post because, upon the request of an Austrian cabinet minister and Austrian insurgents, Dr. Kieth (the minister) without asking the government, consented to an agreement reached between the two parties mentioned concerning free conduct for

LONGSHOREMEN REFUSE TO GO BACK TO WORK

Decline To Return To Jobs Until Other Maritime Strikes Adjusted

SAN FRANCISCO, July 27.—(UP)—Faced with the refusal of longshoremen to return to work until other maritime strikes on the Pacific coast are adjusted, federal mediators today began a poll among striking seaworkers to determine their representatives for collective bargaining.

The ballot sent seamen, mates, pilots, deck hands, cooks and other maritime workers asked but one question. It read:

"By what person, persons or organizations do you wish to be represented for the purpose of collective bargaining with your employers?"

Shipowners have refused to recognize the A. F. of L. unions to which many of the strikers belong as truly representative of their employes. A move to have the present unions specified on the ballots failed.

While the poll was being taken, the President's national longshoremen's board renewed its efforts to persuade the longshoremen to return to work Monday. They have agreed to settle their differences with their employers by arbitration.

If the longshoremen insist on remaining out until seamen return to work, the maritime strike may last for weeks, board members admitted. The mediators

PROMISES REVENGE IN BANDIT'S DEATH

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., July 27.—(UP)—A note pledging revenge for the death of John Dillinger found in the slain outlaw's grave in Crown Hill cemetery added a new detail to the already complicated investigations that followed the federal ambush in Chicago.

The note was believed directed to the "woman in red" whose tip enabled federal agents to kill the desperado. It read:

"I am going to get her, John. So long, old boy. "J. H."

BULLETIN

VIENNA, July 27. — (UP) — Prince Von Starhemberg's Fascist regime slowly throttled Nazi terrorists today in desperate fighting over most of southern Austria. Loss of life was heavy.

A special military court set up by the regime will begin to function Monday and then the hangings will start.

The Nazi insurgents resisted stubbornly the army, heimwehr (home guard) and volunteer forces sent against them. Hand grenades, rifles and machine guns were used generally. The government forces also resorted to light artillery.

Casualties were estimated by the United Press at 165 to 185 dead and 250 wounded.

The fighting centered in the provinces of Styria and Carinthia, the later lying along the Italian border, across which Premier Benito Mussolini's troops are stationed.

Latest advices from Carinthia indicated the situation might be serious, despite the government's assurances that it was in control. As fast as the Nazis were driven from one town or village, they would move into another.

Nazis In Control

Word from the town of Wolfberg, on the main railway line in upper Carinthia, said it was occupied by Nazis at noon. They made a stand against the gendarmes. All communications were cut. Trains through Carinthia were rerouted.

Fighting was reported to have broken out this afternoon in Lueg Pass, province of Salzburg, which extendsd on the north of Carinthia down to the Italian Alps.

The Vienna military courts, under the emergency law of July 18, sentenced two Nazis, Leopold Mitteruscher and Oskar Ertel, to five years at hard labor today, and another Otto Kuhr, to six years on a charge of dynamiting.

Three others were bound over to the ordinary courts. (The July 18 courts are distinct from the special military tribunal decreed by the cabinet yesterday for trial of the Nazis who assassinated Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss.)

The government was firmly in control but fighting with the Nazis was savage.

PEARL HARBOR IS INSPECTED BY PRESIDENT

Chief Executive To Leave This Evening On Return To United States

HONOLULU, T. H., July 27.—(UP)—Turning today to his first love—the navy—tfer the most impressive military review he has seen since the World war President Roosevelt set aside his second day in Honolulu for a visit to the Pearl Harbor naval base.

In completing the picture of the defenses Uncle Sam has erected to perfect his mid-Pacific possessions, the president planned a thorough inspection of the strongly fortified area and of the armament centered there.

After lunching with Rear Admiral Harry Yarnell at the base, Mr. Roosevelt will collect the countless souvenirs of his memorable reception to the Hawaiian capital and turn toward the U. S. S. Houston, which will carry him back to the United States.

The president climaxed the busiest day of his vacation cruise yesterday with a 90-mile swing around the island of Oahu, on which Honolulu is located. The tour

ITALIAN TROOPS, ARTILLERY MOVE INTO POSITION ALONG AUSTRIA'S FRONTIER TODAY

UDINE, Italy, July 27.—(UP)—The newly-motorized Italian army moved with swift precision into position along the Austrian frontier today—Premier Benito Mussolini's warning that Austria must be kept independent.

It was the swiftest movement of troops into fighting position in Italian history.

The first mechanized division of 8000 men in tanks and armored cars advanced with motorized light and heavy artillery of types and shapes hitherto not seen in combat anywhere.

Trucks and tractors with four, six or eight wheels; minature tanks operated by one soldier; removable, bulky armored structures on replaceable chassis moved like huge beetles along the border roads from Montecroce and Tarvis.

While the motorized divisions occupied the main road between Udine and Tarvis, other units, including the picturesque Bersagglerie, flowing clusters of feathers in the helmets, were proceeding by motorcycle along the roads toward Montecroc.

Piedmontese lancers, with war helmets, galloped along the highways to strategic points, and were stationed at intervals along the Montecroce road.

Mussolini's sudden command was obeyed like clockwork. The only preparation for movement necessary was the loading of provisions, rations and ammunition on the army lorries.

Every unit called into action and assigned to the Austrian border patrol was ready for service immediately. The divisions had, in fact, conducted summer maneuvers in the border territory, and were familiar with their posts.

Within 60 minutes of the time their first orders came from Rome by telephone, some of the detachments were on their way to the designated destinations.

ing and the entertainment "was on the house."

Five deputy sheriffs walked into Ballard's about 9 o'clock last night and began playing the chip game. The employes recognized the deputies at once but thought the arrests would be merely another misdemeanor gambling charge, it was said. They were considerably astonished to find that felony charges were being preferred. This was said to be especially true of Barron, who at first admitted he owned the establishment but then attempted to deny his connection when he learned the true natur of the charges.

Of the other five men arrested, William Conner, Charles Coleman, 28, Joseph Smith, 33, and Frank Pieper, 51, were all included in the two previous raids on Ballard's, while Ogie Pieper, 23, was in the first and last.

Section 182 of the penal sode, which refers to conspiracy, reads as follows: "If two or more persons attempt to cheat and defraud any person of any property, by any means, which are in themselves criminal, they shall be guilty of criminal conspiracy."

The prosecution is expected to attempt to prove that gambling is a criminal offense and therefore the operators of the chip games and tango parlors are guilty of conspiracy.

Conviction on the charge would carry a sentence of two years in jail, a $5000 fine, or both.

WILL ROGERS says:

ABOARD S. S. MALOLO, July 27.—(To the Editor of The Register:) Poor old Austria, if ever a nation needed to move out and settle among different neighbors its her. They divided her up so much after the last war till there was nothing left, but this little game fighting cock Dollfuss now they got him. There was a fellow that looked like he was doing a heroic job of trying to hold the few strands together of what had been a great nation now its a fresh piece of meat to be thrown to the neighboring wolves.

Yours,
WILL ROGERS.

and Brown mountain, an uninhabited area, and stretched a mile west to the Arroyo Seco, where it burned within a few feet of the bottom of the canyon. Fire-fighters here had the situation fairly well in hand.

A backfire was started in the hope that, aided by a favorable wind, it would veer the flames away from Mt. Lowe.

The casualties were inflicted during the night when more than 600 fire fighters, many mustered from adjacent CCC camps, toiled to stem the blaze. Six of the men were severely burned and one, Douglas Warner of Pasadena suffered critical burns. He was taken to Pasadena hospital.

A CCC worker was trapped with two companions in a 15-ft wall of flame. All three were burned in forcing their way through the fire.

The fire, according to William V. Mendenhall, supervisor of the Angelus forest, is the most serious in the district since 1889. Low humidity, high temperatures and excessive aridity of the brush-covered hills combined to make the situation extremely grave.

A boiling sun, sending the temperature above the century-mark, harried the fire-fighters.

the insurgents and their right to come to Germany.

"Thereby Rieth, without reason, dragged the Reich into the internal affairs of Austria.

"The assassination of the Austrian chancellor, which the Reich government condemns and deplores in the strongest terms though it is without responsibility, has further aggravated the already unstable European political situation.

"It is my wish if possible to help to improve the general situation and especially to see the long troubled relations between the German and Austrian nations revert to normal friendly channels.

"I beg of you to undertake this important task, especially since during our cooperation in the cabinet you have enjoyed, and you still enjoy, my fullest, unlimited confidence.

"Therefore, I have suggested to President von Hindenburg that you ersign from the cabinet and as SAAR commissioner and be appointed for a limited period, and for a special mission, as German minister to Vienna.

"In this position you will be under my direct supervision.

"Permit me to thank you again for everything you once did in bringing together the government in the national uprising and also for what you have done since then, with us, for Germany.

"Hitler."

NAZI'S REIGN OF TERROR IN AUSTRIA DIES

A government spokesman announced:

Makes Statement

"It is a question of only a few hours before the government will control all Austria. The fighting now is confined to skirmishing in the open fields in Carinthia. The Nazis have lost their heads."

A careful United Press survey of the country showed there had been fighting in 24 towns, in scattered villages and, for a short time in the Vienna suburbs.

As careful an estimate as was possible in the circumstances, showed a death list of 150, with more scattered deaths likely.

The government talked peace but was prepared for extensive fighting.

Its strategy was to supress all uprisings, to pacify the larger towns first, and to leave its forces so distributed that there would be no more fighting in a town once cleaned up.

Guerilla Fighting

The situation could not be called one of civil war. It was guerilla fighting.

News that Nazi Germany had repudiated Austrian Nazism and made efforts to clear itself of complicity in the Wednesday putsch, was calculated to discourage Austrian Nazis fighting in the provinces—Styria and Carinthia in the south.

Baron Franz von Papen, new German minister to Austria, is a close friend of several leaders in the Fascist heimwehr. Theo Habicht, German leader of the Austrian Nazi legionnaires, dismissed last night by Chancellor Adolf Hitler, had been regarded as the chief enemy of Austria in Germany.

There was some hope von Papen and Printe Ernst von Starhemberg, acting chancellor and Heimwehr leader, would work out a basis of friendship—which Starhemberg has long sought.

Dollfuss lay in state in the great town hall, the Rathaus. He will be buried at 2:30 p. m. tomorrow.

His body will be blessed at the town hall. President Wilhelm Miklas, Starhemburg, Mayor Max Schmitz and others will deliver eulogies.

Dollfuss Funeral

Escorted by highest government officials and by soldiers, Heimwehr men and special police, the body will be taken to St. Stephen's cathedral. There—partly in token of Pope Pius' horror at the manner of Dollfuss' death—Cardinal Innitzer, archbishop of Austria, will conduct services.

The body then will be taken to Hietzing cemetery for temporary burial. Kurt Schuschnigg, acting chancellor until Vice Chancellor Starhemberg returned to Vienna, will pronounce the principal eulogy there.

Police smashed another attempted Nazi putsch at the Austrian chancellory today, officials of the Heimwehr reported.

The government offices, where Acting Chancellor von Starhemberg is exercising a strong control of the military situation, were heavily fortified against the projected attack.

Machine guns bristled from its windows and heavily armed cordons of troops were thrown around it.

Police spies reported that 100 or more Nazis, disguised in Heimwehr uniforms, entered the inner Vienna district this morning, and that they intended to seize the chancellery and hold the cabinet prisoners, in another desperate attempt to win control of the government.

Many arrests followed discovery of the plot. All police and military contingents guarding the chancellery became suddenly active.

Meanwhile it was reported without confirmation that the new military court set up to try the rebels already had begun to function, and that eight of the supposed ringleaders in the assassination plot against Chancellor Dollfuss had been brought before it.

The police at Hallein, near the Lueg pass, denied reports that Lueg was in the hands of the Nazis.

TROOPS STILL IN CONTROL AT MINNEAPOLIS

Union drivers accepted the plan by a vote of 1866 to 147, but employers would have none of it.

A modified form of press censorship was established by the governor's proclamation, newspapers being forbidden to publish anything "defaming the state of Minnesota, or any member of the national guard in the field." The newspapers of Minneapolis and Hennepin county also were ordered to publish the proclamation for two successive days.

JUDGE WHO FLAYED ATTORNEY ATTACKED

LOS ANGELES, July 27.—(UP)—Presiding Judge Frank C. Collier, who severely criticized the speed with which Eleanor Wilson McAdoo obtained a divorce from U. S. Senator William Gibbs McAdoo, found himself the target of a rebuke today from McAdoo's law partner, Attorney William H. Neblett.

Moving to strike the jurist's remarks from the record, Neblett claimed the statement constituted contempt of court and violated the state bar act by disclosing disciplinary proceedings before the state bar, pending or anticipated against an attorney. The statement was further criticized on the ground it had no bearing on the divorce which was granted less than an hour after the suit was filed.

took him past almost every public works and relief project on the island and finally to the Fort Schofield barracks, where 8000 troops passed before him in review.

The president stood bare-headed in a light rain to watch the great military demonstration.

Honolulu came forward with everything it had to make the president's visit eventful yesterday. He saw native dances on the beach. He watched Samoans do their sword dance in the Mormon temple. He joined in college yells at a Harvard alumni picnic and received a mortar board and cap as souvenir of the occasion. He ate native Hawaiian food and heard music Kanakas had chanted for hundreds of years.

After a reception at the home of Governor Jos. Poindexter, Mr. Roosevelt returned late last night to the coral-pink Royal Hawaiian hotel, where he studied news reports of the world-shaking developments in Austria before he retired. He had no comment to make on the world developments.

GUN CLUB TRIAL OPENS AT BEACH

Following the selection of a jury this morning, the trial of the Cassadero Gun club opened today in the Huntington Beach justice court before Judge Chris P. Pann.

The gun club is charged with a violation of the county ordinance relative to wasting water from pumping wells by putting the water in duck ponds at the gun clubs.

Attorneys spent yesterday questioning jurors but failed to complete the task before evening. Attorney L. A. West is representing the gun club, and District Attorney S. B. Kaufman and Deputy Leo Friis the state.

CONSTRUCTION OF S. A. RIVER BRIDGE URGED

Extension of Ocean avenue from Flower street to North Main street, construction of a bridge across the Santa Ana river, and changing the name of the highway to Garden Grove boulevard was recommended yesterday by the Orange County Planning commission.

The recommendation goes to the board of supervisors and thence to the state highway commission for final action.

The resolution was presented to the commission by a committee of the Garden Grove Chamber of commerce, including H. C. Yokey, president; R. E. Johnson, secretary; J. C. Mitchell, E. J. Tobias, C. J. Clarke and L. W. Schauer.

Much inconvenience has been caused travelers by the lack of a bridge across the river, the road being closed during the winter when sand and water covered the roadway, making this route unusable, and by the abrupt ending of the street at Flower street a short distance north of Jack Fisher park.

Extension of the highway eastward to Main street, and construction of a suitable bridge across the river, it is felt, will prove of great value to the city and the motoring public. The work is proposed to be undertaken by the state highway commission.

A proposition for changing the name of West street and a part of Pearl street in Garden Grove to Oak street was referred to the street naming committee.

County Engineer Nat Neff reported for the budget committee that $1200 had been added to the proposed budget for 1934-35 for the purpose of supervision and materials to be used in making land use survey with SERA men. He also stated that request for 30 men to be furnished by the SERA had been given approval.

Consultant Tilton brought out further details of the proposed district and zoning ordinance, and asked the commission to decide as to the matter of architectural control and designing of buildings. It was decided to call upon the county architects' association for a committee from that body to meet with the planning commission at the next regular meeting in this connection.

Present at the meeting were Commissioners Thomson, Macklin, Halsell, Hillyard, Neff, Markel, Consultant Tilton and Supervisor W. C. Jerome.

MRS. REMSBERG IS CALLED BY DEATH

Mrs. Emma E. Remsberg, 74, passed away this morning at her home, 2033 North Main street. She had been a resident of Santa Ana for the past 32 years. Mrs. Remsberg was the widow of the late Oliver F. Remsberg.

Funeral services will be held Monday at 2 p. m. from the Church of the Messiah, with Smith and Tuthill in charge.

Mrs. Remsberg was born in England and came to this country in 1880. She came to Santa Ana in 1902.

Santa Ana has been chosen as the county headquarters for the Utopian Society of America. A meeting is to be held August 1 at the Temple theater, Third and Bush streets.

The meetings are open to members only, according to Warren's announcement.

HIGH SCHOOL POOL OPEN NEXT MONDAY

The swimming pool at Santa Ana High school will be open for use of the pubuic, beginning next Monday, it was announced today. The man and woman to be in charge of the pool have not as yet been selected, but they will be well qualified for their work, it was stated by R. R. Russick, director.

"Swimming is one of the best all round exercises and a useful art to learn," Russick said. "Properly practiced swimming will give one a smooth rounded form. It will develop elasticity of the muscles and will correct faulty posture. Swimming establishes in one a high degree of self reliance and courage."

The hours for swimming will be: Morning 10 to 12; afternoon 1 to 5; evening, 7 to 9. Evenings will be reserved for adults.

Firemen answered a call to the home of W. W. Jones, 108 Hickory street, at 11:15 o'clock this morning, but a small fire in the basement was extinguished before their arrival. Jones had been cleaning the cellar steps and a pilot light of a water heater ignited the fumes and caused a small blaze.

FIND BODY OF UNIDENTIFIED MAN ON BEACH

Possibility that the body of an unidentified man found early today on the beach at Laguna Beach might be Fred C. Caoper, 7711 Canard street, Los Angeles, owner of the small sailboat "Snowbird," missing since yesterday from Newport harbor, was being checked today by Coroner Earl R. Abbey, who ordered an autopsy on the body to be performed at the Laguna Beach funeral home at 3 p. m. today.

Richard and William Rosameff, Rosemead boys, who have been vacationing at Laguna Beach found the body at 7:15 a. m. today at the end of Anita street. It was at the edge of the water, clad only in necktie, underwear and one sock. A blue coat, with a pin stripe, was found about 10 feet away. It bore the label of a Los Angeles tailor, L. Goldford and Son.

The man was about 50, five feet eight inches in height and about 130 pounds in weight, with brown hair and eyes, and a prominent Roman nose. There was an upper plate in the mouth and three lower teeth were missing.

The possibility that he had been aboard a capsized boat and had partially undressed, while trying to swim ashore, was considered in view of the report that the "Snowbird," a small sailboat with a green sail, had been missing since yesterday. Newport police had asked Laguna Beach authorities to keep a lookout for the boat.

GAINS RELEASE BY PAYING $35 FINE

Posting a fine of $35 with jailers, Charles McLaughlin, 26, 618 South Claudina street, was released from the county jail last evening after being committed at 10:20 a. m. from Placentia to serve 17 1-2 days for violation of the city handbill ordinance.

McLaughlin was booked by Chief Gus Barnes of Placentia, following pronouncement of sentence by Judge S. C. Harmony. The defendant was found guilty on Tuesday by a jury after it was alleged that he was distributing Communist literature in the city.

ARGUMENTS IN CASPARI CASE TO END TODAY

Closing arguments in the trial of A. M. Caspari, charged with conducting and maintaining a saloon at the Hof Brau cafe, were scheduled for the afternoon session today, following the conclusion of testimony at noon in the police court.

Over the strenuous protests of Defense Attorney Alex Nelson, City Attorney Clyde Downing succeeded in having A. F. Maendele, special investigator, relate details of his observations on other dates than that charged in the complaint, as part of the rebuttal testimony. At this time, Maendele told of conditions of drunkenness, disorderly conduct and the serving of liquor without food in violation of the state law.

The final witness for the state was Carl Edgar, beer distributor, who testified that he furnished beer for the Hof Brau, all of which was either four per cent, or 3.2 per cent, and above one-half of one per cent, the legal limit for non-intoxicating beverages.

Nelson questioned J. M. Hohan, Robert Stassin and Howard O'Neal concerning their instructions and duties as employes in the Hof Brau. They said they had instructions to serve food with beers and wines, and that meals were served from the kitchen. Caspari also took the stand and told of the weekly consumption of food, and also that the law was not being violated.

Both Maendele and J. N. Hernandez, another investigator, yesterday testified that they saw considerable drunkenness, disorderly conduct and many young people in the Hof Brau on various occasions. They said that intoxicated persons staggered from table to table, fell over the backs of chairs, and reeled on the dance floor.

Maendele said he saw one man pour out drinks from a flask and that food was not served when drinks were ordered and served.

Harry Holmes, special police officer employed in the cafe, said he worked Saturday nights, denied that beer was sold without food, and said there were only occasional disturbances or drunken patrons.

A. F. Granas, manager of the Coast Beverage company, was called by Downing to tell of the alcoholic content of Pisco punch, which was allegedly sold at the Hof Brau. The beverage by government label, contains more than one-half of one per cent of alcohol, he testified.

Members of the jury are John W. Norton, C. F. Millen, P. H. Norton, Charles E. Boyd, E. H. Cloyes, Gertrude E. Minor, R. V. Cox, Ella Strassberger, C. E. Jasper, Alta R. Cook, Dorothy Pitman, and Alice Lippincott.

B. Z. McKINNEY
— for —
District Attorney

We take this opportunity to endorse B. Z McKinney as a candidate for the office of District Attorney of Orange County, feeling that we can perform thereby a service to the people by bringing before them his exceptional qualifications to serve them in the important task of Law enforcement.

We have the utmost regard for his ability, experience and integrity as a lawyer and citizen, eager as well as able to preserve respect for our laws. We are confident that the gambling interests, for example, would get short shrift were he in the District Attorney's office.

Both of us are former District Attorneys of this county, familiar with the problems of that office. We do not hesitate to say that B. Z. McKinney has both the determination and the capacity of giving Orange County that aggressive and clean-cut type of law enforcement which it particularly needs at the present time.

McKINNEY HITS DOUBLE INCOME FOR DEPUTIES

"One of the paramount issues in the campaign for the office of district attorney, aside from the issue of enforcing the gambling laws in this county, is the question of double incomes in the district attorney's office, and its relation to law enforcement," declared B. Z. McKinney, district attorney candidate, in a statement here today.

"I am convinced that one reason contributing to the freedom of gamblers to prey upon Orange county citizens, is the evil of private practice among deputy district attorneys.

"The voters should not permit their attention to be diverted from the gambling issue and this contributing cause, by efforts to raise a false issue of whatever description.

"The double income is wrong economically, but its greater wrong to the general public is its weakening effect upon efficiency of the district attorney's office. Deputy district attorneys should not be permitted to occupy their time with their private cases. The taxpayers of this county pay them full-time salaries and have a right to expect full-time service in the prosecution of criminals."

BIDS SUBMITTED FOR PARKER DAM

That actual construction of Parker dam, important unit of the Colorado river aqueduct, may be under way within 30 days was indicated following the opening of bids Thursday on the building of this structure. Bids were opened at the Los Angeles office of the United States Reclamation bureau, under whose direction the dam is to be erected.

Six Companies, Inc., the construction firm which is now building Boulder dam for the federal government, submitted the lowest total bid for the day and the diversion tunnels which will bypass the waters of the Colorado river while the job is under way. Six Companies' bid totaled $4,239,834, including $1,100,841 for the tunnels and $3,138,993 for the dam itself.

In addition to Six Companies three other firms submitted bids to the Reclamation bureau. Southwestern Contracting Group, Inc. bidding on both the dam and the tunnel, submitted a figure of $5,496,073.10, including $1,283,017.50 for the tunnels and $4,213,055.60 for the dam. The West Construction company bid $887,910 for the tunnels alone, and S. S. Magoffin Company, Inc., submitted a figure of $948,177, also for the tunnels alone.

FIST FIGHT BETWEEN MAYOR OF SAN CLEMENTE, OLE HANSON ENLIVENS STATE PARK PICNIC

An impromptu fistic argument between Ole Hanson, founder of San Clemente, and Mayor A. T. Smith of that city, was an unheralded event on a program at the Spanish Village yesterday, during an outdoor picnic at the state park of visiting soldiers from March field.

The unexpected diversion came during a speech by Hanson in which he demanded that the State Park board obey the city ordinance requiring that all structures in the city be of the Spanish type of architecture.

The speech apparently excited the ire of Mayor A. T. Smith, who interrupted the speech and called Hanson an agitator and a Communist, finally forcing his way to the platform. Jumping on the table, he struck Hanson twice, pushing him off the platform.

Hanson took off his glasses and and struck the mayor twice in return, the force of his blows knocking the mayor into the crowd of soldiers and citizens, it was reported.

When the mayor retreated, Hanson resumed his speech and demanded that the law should be enforced against the powerful as well as the weak. A resolution was then passed by unanimous vote demanding the resignation of the mayor, it was said today.

Hanson said in part: "Law and order must be the rule. We have or should have, government of law and not of men. The law must be enforced against communist and patriot alike; against the little citizen who breaks the ordinances as well as the state of California. Right over there, the State Park board is allowing the construction of a frame shack in this beautiful State park. The ordinances of the city state plainly that only Spanish type white residences with tile roof can be built.

"The city mayor standing there has allowed this to proceed. If government wants laws obeyed, they must obey their own laws."

It was at this point that the scramble took place.

Hanson, after finishing his speech, sent a telegram demanding that Governor Merriam's Park board obey the city law as well as the humblest citizen.

In an interview Hanson said: "Mayor Smith simply lost his head. When one is in the wrong he loses his temper. He resented the fact that I told the assemblage that a light was burning in front of his house without him paying therefor, and also resented the fact that I desired to protect the city I built.

"When I hear from the governor, we shall know if the law applies to all or just a few."

Hanson, a guest at the picnic, was introduced to the crowd by Councilman Von Bon Horst. Hanson launched into an attack on the council and mayor for permitting construction of the CCC camp barracks in the state park, which he charged was in violation of city building regulations, and accusing city officials of not enforcing the law.

Summer Arrives; 94 This Morning

Yes, summer has arrived, but even at that, it isn't so hot.

At 11:30 o'clock today it was only 94 by the Knox and Stout thermometer. A year ago today it was 92.

It was rather warm yesterday, to be sure, with a high point of 99 being reached between 2:30 and 3:30 o'clock in the afternoon. But a similar temperature was recorded one day early in the spring, when a summer day arrived prematurely.

"HANDY ANDY" AT WEST COAST TODAY

Hailed as the greatest picture in which Will Rogers ever appeared, "Handy Andy," his latest film play, opens a week's engagement at the West Coast theater today.

Arrangements have been made by Manager Lester J. Fountain to run matinees every day starting at 2 p. m. and continuous shows will be screened Sunday. These arrangements were made to assure everyone a chance to see the picture, Fountain said.

After deserting his drug store business under protest and at the goading of his wife, Peggy Wood, who wants him to play, Rogers starts playing with a vengeance. His playing results in what are said to be the funniest scenes the noted comedian ever appeared in.

Selected short subjects which show with "Handy Andy" include a new cartoon, "The Toy Shoppe," a sport reel, "The Fox Hunt," a screen song, "Love Thy Neighbor," a musical novelty with Abe Lyman and his famous band in "Tin Hat Harmony," and World News events.

5000 COPIES OF BOOKLET ORDERED

The booklet "I, Assemblyman from Orange County, and How I Supported Upton Sinclair," written by Thomas E. Pickerill, Santa Ana attorney and writer, is having a wide circulation throughout the state, according to word received today from the local EPIC headquarters.

Yesterday Pickerill received from the Sinclair headquarters at Redlands an order for 5000 copies of the work, to be distributed free to the homes in the cities of Redlands and Colton, in conjunction with the assembly campaign from that district.

The author of the booklet is not a candidate for the assembly, but prepared the imaginary story of the campaign for the state legislature to constitute what he terms "a companion story to Upton Sinclair's 'I, Governor of California.'" The work contains an endorsement from Sinclair and has been approved by the state campaign committee. Locally the booklet is being used in the EPIC movement in the interest of the candidacy for Herbert F. Kenny for state assembly.

DEMOCRATIC RALLY AT BEACH TONIGHT

HUNTINGTON BEACH, July 27.—A Democratic rally will be held at the Memorial auditorium this evening at 7:30, to which all voters are invited, it was announced today. The principal subject will be the Roosevelt recovery program's progress and accomplishments to date, it was said, with James L. Davis of Santa Ana, Democratic candidate for congress, as one of the principal speakers. Preceding the rally, a group of local Democrats will hold a dinner at the Golden Bear cafe at 6:30.

Fully grown grizzly bears weigh from 500 to 1000 pounds, yet their cubs weigh as little as one pound at birth.

WILKIE DECLARES EFFICIENCY NEEDED

Attacking political influences in law enforcement agencies and policies seeking to perpetuate office holders in office rather than impartial enforcement of laws, Capt. Don Wilkie, former U. S. Secret Service agent and candidate for sheriff, addressed meetings of the Fullerton Round Table and the Anaheim Lions club today.

The voters today are demanding efficiency on the part of law enforcement officials, and are voting on qualifications for the job rather than on glad-handing propensities, the speaker said.

He charged that many officers, fearing to enforce the law because it would mean a loss of votes, sit idly by until the public becomes aroused and private individuals make complaints to enforce action, whereas it is the clear duty of such officials not only to investigate, but to take the lead in bringing complaints and enforcing the law.

Motives For Attacks Upon The Register Exposed

REGISTER'S OPPOSITION TO COMMUNISM OFTEN MADE KNOWN THROUGH EDITORIALS

The position of The Register and its publisher in respect to Communism, or any other "ism" that would employ force and violence, or would attempt to undermine law or society, is too well known to be affected by untruths and misrepresentations in Orange county.

For many years the publisher of The Register has not only spoken openly and frankly upon all economic questions, but his views have been presented upon almost every phase of these questions.

REGISTER'S OPPOSITION

We have given expression to our views primarily through our editorial columns. Neither friend nor foe has ever accused us of either indecision or ambiguity or equivocation. The volumes of these editorials are here in our office. The files of The Register are here under our roof.

And we challenge any man to find one solitary word that by any mental gymnastics could be even remotely twisted into a claim that we stand for any man or group that would achieve its ends by force or violence or the overthrow of government.

We have written upon this very question many times, and we are herewith printing a recent editorial published in our paper of Saturday, April 28th, of this year.

Read it and then ask any of these men, who are trying to slander our institution and break down the influence of The Register and what it is standing for, to produce any utterance The Register publisher has made, or any word that has ever been printed by him that is contrary to this editorial:

THE ABSURDITY OF THE COMMUNISTS' REASONING

If there were real ground for fear, because of Communism, the way to meet it would be to show the false basis of the Communist political organization, as well as to show a better way to meet the difficulties of our social life, which gives the Communist his opportunity to challenge anyone.

We note that there are those who claim that their object in life is to fight the "red radicals," as they call them. But chiefly they fight them by denunciation and not by argument. Denunciation convinces no one. It may arouse passion, but it leaves intelligence cold.

We have just been looking through a pamphlet that is published by the "Workers Library Publishers." It is being distributed, we understand, by actual members of the Communist party. There are many things of interest in it. In a chapter headed "Building the Party," we have found some striking statements. This is one of its sentences:

"While preparing for ILLEGALITY, the party must at the same time struggle against every attack upon its LEGAL rights through the development of mass struggles."

Take that sentence—and its content. The party acknowledges that it proposes to defy law and accomplish its purpose by other methods than legal ones. In other words, it is an organization of force. It does not propose to appeal to the intellect, to the reason or the judgment. It proposes to compel by strong power. It acknowledges this and then says: "While preparing for that we must defend ourselves against every attack upon our LEGAL rights."

This show the hypocritical and the pernicious character of its program. It would use, for the protection of its individual members, the very institutions which it would destroy in endeavoring to accomplish its purpose. It fails to recognize that all problems really are of the mind, and if the mind of the people is wrong, and is not changed, the problem remains unsolved. They depend upon force. Force is war. War never settled any question. It cannot settle questions, in the very nature of them.

You may, by force, prevent a man or an animal from doing certain bad things. But as long as he wants to do them, the problem is still there. The man can have the facts so presented that he doesn't want to do them, because he has the power of reason. The animal cannot. More than that, one can never even achieve what he is after by force, unless he has the major portion and the greater power, which means the majority, or at least the control of the means of force. In our country, this is only possible through majority action. And when one gets the majority, he can gain his ends without force. There is no basis upon which the program of the Communists, in this respect, can be defended.

This is what forces it into such foolish, inconsistent statements as we have just quoted. Let us paraphrase their statement: "While preparing for the time when we can accomplish our ends by force, we must protect ourselves from an attack by force, through the appeal to the law." In spite of this, we believe that even they should be protected by law in all the rights that any individual should have under our constitution and law. This is not for their good, however, but for ours. For if we should permit any man to be denied the protection which the law affords, we cannot insure the protection of the law to the rest of us.

The only way those of us, who believe that the only method to achieve ends is through legal and constitutional methods, can be assured of the protection of the law, which we desire, is to be sure that its mantle of protection is thrown upon every other individual. This is the only insurance we have of protection of property, person and life.

We should be interested to know on what theory of equity or ethics the Communist, in this sentence, asks the protection of the very institutions which it is his purpose to destroy.

IZ ZAT SO?

By STRIPPED BARE
(Not Bugs Nor Max)

PLACENTIA, July 27.—(Delayed Dispatch)—Your correspondent is a little late with his report of the great Communist trial. He got hysterics, too, and has been a little slower than the others in recovering. Please excuse it, and we won't let it happen again.

• • •

Anyway, probably nothing like that ever will happen again. Don't talk to us about Laurel and Hardy; nor Amos and Andy, for that matter. Tom and Soppy have 'em all tied to a stake.

There was a big crowd on hand. Some orange growers, and a lot of chamber of commerce boosters, which seemed strange to us, as this was police court, not the treasurer's office. Somebody told us they were getting ready for the banquet. "Gosh," we muttered, looking at the Communist, "They aren't going to eat him, are they?"

• • •

We knew they expected Tom to tear him to peices, but he scarcely looked edible, even shredded, and with sugar and cream on him "Oh, well," said our informant, "you have to be prepared to eat anything at a chamber of commerce dinner. These boys are used to it."

• • •

"Who's them fellers along the back of the room?" we asked him, pointing to a row of large, puffy chaps, with big jaws and small eyes. "Oh, them. Them's Tom's crowd. They got scads of cash," he added enviously. "What they doing here?" we wanted to know. "Oh," he replied, "they came to meet Sloppy."

"It's Soppy, not Sloppy," we corrected him.

Meanwhile, Tom and Soppy were talking earnestly, and it looked like they might be mapping out the prosecution of the case, so your correspondent edged closer to get maybe a few tips on what was coming.

But they saw us, and dropped their voices. So we sat looking around, and things were pretty dull, and finally, doggone it, we fell asleep.

Well, that was that. We missed all the trial. So we haven't any report of it to send you. The only thing we've got is our dream, and since we've got to send you something, we might as well send you the dream. Here is what we dreamed Tom and Soppy said to each other:

"Thanks, Tom, for getting me this chance to make a speech and do some flag waving," Soppy was saying. "Things are getting pretty hot for me, and this may help. You've done a swell job of getting attention away from the gambling business by doing a lot of yelling about Reds, so it may be that the voters can be foozled yet. I'm much obliged."

• • •

"Boy, I owe you something, any-

To The Voters Of Orange County

An attorney of Anaheim, who is also employed by the city of Placentia, has made a Roman holiday of a misdemeanor committed by a misguided youth, who claims he is a Communist. He staged the affair really as a political proposition, in order to give his friend and comrade, the district attorney, an opportunity to make a speech and to misrepresent the attitude of the Santa Ana Register.

Mr. McFadden, the attorney in question, and the district attorney knew full well, as lawyers, that the attempt to make The Register "Communistic" was utterly silly and absurd. They knew full well that The Register and its publisher are opposed to force and violence and the overthrow of government, but they were grasping at straws and trying to make an issue against the paper and its editor. Why?

It was because of what The Register stands for as a publication in Orange county, and what those interests stand for, that this attorney has been representing in Orange county. The Register has been taking an open, frank position against law violations, particularly against public gambling, against bootlegging, and, incidentally, it has been against any special privilege being granted by politicians to the influential, at the sacrifice of the general good.

MR. McFADDEN, WHO STAGED THIS SHOW ON BEHALF OF HIS FRIEND, "SOPPY" KAUFMAN, HAS BEEN REPEATEDLY THE LEGAL REPRESENTATIVE AND ATTORNEY FOR THE ELEMENTS IN THIS COUNTY THAT THE REGISTER HAS HAD TO FIGHT, AND HE AND THOSE WHO HIRE HIM FOR THESE PURPOSES, HAVE RECOGNIZED THAT IF THEY COULD BREAK DOWN THE INFLUENCE AND POWER OF THE REGISTER, THEY COULD "GET AWAY" WITH THEIR MACHINATIONS UNVEXED AND UNTROUBLED BY AN AROUSED PUBLIC OPINION.

WHAT McFADDEN REPRESENTS

Mr. McFadden has been repeatedly the attorney for bootleggers.

He has been the attorney for the gambling interests.

He was the attorney for the gambling devices in Orange county, and actually obtained an injunction against the sheriff to prevent him from performing his duty in rooting out the slot machines.

When it was found that a moral pervert had been abusing little girls in Santa Ana, so that the motherhood of this city was aroused, as it has not been on any other proposition for 10 years, it was this same attorney who appeared on his behalf, using every device known to the law to protect and defend him.

We do not say that no attorney in Santa Ana would have taken this case; we do not say there is no other attorney who would take it in Orange county, but we do say that the attorney, who has been the main legal stay of the bootleggers, the gamblers and who tied up the sheriff from carrying on his work as sheriff, as far as the gamblers were concerned, was the attorney who was called upon and accepted the job.

Nor was this case of the pervert an isolated instance of its kind. Some time earlier a man charged with molesting a little school girl at Westminster had been before the court. His defender was this same Mr. McFadden. Not content with the court defense, he brought suit for damages against the sheriff, claiming false arrest, the sort of maneuver that tends to break down and intimidate law enforcement.

"PROTECTION" IS OBJECTIVE

He is an attorney in Anaheim. It was in Anaheim where practically open gambling and an indecent show were put on without let or hindrance, and when The Register was "tipped off" by the man who was on the inside, The Register was told that high county authorities had pledged protection for that gambling and indecent party.

AN AROUSED ELECTORATE IN ORANGE COUNTY IS DEMANDING BETTER THINGS. THE REGISTER HAS BEEN UNCOVERING THIS FLAGRANT AND CHALLENGING AND IMPUDENT VIOLATION OF OUR GAMBLING ACT AND THE WHOLE MISERABLE FRATERNITY, WHICH IS TRYING TO GET ITS INCOME FROM THE HONEST LABOR OF THE PEOPLE, IS AROUSED AND ANGRY AT THE REGISTER FOR THESE EXPOSURES AND FOR ITS OPPOSITION.

They see the day approaching when the electorate will place in the office of the district attorney, a man who is more honest in determination to make Orange county law-abiding and to protect the county from these ravaging wolves, who are no better in the manner, in which they get their money, than common thieves.

DISTRICT ATTORNEY HIS PAL

So here was the opportunity to make the combination. Here was the opportunity for this "special pleader" for this group to do some "hot" and "fast" work for his faithful friend, the district attorney.

So this man who has succeeded in protecting his clients, possibly, beyond the powers of other attorneys to do it, stages a performance, brings in the district attorney, who is supposed to be on the other side in these controversies, who is supposed to be his opponent in these activities, and metaphorically putting his arms around him, placing his generous and expansive hand upon his shoulder, this man representing, as an attorney, this underworld element in Orange county, in this manner places upon the district attorney the stamp of his unqualified approval.

He declares: Here is a man who is four-square. In effect he says: This is the man whom I, the attorney for this group, want elected district attorney. This is the man who, when he is district attorney, and on the other side of the case, enables me to tie up the sheriff from doing his duty, through an injunction.

McFADDEN'S MESSAGE

NOTING MR. McFADDEN'S ACTIONS, HIS STAGING OF THE POLITICAL SHOW AT PLACENTIA, HIS INTRODUCTION AND ENDORSEMENT OF KAUFMAN, HIS TYPE OF CLIENTELE, AND THE INTERESTS HE HAS BEEN PAID TO PROTECT FROM THE LAW, THERE IS NO DIFFICULTY IN GETTING HIS MESSAGE TO THE PEOPLE OF ORANGE COUNTY AS CLEARLY AS IF HE HAD USED THESE IDENTICAL WORDS:

"THIS IS THE MAN (KAUFMAN) WHO IS SUPPOSED TO BE ELECTED TO DRIVE FROM THE HAUNTS OF DECENT SOCIETY THE VERY CLASS OF PEOPLE WHOM I AM DEFENDING.

"'THIS IS THE MAN WHOM I WOULD PREFER ABOVE ALL MEN TO HAVE ELECTED.

"I HAVE BEEN REASONABLY SUCCESSFUL WITH THIS MAN AS DISTRICT ATTORNEY.

"I MIGHT NOT BE ABLE TO GET AN INJUNCTION, TIEING UP THE SHERIFF FROM TAKING OVER GAMBLING DEVICES, IF MR. McKINNEY WERE DISTRICT ATTORNEY, SO I URGE YOU TO VOTE FOR MR. KAUFMAN, THE 'FOUR-SQUARE MAN,' THE 'FOUR' CONSISTING OF ME, MY CLIENTS, MR. KAUFMAN, AND AGAINST THE REGISTER.

"MR. KAUFMAN IS OPPOSED BY THE SANTA ANA REGISTER, THE INSTITUTION THAT IS FIGHTING THE TRAFFIC IN WHICH MY CLIENTS ARE ENGAGED. I WILL GRANT MR. McKINNEY IS A GOOD LAWYER, BUT HE IS IN FAVOR OF THE POSITION WHICH THE REGISTER TAKES UPON THIS QUESTION. VOTE FOR MR. KAUFMAN AND YOU WILL HAVE MY UNDYING THANKS AND GRATITUDE."

PROTECTING GAMBLER CLIENTS

We are not urging, understand, that Mr. McFadden shouldn't do what he is doing as an attorney. We are not claiming that he isn't looking after his clients' interest in his activity for the district attorney.

We are not claiming, for a moment, that his clients should complain at the manner in which he is endeavoring to get the district attorney back into office. We are just pointing out that as an attorney, representing those elements which are subversive to the public good, his leadership on behalf of his clients is naturally contrary to the good of those elements in society that realize that there is a terrible undermining and destructive force being carried on by those in whose interest Mr. McFadden makes his appeal. And what is for their interest is against the interest of the county.

The voters of this county cannot be fooled.

GAMBLERS FOR KAUFMAN

This is the issue in Orange county. All the men who are intelligent, concerning the political situation in this county, see instantly, in summing up what communities will be carred by Mr. Kaufman for district attorney, begin with Seal Beach and declare that he will get that without any question by a very large percentage, as it is the Monte Carlo of Orange county, and defying law with constancy, and has been for weeks.

They declare that he will probably carry Newport Beach, but not by as big a majority as he will Seal Beach. For there are more people in Newport Beach who realize that the gambling fraternity is robbing the people of money that should go to the merchants and to the landlords, and that people can only stay a day or two in frequent cases, because of this robbery, when they had money enough to begin with to spend a period.

They say he will carry Newport Beach, however, with the aid of this fraternity, by a vote of possibly 60 to 40.

They declare that this man McFadden's influence will probably bring a majority of the voters of Anaheim to him, with all that Mr McFadden represents. And elsewhere, wherever this group is sufficiently numerous, it is declared that votes will be "stacked up" that way.

MONEY FOR CANDIDATES

The whole racketeering element is happy and rejoices whenever the Register and its publishers are abused. There are newspapers which are expressing the abuse and hatred which that unsavory outfit feels. We know that that group is putting money into this campaign for candidates.

We do not say that they are hiring these newspapers to make these assaults. These newspapers and men interested, like Mr. McFadden, may be doing this for nothing and boarding themselves.

But verily, some way or other, they are receiving or expect their reward.

But let it be known that there are striking and marked exceptions to this attitude of sychophancy to these interests among the newspapers. The exception among the dailies is that of the Orange News.

You can examine for yourself and see your own weekly paper as to its attitude in abusing The Register, in proportion as The Register is exposing the combination of gambling and bootlegging in the county.

MR. KAUFMAN IS WELCOME TO THAT KIND OF SUPPORT THAT STAGED THAT SPECTACLE AS A POLITICAL STUNT OVER IN PLACENTIA. IF MR. McFADDEN HAD STOOD FOR EITHER MR. GUY OR MR. McKINNEY IN THIS CAMPAIGN, WE WOULD HAVE HAD SOME DOUBT IN SPITE OF THE FACT THAT THE REGISTER'S REPRESENTATIVES IN CONTACTING PROFESSIONAL GAMBERS AT SEAL BEACH AND ELSEWHERE, FOUND NONE OF THEM FOR GUY OR McKINNEY.

RESENT REGISTER'S INDEPENDENCE

There has been a constant effort to break down the influence of The Register before the people of Orange county. The politicians are desperately opposed to independence. They desire that a paper shall publish that which is agreed upon by a bunch of men who are trying to run the politics of the county and who are in league with the elements that are preying upon its citizens.

The desperation of this gambling, bootlegging, racketeering outfit to break down the influence of an independent journal in Orange county is now patent to everyone who is capable of reading.

AT DISTRICT ATTORNEY'S DOOR

The real liability for lax law enforcement, for permitting criminal conditions in any county lies right at the door of the district attorney. With a district attorney able, determined, devoted to the interest of the protection of his county, with a sheriff who is reasonably fair upon the question, he is bound to succeed.

WITH THE BEST-INTENTIONED SHERIFF IN THE WORLD, LAW VIOLATORS CANNOT BE BROUGHT TO BOOK, CONVICTED AND SENTENCED WITH AN INDIFFERENT AND PASSIVE DISTRICT ATTORNEY, SAYING NOTHING ABOUT ONE WHO IS DEPENDING FOR HIS ELECTION UPON THE VOTES OF THE VERY ONES WHOM HE SHOULD DRIVE, AS ENEMIES OF THE REPUBLIC, FROM THE HAUNTS OF HONEST MEN.

Recently we spent a few weeks in the east. When we returned, we were told on every hand about the licentious and flagrant manner in which the gamblers were carrying on at Seal Beach. We could not believe it possible that they had become so bold and impudent.

We sent representatives of the paper there and found it was as open as at Tia Juana or Monte Carlo.

By constantly turning on the searchlight and arousing the people to the desperate condition, the places were forced to close for a period. Why must conditions reach such a point as this?

WHY ENFORCEMENT FAILS

One of the reasons why the 18th amendment failed to the degree it did was because men in sympathy with the liquor traffic were selected to enforce the law. The man whom the law-abiding mothers and fathers, wives and husbands, can depend upon to sustain the reputation of this county, as one of the finest counties for home-seekers in this country, is the man whom the elements that are trying to break down the bulwarks of law and order in the county want defeated.

We heard one time of a man who had a large family and an extremely small income. They seemed to be getting along in a pretty fair way. His neighbors asked him finally how he did it. His reply was: "I find what each one of my children doesn't like, and then I give him all he can eat of it."

THE BEST DOSE THAT CAN BE GIVEN THOSE WHO WOULD UNDERMINE SOCIETY, DESTROY ITS INSTITUTIONS AND RUIN ITS WORTH IS TO FIND OUT WHAT IT IS THEY DON'T WANT, AND GIVE IT TO THEM IN LARGE AND COPIOUS QUANTITIES. THEIR CRY IS: "WE DON'T WANT McKINNEY." THE REMEDY IS PLAIN. GIVE THEM THE DOSE.

FACTS ON ARREST OF COMMUNIST FOR DISTRIBUTING LITERATURE IN CITY OF PLACENTIA OUTLINED

We have ignored, personally, the stories that have come out concerning the trial of this Communist for distributing literature in Placentia.

The publisher of The Register knew nothing of the episode until after it had taken place. The attorney for this man asked two men connected with The Register to sign the bond for this misdemeanor, and in each case it was signed without knowing who the man was, what he was charged with, or his political ideas. They signed this, as they have similar bonds before for the clients of this attorney, and as we would ourselves sign a bond by application by any reputable attorney for his client, for the amount of $50.00 for a misdemeanor.

FACTS ON ARREST

The attorney said that when he was called into the case, he had thought that the man had been distributing copies of The Register. The news dispatches emanating from Placentia said that he made some statement indicating that the man had worked for The Register. We do not know what was said.

We only know that this man, nor no other man of his ideas concerning force and violence and the overthrow of government, has ever worked for The Register or has ever done anything for The Register, except to make it more difficult for The Register and all others who believe in correcting the evils of society by democratic methods to do so.

The only thing that The Register has insisted on has been that those people who do recognize the evils of society, and are trying to aid the distressed and the unemployed, and who are trying to do it, such as President Roosevelt and our various philanthropic agencies, shall not be charged with being Communist simply because they are trying to help.

We further maintain that the dangers to our civilization and our system come infinitely more from the criminal class, who are finding it profitable to carry on their criminality and are able to employ attorneys to defend and protect them, and to have newspapers "smear" those who are fighting the law violator, than there is from an insignificant group of misguided and nondescript youth, who, penniless and helpless, are carrying on so foolishly as this man was in Placentia.

If the Communists ever get to the point where it is profitable for them to racketeer, when they are numerous enough to have votes, they will then find lawyers to protect them and newspapers to defend them.. We believe, however, that more can be gained by teaching even those people that America stands for law, it stands for order, it stands for equity, it stands for impartiality in the application of law.

POLICE SEEK MAN WHO HURT PHOTOGRAPHER

FULLERTON, July 27.—Police as yet have not found George Lister of Fullerton, against whom a newspaper photographer, Tommy Welles, has filed charges of assault and battery and damage to property.

The complaint grew out of an attempt on the part of Welles, photographer of Los Angeles, to take a picture of Mrs. Josephine Gray, as she came from Judge Halsey I. Spence's court Tuesday evening. She, along with Lister, had been defendants in a suit brought by her daughter, Miss Josephine Wright of Hollywood, on a charge of disposing of a dog belonging to Miss Wright. the jury granted the judgment and awarded her $275 damages.

As the photographer tried to get a picture of Mrs. Gray, Lister jumped on him, and according to the complaint, injured him and destroyed, in part, the camera. He will be arraigned when he is found, police said.

WOMAN RELEASED AS MAN CHARGED WITH OPERATING DISORDERLY ESTABLISHMENT

FULLERTON, July 27.—Mrs. F. C. Richter, charged with operating a disorderly house at Placentia, was found not guilty of the charge when it was determined late yesterday in court here that she was not proprietress of the business place in question.

Mrs. Richter of Corona was arrested by Chief of Police Gus Barnes after the officer had arrested one man in the Richter restaurant for cutting the throat of Manual Tafolla on July 1. The complaint issued was for arrest of F. C. Richter, and the defense attorney, Harry Westover of Santa Ana, brought evidence that Mrs Richter was not the proprietor of the restaurant, and that neither is she manager.

Near the close of the afternoon, after the defense was presented, the judge issued a warrant for the arrest of F. C. Richter, who had been shown to be proprietor, and for Lasaro Ayala, manager of the restaurant on West Santa Fe avenue, who were arraigned, and pleaded not guilty to the charge of running a "notorious, disreputable house, where rioutous and disorderly conduct takes place." The date for the jury trial was set for August 16 at 9 a. m., and bail was set at $100 each.

The state placed Gus Barnes, police officer, on the stand first, and he testified that on the particular night in question, July 1, from 30 to 40 people were in the restaurant, and that two-thirds were intoxicated. Tafolla was placed on the stand, and said he had merely entered the cafe to get his friend to take him home, and that the friend, who was drunk, had cut his throat to prevent it.

Barnes also testified that of the six such places on West Santa Fe avenue, the Richter place was noisiest.

On cross-examination, it was shown by Barnes that the order for arrest was not issued for Mrs. Richter alone ,but for Mr. and Mrs. Richter, and the defense showed that all licenses, and the license from the state for sales of liquors, was issued to Mr. Richter.

Many guests of the restaurant, and many "character" witnesses were presented to testify as to the character of the restaurant and of the proprietor, and that Richter and Ayala employed and discharged help, while Mrs. Richter merely carried out Richter's orders, while he was sick.

Ralph Pantuso, deputy officer, testified as to undue noise and said he had stopped fights and taken drunks home from the place.

Other testimony was presented by Joe Simon, who said the noise worried his mother, who lived near. The defense brought out that Simon owned buildings where liquors are sold, running in opposition with the Richter place.

"Starting on your vacation? Listen!"

"If you've any questions about the place you're visiting, do what I did.

"Stop at a Shell service station and see their Finger-Tip Travel Information Book! It lists hotels and resorts—shows where the fishing is—tells just what to see and do in that neck of the woods.

"And when you get to a strange city, be sure and get a Shell Metropolitan Map. I've used them in Los Angeles, San Francisco, Portland and Seattle, and they sure help. In the smaller cities, you will find Shell In-an'-Out Maps mighty handy, too.

"As to state highway maps, Shell's are in a class by themselves! They give accumulated mileage figures; spot lakes, streams, beaches, national parks; and even give census figures of all towns!

"Another thing I found along Highways 99 and 101 (and only at Shell service stations) are their Auto Cabin Directories. Those Shell people certainly haven't overlooked a thing!"

TRUCK DRIVERS WIN GOODRICH SAFETY AWARD

Orval Lyon, Goodrich dealer, made the presentation of emblems and buttons. The company operates in excess of 40 trucks among the four large distributing warehouses and 43 cash and carry warehouses throughout Southern California. The company has about 320 employes with an annual payroll exceeding $400,000. The Santa Ana payroll is more than $7500 monthly, according to Manager Ben Manker.

The company has operated for the past 22 years and sells solely on a wholesale basis.

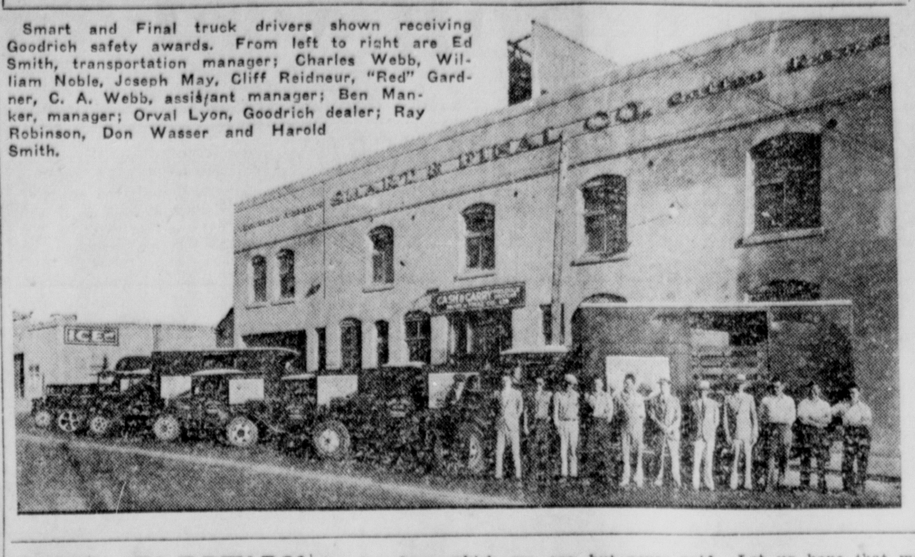

The Goodrich safety campaign for truck and bus operators is open to every driver in America, with a silver medal being given for the first six months without an accident and a gold medal after one year, according to Lyon.

ASKS ELECTION OF MAN WHO IS AGAINST WARS

Stating that "the peace of the world is menaced as certainly, tonight, as it was 20 years ago on the eve of the World war," Russell Stroup, candidate for Congress from the 19th district, speaking at a political rally last night in La Habra, called upon the voters to "cast their vote for peace."

Reminding those present that should the critical situation in Austria develop into a European conflict the decision as to whether or not America will become involved rests with the next Congress, Stroup stressed the necessity of sending to Congress men who understand the international situation and the measures which are necessary to insure the neutrality of the United States.

"It is amazing to me," he stated, "that in a world crisis charged with dynamite the candidates for Congress who ask for your support should appear to be blissfully unaware of anything beyond the confines of their own district. It seems incredible that I should be the only candidate who offers to the people a program which deals with the issue of war and peace so vital to every mother every wife, every man among us. Not even the question of economic recovery, important as it is, can compare with the necessity of preventing a war which would not only bring death and destruction in its wake, but would plunge us into a depression far worse than the one from which we are but now emerging."

Stroup went on to say that "while it is true that America is opposed to war and in favor of peace, this feeling of itself is not sufficient to save us from becoming involved in a world conflict We must take constructive steps at once to make war for us impossible." Stroup then presented a program of action which he claimed would do much to accomplish this end, and pledged himself to seek to secure its adoption by Congress if he should be elected.

"First," he said, "we must take the profit out of war by adopting as a part of our national defense act the American Legion proposal that the government draft money and industry as well as men in time of war." He stated that "this would make enthusiastic workers for peace out of the men who now are favoring war that they may reap again the profits which they secured in the last world tragedy."

The second proposal was that the government should own and operate all munition factories, thus ending "the diabolical threat of the munition makers, those merchants of death, who profit from the blood and tears of humanity."

Stroup's third proposition was that the government should prohibit all foreign nations from borrowing money in this country to finance their wars or preparation for wars. "No nation," according to the speaker, "could successfully wage a war of long duration without the financial assistance of this country, and we know from past experience that to allow nations to finance their wars in this country leads inevitably to our participation in the war which we have financed. Incidently it might be added that we have learned to our sorrow that war debts are never paid. Let us hope that we have profited from our lesson."

Finally, the speaker proposed that the government should declare an embargo on the shipment of war materials to all nations engaged in war. "The president has been given the power to do this, and it is up to Congress to see that it is done."

Stroup concluded this portion of his speech by stating that such a program as he had suggested would be "the best insurance that could be devised for preventing the participation of America in another war."

In the remaining portion of his address Stroup presented his program for dealing with the problem of unemployment and economic recovery. He stated that he was the only candidate who had pledged his support to the Townsend Old Age Pension plan and the proposals for a managed currency and socially controlled credit system.

Eddy, who has made a sensational rise to fame on the concert stage, over the radio and in talking pictures, will be the star of an All-Wagnerian program Thursday night, August 2. He will sing the ever popular song to the Evening Star from "Tannhauser" and the highly dramatic Wotan's farewell from the Valkyries.

For the opening program next week Sir Hamilton has selected another group of compositions indicating his rare ability as a program builder. Margaret Kuenne, gifted young violinist, is soloist on the Tuesday night program playing the Bruch Concerto in G minor.

WORLD YOUTH FACES DANGER OF MILITARISM

LAGUNA BEACH, July 27.—"Marching Feet" was the title of an address delivered yesterday afternoon by Mrs. George H. Bunnell, of Redlands, at the assembly room of the St. Mary's Episcopal church, dealing with the youth movement in Europe and the Orient. Mrs. Bunnell is the chairman of international relations of the Federation of Women's Clubs of California.

She called attention to the youth movement in Japan which, intensely nationalistic in character, is supporting the policy of the military leaders. A similar attitude has been adopted by the youth of China, who resenting foreign interventions effected by force of arms, today have raised the cry "Dare to Die" in the defense of national interests, the speaker declared. Stalin, the Communist ruler of Soviet Russia, must have had a keen appreciation of psychology for instead of addressing his prograc of reconstruction to the grown ups of that country, he appealed to the enthusiasc of the youth, Mrs. Bunnell explained. The speaker added but for the support given the five-year plan by the youth of Russia, it might have terminated in a failure.

The rise of Adolf Hitler in Germany the speaker ascribed to his ability to capitalize the nationalist spirit of the German youth who in recent years are more and more protesting against being compelled to pay for the wrongdoings of their elders. "The youth of Germany feel that they had nothing to do with the making of the war and therefore resent the heavy burdens placed upon them for generations to come," the speaker observed. In this connection, Mrs. Bunnell, while deploring Hitler's treatment of Jews in Germany, took issue with those who are attempting to stir up strife in this country by urging boycott of German goods." The Jewish question in Germany is not one to be settled in the United States or any other country," she declared.

Coming to Italy, the speaker voiced her admission for Mussolini who, after saving his country from Communism, had injected a new life into the nation and done wonders for the youth of that country. But here again "marching feet" are in evidence, she added.

In conclusion, Mrs. Bunnell voiced her complete confidence in the youth of America—millions of young men and women who should have the sympathetic cooperation of the elder generation. "The thought of the American youth should be directed by the religious leadership of the nation toward love of country and loyalty to its institutions, thus creating a nation-wide youthful enthusiasm for national ideals in government," Mrs. Bunnell concluded.

Missions Group To Have Outing

Members of the Queen Esther circles of La Habra will also attend the picnic and those who attended the camp this summer will give reports about their vacation.

WHIPSTOCKING CHARGES PAID BY OIL GROUPS

HUNTINGTON BEACH, July 27.—Some of the companies operating wells whipstocked into the ocean have made their settlements with the state, and the Standard Oil company, as to paying the state a portion of the royalty and obtaining a clearance with the Standard Oil for trespassing on Standard ground to reach the tidelands.

Among the larger operators who have effected settlements are the McVicer-Rood company and the Wilshire company. They paid the state the first of the back royalty partial payments. The back royalty due for the period the wells operated from the time production started until a settlement was effected with the stae is to spread over 48 payments.

The first one of these 48 equal payments was made. The same basis of settlement is available for all the wells that were slanted into the ocean, and probably all will take advantage of it. In some of the wells the back royalty is small, but in the case of the larger wells the state will receive a great many thousand dollars, running into hundreds of thousands of dollars, extending over the next 48 months.

In addition to the installments for back royalty, the wells signing up with the state will pay the state about 1b per cent of the gross monthly production. The state will derive millions from the wells from a section of tidelands the voters of California refused to throw open for drilling.

CHRYSLER SALES SHOW INCREASE

Complete passenger car registration figures for the first five months of 1934, compiled by R. L. Polk and company, show that the registrations of Chrysler cars in that period exceeded those of the corresponding five months of 1933 by 536 units, 9,826 against 9,290. It also is revealed that in three of these five months Chrysler registrations were ahead of the 1933 figure.

Because of the problems involved in designing new tools for the Airflow bodies, Chrysler had very little production in either January or February. In March, however, cars began to come off the line in good quantities, and 1879 registrations were reported in that month against 1611 for 1933. This figure almost doubled in April when 3529 Chryslers were registered against 2282 in 1933. May found still another big gain, with 3713 Chryslers in 1934 as opposed to 2698 in 1933, according to O. K. Haan of the Cadillac Garage company.

Editor The Register:
Santa Ana, California.

I am glad to see that we are to have a chance to vote upon repeal of the advertising and music tax, and under present conditions most of us will surely vote "Yes" for such repeal.

We approved the tax when things were going good in 1926 but with a "donating" council and a chamber of commerce which talks economy but asks for $4250, it seems best to remove the tax entirely.

The situation is one which can be expected when a private corporation, of political aspirations, with a hand-picked board of directors, sees a handful of tax money in sight. The spenders always did find things to spend vast quantities of tax money for, and now they're at it again.

The funny part is that the spending crowd doesn't stop to think whether it's right or wrong to spend publix tax money through a privately controlled agency, with its executive meetings from which the public is barred.

They would object to the Y. M. C. A., the Salvation Army, Builders Exchange, or any other private group raiding the treasury like that, but they seem to consider themselves a superior, favored group who can do no wrong.

They want the public money, and because they want it, the amount is "reasonable" and the rightness or wrongness of the question doesn't bother them in the least. They haven't thought of that.

Yours truly,
C. A. HARNOIS.

G. O. P. WINNER AT BALL GAME ABOARD BURROS

ANAHEIM, July 27.—Republicans scored a victory last night at the city ball park when they defeated a team of Anaheim Democrats at Donkey baseball. The score was 6 to 5. The game, according to authorities, was a hard fought contest—but the fighting was principally between the players and their mounts.

While the Republicans, officially, won the game, members of the Democratic squad indicate that they may ask for an investigation by congress, or somebody. They charge that Ralph McFadden, an ardent Republican, was chief umpire, and Thomas McFadden, Anaheim attorney, also a Republican, was catcher for the winning team.

While the Republican team, captained by William Schumacher reversed recent history by winning the decision, the Democratic mules on which they were mounted won practically all of the individual decisions in private contests. Also the Democrats had a very difficult evening riding their mules. In fact, both teams had a "50-50" evening—on their donkeys half the time and on the ground half the time.

Tonight colored teams representing the northern and southern sections of the county will play in the second game of the series being sponsored by the Anaheim Legion post and the Anaheim lodge of Elks.

CHILD IS INJURED IN AUTO ACCIDENT

ANAHEIM, July 27. — Bobbie Gene Daugherty, 402 South Olive street, received minor injuries yesterday when struck by an automobile driven by Frank S. Garrett, 554 South Lemon street, this city. Garrett took the boy to the Anaheim Sanitarium where Dr. Truxaw administered first aid for a skinned elbow and knee before the boy was sent to his home.

According to Garrett's report to police the boy was injured when he ran in front of the car driven by Garrett. Garrett said that the accident happened on South Los Angeles street near Santa Ana street. He had stopped to allow a train to pass and when he started his car, according to his report, the boy ran in front of the machine.

Anaheim Police Notes

ANAHEIM, July 27.—An adding machine reported stolen several days ago by Dr. Gail Harmon was recovered yesterday by Anaheim police. Dr. Harmon had offered a reward for recovery of the machine.

J. Peralta, 613 East Wilhelmina street, reported last night to the police that his automobile had been stolen from its parking place on South Los Angeles street.

WARRANT OUT FOR MAN UNDER BOND

ANAHEIM, July 27.—At liberty under $25 bond on a drunk charge O. Haldane of Orange was named in a warrant issued today by Police Judge Frank Tausch charging him with battery. The complaint was signed by Mrs. M. Montgomery of Anaheim. Chief of Police James Bouldin expected to take Haldane in custody this morning and arraign him on the new count.

Haldane was arrested Monday night by Anaheim police at the same time they took into custody Frank Carter, also of Orange and charged him with drunken driving. Carter plead guilty to the charge and is serving 50 days in the county jail in lieu of $100 fine.

The men were arrested as they were leaving a house where a party was in progress and it is alleged that it was at the party where Haldane slapped the woman.

WITHDRAW CHARGES IN BATTERY CASE

ANAHEIM, July 27.—Charges of battery preferred against Orton Haldane of Orange and on which he was taken in custody yesterday by Police Chief James Bouldin were withdrawn late yesterday by Mrs. M. Montgomery who signed the complaint. The charges were withdrawn after Haldane had posted $50 bail to secure his liberty pending hearing before Police Judge Frank Tausch August 3. Haldane also is at liberty under $25 cash bond on a charge of intoxication which he still must face in police court this afternoon.

The second charge was preferred by Mrs. Moutgomery as a result of a party which it is alleged, both attended During the party Mrs. Montgomery called police and charged that Haldane had slapped her. Haldane had departed but was picked up a short time later by police when they arrested Frank Carter, also of Orange, on a drunken driving count. Haldane was in the automobile with Carter and, according to police, was intoxicated.

CARE OF FEET WILL BE TOPIC OF BROADCAST

Dr. A. P. Browne, experienced Chiropodist, will speak in detail on the care of the feet during the "Healthy Feet" broadcast from KREG tonight at 7:45 and sponsored by the Dr. A. Reed Shoe Store at 318 North Sycamore, Santa Ana, it was announced.

Dr. Browne's discussion will show that there are many important factors regarding the care of feet that are generally overlooked. He will explain how relief may be obtained by certain methods of treatment that anyone may use in their own home, without cost, and he will tell of the importance of proper footwear, properly fitted shoes and the necessity of consulting an approved Chiropodist when the occasion arises, it was stated.

The "Healthy Feet" broadcasts are being made each Friday at the above time, for the purpose of edifying listeners on the care of the feet, a subject about which so much is taken for granted and to which little attention is paid until serious developments make speedy action necessary, it was said.

"CONSULTANTS" IN ANOTHER EPISODE

Following the noisy and excited arrival of "Louie" and "Mama" at the railroad station last week, "Dr. Schlitzenheimer" and "Horace" are in for a few complexities and mixups during tonight's broadcast of "The Business Consultants" from KREG at 6:45, it was stated, as "Louie's" knowledge of the English language is anything but comprehensive!

For 2 dollars per answer, "The Business Consultants" are still doing business, answering any and all questions on any and all subjects. Many questions are surprising, to say theleast, while the answers "pondered" by "Dr. Schlitzenheimer" are frequently none the less remarkable.

The feature is produced and presented each Friday exclusively on KREG by Jud Sutherland and "Doc" Jones, both of Santa Ana.

PASTOR ATTENDING CHURCH CONCLAVE

ANAHEIM, July 27.—The Rev. Thomas H. Walker, pastor of the Presbyterian church, and Mrs. Walker are in Los Angeles today attending the California-Nevada Presbyterian synod in session at Highland park. The synod opened last night and will continue until next Wednesday and will attract approximately 600 official delegates from the two states.

While the Reverend Mr. Walker attends the men's conferences being held in the Presbyterian church of Highland Park,

WILKIE TO GIVE KREG ADDRESS ON CRIME DATA

Deviating slightly from his specialized fact stories on crime and crime detection, Captain Don Wilkie, noted criminologist and world authority on criminal matters will appear on another feature broadcast from KREG tonight at 7:30 with the true story of "Our Baby of the Second Cabin."

The account, while not dealing directly with crime, will stress the necessity of human kindness when a fellow human being is in distress. It is a true relation of unusual happenings aboard a liner in mid-ocean.

Captain Wilkie is heard on KREG exclusively, in person, each Monday and Friday at the above time, and each of his broadcasts are of unusual interest, it was stated.

WHAT ABOUT CAVALCADE

A pair of older horses may find it their duty to prove the real worth of Cavalcade.

Equipoise might well test the English-bred colt at any distance up to and including a mile and a quarter, and from there on Dark Secret might take up the attack.

By whipping these two, Cavalcade would indeed prove himself a remarkable horse. Until that time, the status of the bay son of Lancegaye must remain something of a doubtful quantity, notwithstanding the fact that he already has demonstrated that he is the best 3-year-old in a number of years.

Cavalcade propelled by a powerful pair af hind legs, has raced across the American turf firmament to take his place beside the luminaries that have faced the barrier since Man o' War.

That Cavalcade is no Man o' War goes without saying. Mack Garner declined to rate Cavalcade with Exterminator at a time when he figured to be particularly enthusiastic—a few minutes after Mrs. Isabel Dodge Sloane's big earner had packed the veteran jockey to his first Kentucky Derby victory.

Probably the Brookmeade Stable star is no Twenty Grand. But assuredly he belong in the better class, which includes the majestic Gallant Fox, Reigh Count, Equipoise and Crusader.

BETTER THAN TWENTY GRAND?

Cavalcade, though he has shown neither the blazing speed of Man o' War, nor the wonderful get up of Twenty Grand, enters the month of August with a better record than even Twenty Grand boasted.

Twenty Grand, it will be recalled, went to Saratoga with two defeats, Mate having trimmed him in the Preakness and Classic Stakes.

Gallant Fox entered the same stage of the season undefeated, having captured the Derby, Preakness, and the Classic, Belmont and Dwyer Stakes.

Cavalcade copped the Kentucky Derby, American and Detroit Derbies, and the Classic and Chesapeake Stakes. His slate for the year perhaps would be unblemished had Garner urged him a second sooner in the Preakness, in which his stablemate, High Quest, beat him by a nostril.

In attempting to rate horses, the opposition must be thoroughly considered. Twenty Grand had the strongest kind of opposition from a group of really high-class horses, such as Sweep All, Mate, St. Brideaux, and Spanish Play. Moreover he whipped good ones like Jamestown and Sun Meadow, and absolutely tow-roped the world's greatest money winner, Sun Beau.

PEACE CHANCE ONLY RIVAL

Cavalcade admittedly has faced more formidable rivals than any colt since Twenty Grand. But his adversaries will not stand exceptionally close scrutiny.

Discovery apparently cannot carry scale weight. Riskulus is the same sort, except that he will run only under a feather of weight. Mata Hari seemingly is only a sprinter. Rose Cross can't make the grade, and First Minstrel broke down.

Peace Chance, possibly the ablest horse in America of his age, excepting Cavalcade, had no chance in the Kentucky Derby, notwithstanding a phenomenal finish. The Widener entry is a horse of scorching speed for a mile, and has turned in a noteworthy mile and a half.

While Cavalcade must still show his complete superiority over Peace Chance, he has come like an electric fan in the desert of comparative mediocrity which the thoroughbred game has seen since Burgoo King broke down and was retired several years ago.

Fearing the "law of averages" more than the opposition itself, Santa Ana's Stars stalk Long Beach tonight in a National Night league baseball game at Long Beach.

The lowly Admirals, who play their home contests on a fine new ocean-front park once the site of the famed Virginia hotel, have not won a start this year. They dropped 14 in succession during the first half, and have lost five in a row since the second half got under way.

Every manager in the league approaches the Long Beach assignment with trepidation, feeling the tailenders are bound to win one eventually. The leaders expect to be knocked off now and then by other contenders, but dislike losing valuable ground to a club they figure to beat.

Santa Ana's Bill Cole, braving this "law of averages," frankly expects to make hay tonight. He sees no reason for the Stars to lose, counts on his men going into a tie for first place because he thinks Anaheim will whip the Nevaless Torrance unit.

Cole is so confident of success at Long Beach that he proposes to pitch either Ira DeBusk or Wilbur Stinchfield, probably the former. Jim Coates, who was forced into extra innings both Tuesday and last Friday, gets a well-earned rest unless the other members of the Santa Ana mound department prove ineffective.

Long Beach will be somewhat strengthened by the addition of several members of the Long Beach County league nine, which merged with the National leaguers early this week. Manager "Lefty" Beeson hasn't announced his starting pitcher, but it probably will be Bobby Dalton, veteran change-of-pace expert, who gets by more on "savvy" than stuff. Deene Downer, who held Santa Ana 3-2 and 7-1 in the early '34 games, will be available if Beeson wants him. Other possibilities are Kordish and Foster, drafted from the County league club.

The Admirals will line up with Al Davis or Tom Ferrell back of the plate; Beeson at first base; Cliff Edmundson, second; Clark, third; Red Lake, short, and Clarence Clemens, Perry Callahan and Brooks Sackett in the outfield. The Long Beach outfield is dangerous offensively. Clemens is one of the best bounce-hitters in the wheel, Sackett a terrific hitter when he connects. He is one of the few men in the league ever to pole a ball out of the Santa Ana Bowl.

Olive turned back Fullerton, 7-2, in the usual Thursday night league game at Olive.

Loose fielding by Fullerton in the first and third innings gave the Grenadiers a five-run lead. Gunther's homer put the Bellhops further in the hole.

Fullerton got a run in the second inning on Morill's walk and two infield hits, and another in the eighth on Thomas' home run.

Jack Dugan pitched steadily for Olive, keeping nine hits nicely scattered.

The big gun in the attack of the British on the American women's tennis championship at Forest Hills, L. I., Aug. 13-18 will be Betty Nuthall, above, star of the English Wightman Cup squad. The Twenty-Thirty club had company today at the top of the Santa Ana City league standings. By defeating the Elks, 6-3, at the Bowl last night, the Commercial National bank moved into a tie for first place.

Playing raggedly behind Claude Gregory, who was wild with men on bases, the Elks let in three runs on errors in the second inning, and two more the same way in the fifth. The Bankers' tally in the third came from doubles by Foltz and Smiley.

Roy Stout outpitched Gregory through most of the tussle. Stout's only bad inning was the fourth when Garlock's single, Levens' triple and Ojeda's single accounted for two runs. Gregory's double, a wild pitch and an infield out produced another Elk tally in the seventh.

Union Oil, first-half champions, jolted the First National bank's pennant hopes in the 8 o'clock windup. The score was 5-0, Lloyd Lichtenwalter holding the First Nationals to six hits. Gene Hitt, toiling for the bank, allowed only four but was wild. He issued three walks in the first inning and McCullough's double drove in three runs. Another pass led up to a run in the second. Hits by Eaton and McCullough yielded a final counter in the sixth.

City leaguers draw a vacation until Monday when the Union Oil team playes the M. E. South Juniors at 7 o'clock, and the Commercial National zank battles the M. E. South Seniors at 8.

FUN A-FISHIN'

BY JIMMY DONAHUE

(NEA Service Sports Writer)

This is the time of the year when trout become the most temperamental critters on earth. They are shy and retiring in the day, mainly because of increased water temperature. Heat makes them sulky, and they feed in the sunshine only on rare occasions.

The trout angler, therefore, must turn to fine terminal tackle to fool his game. Low, clear water enhances vision of the fish, and long casts generally are necessary.

But there is one time of the hot summer day when trout put on the feed bag in lusty fashion. This is just at dusk, and a couple of hours after the sun goes down.

Fine leaders, small flies and long casts are not essential then, because poor light of evening doesn't aill the fish in detecting the artificials which sometimes, in the hand sof the tyro, land clumsily on the water.

We have stood in a trout stream at dusk and, in stretches that appeared barren of fish during the day, seen numerous rises ruffle the surface of pools. Casts anywhere near these rises were sure to bring strikes.

A good-sized fly of a light pattern is the best fish-taker at dusk. A fan-wing royal coachman, white miller, parmachene belle, professor or yellow may, in sizes ranging from 10 to 6, are most apt to attract attention. Bi-visibles too, have exceptionally taking ways.

GOLF

At the top of the swing there are numerous things one should check on.

The shoulders should present their full width to the hole. The clug at this point is close to horizontal and pointing to the direction of the line of flight. The right elbow should be held fairly close to the side, and the wrists should be cocked. With these parts functioning properly, the

MARTINEZ TOO GOOD FOR SUB MAIN-EVENTER

"Where's Elmer?" was a question propounded by thousands last year, but it was "Where's Eddie Shea?" at the Orange County Athletic club last night.

Shea, one-half of a great main event with Johnny Martinez, at Long Beach early this week, was scheduled to meet Matinez in a rematch here, but Shea never showed and a lot of fans were disappointed.

Martinez was on deck, as advertised, and they threw him into the feature against old Benny Gomez, a fair-to-middlin' trial horse but not much of a heavyweight. Martinez coasted for five rounds, working just hard enough to be sure of the decision which he got from Referee Reglie Gilmore.

The match was colorless. Martinez had fat Benny on the floor in the third round and won every other round comfortably.

Substitutes Plentiful

Substitutes also appeared in nearly every other bout. The card was full of them.

Art Arroya of Westminster decisioned Norman Green of Santa Ana in the semi-final, a real fight after it got started. Green gave away too much weight to the Mexican.

Al Lemon, Fullerton light heavy, knocked out Benny Gonzales in the first round of the special event. Gonzales was down twice before the kill.

Jesse Sanchez, local featherweight who is developing into a good puncher, stopped Eddie Orosco in the second. A blow to the midriff put Orosco out of commission.

Anaheim's Don Venzoe decisioned Tony Torres, although both boys visited the canvas.

Frank Barrago defeated "Buck" Durbin decisively, although Gilmore had to make the decision because the judges disargeed.

Mesa Beats Cook

Merrill Mesa took a decision from Bill Cook, Orange lightweight. Cook didn't show the aggressiveness that marked his previous engagement here.

Al Ponce shaded Tommy Haxby, willing Long Beach 138-pounder. Haxby was on the mat twice, Ponce once. It was very close and exciting.

The first fight was the best, Tony Levaro getting credit for a technical knockout over Ray Romeriz when the latter sustained a severe cut over his eye in the fourth round. Until then there was plenty of action.

The crack Ebony club of Los Angeles, the foremost stable in amateur boxing, invades the Orange county arena next Thursday. Bill Wana, Paddy Guillen, Frankie Trott and other local favorites will be on the card.

Al Watrous Leads Wood; Shute Ahead

WILLIAMSVILLE, N. Y., July 27.—(UP)—Al Watrous of Birmingham, Mich., was 2 up on Craig Wood of Deal, N. J., as they reached the halfway mark today in their 36-hole quarter-final match in the P. G. A. tournament.

Watrous, who had eliminated Gene Sarazen, shot a 67, five under par. Wood carded a 69. The Birmingham pro held a 1 up advantage at the turn of the morning round.

Densmore Shute, Philadelphia, overcame a 1 up lead by Al Houghton of Bethesda, Md., and was leading 4 up as they completed the morning round.

Paul Runyan of White Plains, N. Y., and Dick Metz, of Lake Forest, Ill., were all even when they reached the half-way mark.

36 COLLEGIANS SELECTED FOR CHICAGO GAME

CHICAGO, July 27. — (UP)—A collegiate All-America football team that actually will play has been picked by 165,000 fans, officials and coaches in a nation-wide poll.

The team, composed of 36 collegians who were seniors last fall, will meet the Chicago Bears, professional football champions for the last two years, at Soldier field the night of Aug. 31 in the first real test between college and professional players.

The game promises to draw a crowd of 100,000.

Ed ("Moose") Krause, former Notre Dame 220-pound tackle, got the most votes. He received 65,296, more than any other man. George Sauer, Nebraska fullback, polled more votes than any other back, 64,123.

Third in the voting was Aaron Rosenberg, Southern California guard, who just shaded Charlie center, 54,924 to 54,891.

The first team, on the basis of the poll, would line up as follows:

Ends—Skladany, Pittsburgh, 50,148, and Smith, Washington, 41,394.

Tackles—Krause, Notre Dame, and Schwammel, Oregon State, 39,415.

Guards—Rosenberg, Southern California, and Schammel, Iowa, 39,737.

Center—Bernard, Michigan.

Quarterback — Laws, Iowa, 62,466.

Halfbacks — Lukats, Notre Dame, 52,512, and Feathers, Tennessee, 46,813.

Fullback—Sauer, Nebraska.

Other members of the squad will be:

Ends — Canrinus, St. Mary's; Manske, Northwestern; Gilman, Ohio State.

Tackles — Wistert, Michigan; Mehringer, Kansas; Rosequist, Ohio State.

ENGLAND MADE 10-7 FAVORITE IN CUP SERIES

WIMBLEDON, England, July 27.—(UP)—America's Davis Cup team today put on its last practice for the campaign goal—the challenge round against England, which starts tomorrow.

Sidney Wood, slim New York lad who stunned the world with a victory over Jack Crawford of Australia, voiced the feeling of the American squad.

"If we could lick Australia, we can take England. Shields can whip 'Bunny' Austin, and I still think I can lick Fred Perry," he said.

While the American group—Wood, Frank Shields and the doubles pair, George Lott and Lester Stoefen—holds what it considers as an edge in morale over England, form players favor England at about 10 to 7.

Few grant England's doubles pair, Perry and Pat Hughes, more than an outside change against Lott and Stoefen, who blasted the Australians, Crawford and Adrian Quist, off the Wimbledon turf last Monday.

The match seems to center on the ability of Austin, No. 2 man on the English squad, to beat either Shields or Wood. Shields defeated Austin in the recent All-England play, and Wood seems to be the better of the two Americans.

Figuring at least an even chance for Wood and Shields against Austin, and a decisive edge for the doubles team, it would appear the odds should be even money.

The singles matches open tomorrow with Shields facing Austin and Perry meeting Wood. On Monday, Lott and Stoefen play Perry and Hughes in the doubles, and in the final matches Tuesday, Shields will battle Perry and Wood will take on Austin.

MISS KIGHT LOSES 100-METER SPRINT

DETROIT, July 27. — (UP)—Champion Lenore Kight, Homestead, Pa., was dethroned in the 100-meter free style event of the women's A. A. U. swimming championships yesterday afternoon by 18-year-old Olive McKean of Seattle.

The event was won in 1:11.7, Miss Kight placing second. Alice Bridges, Whitsinville, Mass., was third and Dorothea Dickinson, New York, fourth.

However, Miss Kight retained her title in the one-mile winning from Sue Robertson, New York, who placed second. Evelyn Rawls, Miami Beach, Fla., placed third and Mary Lou Petty, Seattle, fourth. Miss Kight's time was 25:-10.7.

Katherine Rawls, Miami, Fla., took 133.44 points in retaining her championship in the springboard diving event. Dorothy Poynton, Los Angeles, was second; Mary Hoerger, Miami Beach, third; Janice Lifson, New York, fourth.

BAER DOES SONG AND DANCE IN CHICAGO; FILMS BECKON

CHICAGO, July 27.—(UP)—Max Baer, the man who couldn't get a date with Sally Rand, arrived in Chicago today.

Max stepped on Sally's home lot wearing a broad, professional grin, a gray, checkered coat, light trousers and an open neck shirt.

The subject of a date with Sally was tactfully broached.

"What," said Max, "me call her up? After the story she put out about me? I wouldn't even talk to her."

The story Sally put out about Max was that she couldn't be bothered. Max, it appeared, called her in New York and asked her out to lunch. Sally enlarged on her opinion of Max for the press, pointing out that Max was a public nuisance as far as she was concerned and that she had enough to think about with her fan dance and all. Besides, she was engaged to an anonymous gentleman.

Miss Rand, informed of Mr. Baer's new attitude, said today that it suited her fine. She was awakened from a sound sleep induced by the rigors of her "bubble dance," which has supplanted her fan routine.

As for Baer, he was met at the station by his brtoher, "Buddy," who wears a suit several sizes larger, and by several hundred of his admirers, mostly women.

Max's first question was: "How many shows do they have at that joint?"

The "joint" was the theater where Max will conclude a vaudeville tour this week.

Max will sing and dance in an act, which critics call terrible, all next week. Then he will entrain for California for another motion picture appearance.

Schneider Victor At Salinas Rodeo

SALINAS, July 27. — (UP)—Johnny Schneider of Livermore, twice the world's champion cowboy, was off to a flying start toward top honors in the annual Salinas Rodeo today.

Schneider, in the first day's competition, won the bronchobusting contest and placed in two other events, the calf roping and the steer decorating tests.

Thousands of persons flocked into Salinas for the annual show, restoring to the former frontier town the scenes and the activities common half-a-century ago. The rodeo—the 23rd annual—was to extend through to Sunday.

The opening contests, with Gov. Frank F. Merriam as the most distinguished visitor, drew 8000 persons.

THE TINYMITES

STORY by HAL COCHRAN—PICTURES by KING

The battle looked simply great. Said Goldy, "I can hardly wait until I know what we're to do, now that this wall is made.

"To act as nurse, I do not mind, with this fine place to hide behind. No matter what the Meanies do, I will not be afraid."

"Well, they've been quiet as can be," one Cheerful Chap said. "Seems to me that they'd be pulling some surprise, like we are trying to do.

"Perhaps, though, Scouty has upset all of their plans. He would, I'll bet, if he had half a chance. He'll trick the Meanies, ere he's through."

"I hope you're right, but I don't know," said Coppy. "I wish I could go right over to the other camp and find out what is what.

"If our friend Scouty still were free, I'm just as certain as can be that he's return to us. He is a prisoner, I'll bet."

"Well, we will very soon find out," a Chap replied. "You've heard, no doubt, about the things called hand grenades. Well, we will use them now.

"They'll bring no harm to anyone, but will be thrown out just in fun. I hope they'll scare the Meanies and, perhaps, start quite a row."

"You see, our hand grenades will be plain gumdrops. If you'll just watch me, I'll show you how to throw them so they'll cover lots of space.

"But, first, we'll have to haul them here. Thank goodness, they are very near. Before we're through we'll have gumdrops spread all around the place."

Then Duncy cried, "I'll do my part. The big gumdrops are in a cart. I saw them back among the trees. I'll get them, if you'll wait."

It was no sooner said than done. As Duncy came up on the run, wee Windy cried, "Oh, look at them! To throw them will be great.

IN BAD

The prevailing heat wave is nothing in the way of high temperature to the language which is being used by the rank and file of the air corps regarding Major General Benjamin Foulois. The occasion for this outburst of temper is the signing by the general of the report of the Baker board on aviation. General sentiment in the corps was for separation of its activities from the general staff of the war department. The fliers wanted to be completely out of control of the general staff.

But the Baker board report recommended no separation of the air force, and, since General Foulois gave his approval to this attitude by signing the report, the air corps feels that he sold it down the river. On the other hand, Jimmy Doolittle's stand in filing a minority report contending for the freeing of the air corps from war department domination has endeared him to the rank and file.

Also, Bill Mitchell's blast condemning the report has increased his influence with the men, which was always very great. They regard him as their spokesman and leader, and have been enthusiastically for him ever since he sacrificed his military career by publicly denouncing his military superiors for ignorance and incompetence in the field of aviation.

Mitchell's attack on the report was encouraged by some of the air corps officers who belong to the impatient and restless element. As soon as the report was circulated in the war department, before it was made public, they were in touch with Mitchell and urging him to take a crack at it. This he did very promptly, describing it as "just another whitewash" and "the greatest exhibition of ignorance that ever came out of the department."

He said the army chiefs did not know anything about aviation and did not want to know anything. The statement that this country was immune from attack by air by any fleet which would have to cross the sea was singled out for especially caustic treatment. According to Mitchell, an enemy air force could reach Alaska with comparative ease and from there strike terror into this country. He said a force of enemy planes flying at a height of 35,000 feet could reach New York from Alaska without being heard and with a load of nauseating gas, which one plane alone could carry, that would be able to cause the evacuation of the city. This is what Mitchell believes, and the air corps applauds.

UNSTABLE EQUILIBRIUM—

Advices received here from Germany are such as to give official circles less concern about the political than the economic situation there. The threat to the Hitler regime which gave der fuehrer the jitters and led to the butchery of those suspected of seeking to overthrow him is thought to have diverted his attention from foreign enterprises and made him realize he had enough to do at home for the present. This lessens the danger to peace in Europe.

But the economic situation in Germany is reported to be growing rapidly worse. She cannot obtain credit sufficient to carry on ordinary commercial transactions. Foreign traders are insisting upon cash payments. This applies to the cotton supply. Two-thirds of it is not paid for and is being released only for cash.

Crop conditions also are not good. Drought made a short potato crop and purchases of 4,000,000 marks worth of potatoes have had to be made since the first of June.

The government, which means Hitler and his immediate crowd, is in something of a pickle because of this crop situation. Scarcity puts prices of all food products up and the farmers benefit, but the millions in the towns and cities suffer. If the government arbitrarily fixes prices at a low figure, to please the city dwellers, it angers the farmers, and, if it leaves them high, to benefit the farmers, it displeases the city dwellers. And, since the government assumes to regulate everything and has promised everything, it is bound to get blamed; whichever course it takes.

The government is also being forced, whether it wishes or not, to step in in the case of other industries. Indications are that the next one to be controlled will be the textile industry. It is said the big industrialists, who have all along backed Hitler and have used him for their purposes to get control of labor, are beginning to fear that the government control they invoked is getting out of hand. Instead of being about to manage it for their own benefit, they see it slowly swallowing them up, so that soon the government will have taken over everything. This was not what they bargained for.

GROTESQUE—

One of the absurdities of autocratic government action is the fixing of exchange values for the mark according to the pretense that Germany is on the gold standard. This is pure fiction, since the gold coverage is around 2 per cent, yet the worthless mark is set by fiat of the government at 39 cents in terms of U. S. dollars. With full gold coverage, its value was about 24 cents.

Not much business can be done between the two countries, except by barter, on such terms as that. American traders would hardly care for long to buy German goods at such a disadvantage in exchange, nor would they care to sell at such a discount, even if the mark had any backing.

In the light of the present state of affairs, it is almost amusing to look back to 1931, just before the moratorium was sought and arranged. Then the whole financial world was trembling with apprehension and fright because the German gold reserve was about to go below 40 per cent. If that happened, it was predicted, the heavens would fall.

Now Germany has virtually no gold reserve, she has refused to pay interest on her debts, a small portion excepted, and she has all but repudiated them. But, in place of the wild excitement her condition created three years ago, there is now comparative calm.

SUBTLE

The Treasury didn't ask for bids on its new offering of $100,000,000 Federal Farm Mortgage Corporation bonds—an unprecedented procedure—just for fun.

Normally the Treasury sets its own price on its issues when they are floated and that's that. The farm mortgage bonds are essentially direct federal obligations—since they are fully guaranteed by the government—and the usual system could have been followed with perfect safety. But it wasn't and here's why.

The government is gunning for low interest rates on its big conversion operations this fall. Of course it could flatly announce a bond issue at 2 1-2 per cent or 2 3-4 per cent when the time comes. The banks and other large investors would be almost certain to subscribe adequately—if not with zest. But a certain amount of unpublished resentment would probably develop at such high-handed tactics (as it did in the case of the famous Mellon 3s) with possible damage to the government and the Treasury's relations with the banks. So we have a subtle technique instead.

NOSE

By requesting bids on a 3 per cent issue—and announcing that no bids will be accepted at less than par—the Treasury allows the bidders to name their own interest at anything BELOW three per cent they like. It can't be higher. Thus the banks themselves will be paving the way to a still cheaper rate in a couple of months. The precedent will be established—the more effectively because the farm mortgage issue is technically (but only technically) inferior to straight Treasury stuff.

What's more, the maneuver will work. The bidders will submit terms that should make Mr. Morgenthau happy—not out of love for the Treasury but because they're so feverishly eager for sound investments. Authorities predict that the rate will be around 2.80 per cent. As for the amount—big investing institutions can take $100,000,000 in stride and hardly notice it. While no definite bids were pledged in advance the Treasury's New York contracts reported accurately that no risk was attached to the plan.

Wall Streeters expert in such matters applaud the Treasury's skill in playing supply and demand on the nose to gain its ends.

FAUX PAS

Don't get the idea that the Harriman Hosiery case is washed up because Deputy Administrator A. R. Glancy announced settlement of the strike and restored the company's Blue Eagle.

Insiders will tell you that the fun has just started. The institution looks like a complete victory for conservative industry—but the trouble is it's too darned complete. A modest turn to the right by NRA might have gotten by—but an unqualified about face is something else again.

The question which intrigues New York is whether Glancy's superiors can upset a decision he was fully authorized to make. Such a reversal would raise hob with NRA prestige. But however that works out the informed rate is a 20 to 1 shot that no move which labor takes as a slap in the face will be permitted—by the government itself—to stand unchallenged in the present delicate state of labor relations and that every precaution will be taken to guard against repetition of the faux pas.

Some Manhattan conservatives rejoice that the government is on the spot. The more thoughtful fear the reaction from the Harriman ruling will bust up what progress they've made toward revamping NRA to their specifications.

SEARCHLIGHT

Stock Exchange authorities are nervous as a hen with one chick about attempts at manipulation. A questionnaire is sent out at the first symptoms of unusual activity displayed by any stock. Lately the questionnaires have averaged more than two a day.

The Curb Exchange is doing the same thing and some of those who have been quizzed say there is excellent team work between the big board and its smaller brother. Both are doing the most thorough job of policing in their history in the hope of forestalling complaints or disciplinary action by the Securities Exchange Commission. They don't know how tough the SEC may turn out to be and are taking no chances.

There's as much difference between the casual inquiry into last summer's alcohol pools and the gimlet-eyed scrutiny of current transactions as there is between a candle and a searchlight.

Banking and heavy industry circles are bringing all the pressure they can find on Washington to please settle the Russian debt business quick.

It's argued that Russian trade is the only salvation for heavy industry and that recovery is impossible until it gets out of the swamp. It's argued further that PWA and the housing program are inadequate as life-belts because they're too slow and too uncertain.

The recent 20 per cent jump in Soivet trade helps inspire these urgent pleas. The figures prove

Decrease In Per Capita Costs In Santa Ana Outlined

LEAGUE TOLD EXPENDITURES IN PAST YEARS

Through wise economy and efficient city administration, Santa Ana has decreased its per capita cost of government from $23.92 in 1929-30 to $12.50 during the year just completed and has set an enviable record for the state, it was declared by L. D. Gifford, director of research for the California Taxpayers' association, speaking last night before the Orange County League of municipalities in Newport Beach.

The drop in governmental costs in Santa Ana was made by the city council which took office in 1931, of which only one elective member remains in service now. Since the appointment of councilmen to fill the last three vacancies on the board, a reversal of a policy of economy has been noticed.

Gifford prefaced his comparison of expenditures in Orange county cities by pointing out that the per capita cost method was not exactly fair, since the services and methods of government varied in each city. He pointed to Newport Beach, for example, as having an exceedingly different problem because it surrrounded a harbor, was bonded for harbor improvements, covered a wide area and was a resort town. The city of Aanheim controls its water and power systems, yet this does not show in a report taken from state records. All the beach cities have different conditions from those inland, he said.

The city figures, which do not include public service expenditures and trust funds, as quoted by Gifford follow: Santa Ana, $15.89; Anaheim, $23.39; Fullerton, $22.21; Orange, $16.69; Brea, $19.84; La Habra, $10.79; Newport Beach, $131.89; Laguna Beach, $22.39; Placentia, $5.96; Seal Beach, $36.58; Tustin, $11.17; and San Clemente, $89.30. Figures for Huntington Beach were not available.

Referring to the outstanding records made in Santa Ana, Gifford said that the per capita cost in 1929-30 was $23.69, $20.92 in 1930-31, $19.21 in 1931-32, $15.89 in 1932-33, and about $12.50 for 1933-34.

"The only way to control municipal cost is by having a responsible and efficient administration," Gifford said. "Cities must have good officials, backed up by public openion. Costs can be substantially reduced in most cities without impairing the services offered and needless expenditures can be avoided."

Gifford gave a striking illustration of the trend of taxation. In 1929, incomes were estimated to total $83,000,000,000 and expenditures for taxes, $12,000,000,000, or 14 per cent. During 1933, incomes dropped to $33,000,000,000 and taxes were $9,000,000,000, or nearly 25 per cent.

Considerable discussion on the feeding of prisoners in the county jail was held, and the league's stand reaffirmed that the cities should pay an equal rate for boarding prisoners as that charged the county. Asked for a ruling, George Holden, city attorney of Anaheim, said that if a city prisoner is committed to jail for violation of a state law and he pays the fine in jail, the city is entitled to the fine.

President A. C. Hasenjaeger of Santa Ana, former city councilman, offered his resignation but was asked to retain his post until the regular election in October.

Former Mayor Paul Witmer of Santa Ana resigned as a member of the advisory committee of the state league and Mayor Charles Mann of Anaheim was elected as a director to succeed him. Hasenjaeger, former President Leo Sheridan of Anaheim, and several others lauded Witmer's work in the league.

George Bates, Placentia, protested against the practice of having certain county officials accepting private work or being paid on a fee basis, and urged those present to vote for candidates who held this view.

Mayor Hermann Hilmer of Newport Beach welcomed the city officials at the meeting, which was held in the American Legion hut. Candidates introduced included Lloyd Banks, running for county auditor; Harry Riley, seeking the sheriff post; H. F. Kenny, candidate for assembly, and Elmer Guy, running for district attorney.

Mayor W. L. Foler of Redlands and Secretary J. W. Charleyville of the state league outlined the program for the state convention to be held in Pasadena from September 24-27 and announced that the chief topics of discussion would include emergency relief, tax assessing, gasoline tax, liquor control, special assessment districts, municipal liability, uniformity of licenses and civil service.

Newport Beach extended an invitation to attend the Tournament of Lights Saturday night at the harbor.

Russia Fatally Misinterprets French Note; A German Telegram Arrives Too Late

By MORRIS GILBERT
NEA Service Staff Writer

JULY 27, 1914 — and Europe's harried statesmen, though they continue to utter words of peace, know in their hearts that war grim and terrible must come....

Aboard the "Hohenzollern."—The Kaiser, learning of Serbia's answer to Austria, writes: "It is a brilliant moral success for Austria. But it banishes all reason for war, and Giesl should have stayed quietly in Belgrade. After that, I should never have ordered mobilization."

VIVANI — CHURCHILL

(The Kaiser means that if he had been Berchtold he would never have ordered Austrian mobilization.)

Paris.—Von Schoen, German ambassador, of whom Poincare later wrote, "he worked sincerely on his own part for the maintenance of peace," returns to the Quai d'Orsay to say that he is ready to insist personally to his government that the same plea for restraint which he asked Paris to send St. Petersburg should be sent from Berlin to Vienna.

Berlin.—The German ambassador in London telegraphs that Sir Edward Grey finds the Serb reply most gentle, and asks the German Foreign Ministry to urge Vienna by telegraph to be moderate. The telegram is sent, but arrives too late.

At sea.—France's premier, Viviani, accompanying Poincare on the cruiser France returning from Russia, telegraphs to Russia that France "is ready to second entirely in the interests of peace the action of the imperial government." This message has great importance since it is interpreted in Russia as meaning that France would back Russia unconditionally. This interpretation later seems to the French to be unjustified.

London.—Winston Churchill telegraphs high naval officers a warning to be ready to follow foreign warships and to prepare all ships for orders, as a simple measure of precaution.

SIXTH CONCERT PLEASES CROWD IN BIRCH PARK

In presenting the sixth concert of the summer series in Birch park last night, the Santa Ana Municipal band gave its most outstanding performance to date. Interspersed with novelties and surprises, and featuring as soloist Benjamin Klatzkin, distinguished trumpet player of the San Francisco Symphony orchestra, the concert literally thrilled the audience.

The vibrant March and Cortege from Gounod's "La Reine de Saba" opened with a brilliant flourish of trumpets that electricified the crowd. This dramatic march was filled with original melodies, the lyrical middle section being contrasted with the more majestice bégining and ending sections.

Director Leland Auer revealed his ambitious nature by selecting the "Egmont" Overture for the second number on the program and proved his understanding of Beethoven's intentions by the clean-cut and dynamic way in which it was handled. The climactic coda was especially well done. In welcomed contrast came the exuberant "Waltz of the Flowers" from Tschaikowsky's (Nutcracker) Suite." The beautiful theme in the French horns was particularly appealing, and the cross rhythms near the end were cleverly executed.

Mr. Klatzkin played the Schubert "Serenade" as his first solo number. In it he displayed a remarkably clear, rich tone in pianissimo as wel las fortissimo passages. After continued applause Mr. Klatzkin gave "Vilia Song" from Lehar's opera "Merry Widow."

Tenderness and depth of feeling characterized the Largo from Dvorak's "New World Symphony." The piquaint English horn solo which appeared at the beginning and also further on, captured the attention of the listeners. Following this were three short, colorful numbers, Rimsky-Korsakow's "Dance of the King and Princess" from his opera "The Golden Cockerel", of decidedly oriental flavor, with unique instrumentation; Bizet's ever-refreshing "Serenade Espagnole"; and "The Magpie and the Parrot", a clever little number with captivating rhythms and bird calls, from Bendix's "A Love Episode in Birdland."

Ravel's famous "Bolero" provided the surprise of the evening. In it Mr. Klatzkin presented an unusual solo interpretition of the bolero, using a piccolo-tromba. This peculiarly small instrument was at once fascinating to the audience; its wailing tone lent a dramatic accent to the throbbing, sensuous "Bolero." The audience was so enthusiastic that the last half of the "Bolero" was repeated.

A fantasy, "The Evolution of Yankee Doodle," by Lake, was a description work in which the theme "Yankee Doodle" is used in various ways to depict the land of the pilgrims, an Indian dance, the waltz era, and numerous phases of American life up to the spirit of 1917. The concert closed with the march "Gloria" by Losey.

Fred Kelly Wins Race With Stork By Plane Change

Dr. Stork lost a race to a combination of radio and airplane recently when Fred Kelly, former Orange county man and No. 1 pilot for the General Air lines, beat him to Los Angeles for the birth of his son.

Kelly was flying his plane on the Los Angeles to Salt Lake City run when his company sent word over the radio to him that his wife had been taken to the hospital and the new arrival was expected any minute. He landed his plane at Las Vegas and instead of going on to Salt Lake City traded places with the inbound pilot and returned to Los Angeles in time to welcome his son.

Kelly was a track man while in Orange Union High school, and at U. S. C. and in 1912 was sent to the Olympic games in Stockholm, where he won the high hurdles for the United States.

PLANS ON NEW S. A. CITY HALL GET APPROVAL

Preliminary architect's plans for the new $100,000 city hall to be built at Third and Main streets were approved yesterday afternoon by the city council and a committee of business men, following consultations with city department heads regarding the required quarters in the new structure.

There was virtually no change in the plans, except a revised plan for the third floor, which expands the city council chambers to seat about 300 persons. It was definitely decided to include a tower, ramp driveway to the basement and first floor public restrooms in the final plans, since there was a little previous discussion on these points.

Austin and Wildman, associated architects, have arranged for several alternative plans to enable the cost to be reduced if necessary. These include the elimination of the southeast corner of the third floor, leaving part of the third floor unfinished, eliminating partitions, and other minor items.

It was pointed out that the uncertainty of the cost of labor would be an important factor. Since the building will be financed with federal funds, PWA labor from the National Re-employment service will have to be used and these men are limited to a certain number of hours per week and are of varying skills.

It will require about five weeks for the plans to be completed and from two to three weeks for approval from state engineering authorities. Three weeks are required to advertise for bids, which would make it possible to actually start work on the building in October, barring unforeseen delays. The uncertainty of labor may prolong the building time from 120 to 150 days, it was said.

The meeting yesterday was called after a mass meeting Wednesday of councilmen and business men. W. B. Martin, Asa Hoffman and James Harding, a committee appointed by the Santa Ana Civic Affairs association, and several other business men discussed the project yesterday and gave the approval to the plans.

OWENS VALLEY ROAD

The Owens Valley highway between Palmdale and Reno, a section of the Three Flags highway, is to receive federal designation, according to a report received by the National Automobile club.

GREAT STRIDES BY MEXICO TOLD IN LIONS TALK

Great success has attended the national educational program of Mexico instituted following the Madero revolution of 1911 and nearly all Mexicans can now read and write, according to Alphonso Mendoza, dean of men in the Institute of Monterey, Mexico, addressing members of the Santa Ana Lions club yesterday noon at James cafe.

Mendoza attended the Santa Ana grammar and high schools, then Pomona college and Northwestern university, where he received his master's degree in 1930, and was then called to Mexico for his chosen work.

Five thousand rural schools per year were established under the General Obregon regime, and the percentage of illiteracy has gone steadily downward, Mendoza said.

A much better understanding now exists between the people of Mexico and the United States, to which the establishment of Lions and Rotary clubs in the southern republic has contributed greatly, he declared. There are many Rotry clubs in Mexico, Mendoza said, and a Lions club was recently formed in Monterey.

Another important factor in this better understanding between the two nations was the late Ambassador Morrow, who, with Colonel Lindbergh, helped to establish the present good relationship between the two countries, he said.

"Morrow was the greatest man you ever sent to Mexico, Mendoza declared. He also paid tribute to Ambassador Daniels, who, he said, has gotten very close to the Mexican people and carried forward the goodwill efforts of Morrow.

Virtual slavery for the peons existed under the Diaz regime of 33 years, when the country was controlled by foreigners, Mendoza said, and the cry for land brought on the Madero revolution. Madero was a great man, he declared, but was far ahead of his time. The partition of great estates bought or confiscated following the revolution turned out well for the people in many instances but was not always successful, he said.

Calles he hailed as the "grand old man" of Mexico who comes forth from retirement whenever his services are needed to steer the country through troublous times.

Mendoza was introduced by Lee Mohler, chairman of the day, and recalled boyhood days in Santa Ana with Vic Walker, Chet Horton, Ray Adkinson, Joe Peterson, and other Lion members. Preceding his talk, Clarence Gustlin entertained with two piano numbers, including a Spanish Serenade and his own transcription of a song by Mme. Manuela Budrow-Rafferty.

Four new members were welcomed into the club yesterday, including Lee Mohler, Frank Harwood, E. L. Vegely and Milburn Harvey.

SEEKS OFFICE

Herbert Osborne, of Fullerton, candidate for the office of county surveyor.

ENGINEER FOR PAST 30 YEARS SEEKS OFFICE

Carrying 30 years of engineering experience into his campaign, Herbert Osborne, C. E., of Fullerton, was today actively campaigning for election to the office of county surveyor. Osborne has pledged himself to devote his full time to the office as set by statute.

Osborne, a practicing civil engineer in Orange county for the past 15 years, has a background of experience which he feels amply qualifies him for the office of county surveyor.

A graduate of the University of Cincinnati, where he attained his C. E. degree, Osborne served seven years as an engineer on the Panama canal. Among his other major activities he designed the water and sewer system for the city of Torrance. Three were were spent as a division engineer on the Canadian Pacific railroad.

In his Orange county experience he did much of the engineering and survey work in the subdividing of the La Habra Heights district and also of the city of La Habra. He has also been connected with the oil industry in an engineering capacity in recent years.

During activities of the Civil Works administration in Orange county Osborne served as chief engineer and purchasing agent.

Osborne is a member of the American Society of Civil Engineers and is prepared to bring to the office the benefit of wide and successful experience, if elected.

. . . . . Fun in the Boy's Dept.

More fun than playing golf or going fishing.
We said Boys' Department—but read on.

This is Thursday morning. Here is 9-year-old Virginia —with her mother. Virginia is being fitted (and we mean FITTED) with one of our boy's elastic waist blue overalls and a boy's fast color knitted lisle polo shirt with blue and white stripes (What could be more practical around their ranch?). And she looks so cute that we get all excited about it!

An hour ago a letter came from Flagstaff, Ariz., for a bleached denim slack pant and a blouse for a 10-year-old girl. Their letter said they asked a party going through there by automobile where their girl bought the outfit she had on. Beautifully tailored by a real navy tailor, too! And how the boys do keep us busy trying to supply them in sizes from 2 to 16 with these bleached denim dungarees! Yesterday at least a dozen of these slacks and blouses were sold to ladies and girls for their outing trips. They certainly do fit! Girls and women are buying these boys' and men's polo shirts, sweaters, wool jackets, leather jackets even more than the men folks themselves!
And plenty of fine lisle Phoenix sport sox for girls and ladies now. We feel sorry for people in other businesses; ours is so much fun.

EAT AND GROW SLIM

String bean and tomato salad
Chopped egg sandwich
Clear tea, lemon and saccharin allowed.
Calory total—305.

Freshly cooked or canned string beans are used for the salad. Left-over string beans are used in this instance. Line a deep salad plate with crisp lettuce hearts, slice the tomato over the lettuce and strew the beans over the tomato. Dress liberally with mineral oil mayonnaise. For the sandwich cut two very thin slices of whole wheat bread (1 of the ready-sliced breads may be slit in two easily.) Spread the bread with diet mayonnaise, hard-boil and mash an egg, seasoning it with salt, pepper and an extra teaspoonful of mayonnaise.

You can't beat a good omelette for emergency use. One of the sum'shus ones is cheese omelette, tangy tasting and nice'n' brown on the bottom.

For each person served allow 1 1/2 eggs (mediums). Beat the eggs to a thick froth, then add 1 tablespoonful of cold water for each egg, and a dash of salt and pepper. Have ready for 6 eggs, 1 cup grated sharp cheese. On the fire have two small frying pans, buttered and piping hot. Estimate the amount and take out what you think will make an individual omelette. Pour the egg into the hot pan and as it cooks strew a handful of grated cheese over the top. Now, take your knife and cut the cheese down through the cooking egg, letting soft egg and cheese flow onto the hot pan. Keep the pan well shaken and when softly done, fold over and put on a hot service plate. Garnish with slices of tomato and serve with hot corn muffins and jam.

TODAY'S RECIPE

Macaroni Luncheon Salad
1 cup uncooked cut macaroni or
2 cups cooked macaroni
4 hard boiled eggs
3 stuffed olives, cut fine
1 large sour pickle, diced
2 canned pimientoes, chopped
1 tsp. minced onion
1 cup finely sliced celery
Mayonnaise
Lettuce and sliced tomato

Flake apart the cooked macaroni, if hot, rinse in cold water to blanch, then drain. Chop the egg whites fine, and mash the yolks, mixing them with the macaroni. Add the chopped olives, pickle, celery, pimientoes and onion. Toss these ingredients with two forks and dress lightly with a little mayonnaise.

Line each salad plate with choice lettuce leaves and put one very large or two medium slices of tomato on the lettuce, topping the tomato slices with a mound of macaroni salad. A spoonful of mayonnaise and a dash of paprika completes this excellent salad.

TELL DETAILS OF GUARD DASH TO STRIKE ZONE

ORANGE, July 27.—Details of the strike duty carived on at the San Francisco waterfront by members of Company I of the Orange National Guard, were related by Captain A. M. Wunderlich and First Lieut. H. E. Chambers at the regular dinner meeting of the Orange Rotary club, held Thursday noon in the American Legion clubhouse.

Wunderlich stated that the recent strike in San Francisco was the handwriting upon the wall, warning the American people, and that if they don't wake up and do something about the red menace there will be serious internal trouble soon. He related that the experience gained by the guardsmen during duty in the strike zone provided fine training for the men and put confidence in the leaders that the men are capable of coping with all emergencies.

The guardsmen were in annual camp at San Luis Obispo when the order came to prepare for the dash to San Francisco and all preparations were compleaed within three hours. On the journey to the bay city, all lights in the train were turned out so no advance warning of the troops' arrival could be given.

After arrival of the entire guard personnel in San Francisco, there were no more riots, Wunderlich said, and the Orange guardsmen's duty was patrolling the highways in trucks to see that order was maintained. The spirit of the Orange members was inspiring, the captain said, and many of them seemed disappointed they dod not get to see more active duty.

Carl Glasbrenner was welcomed into the club as a new member. The meeting was in charge of C. H. Robinson, while Dr. Leon Patrick served as program chairman for the day.

THE WEEKLY PANTRY SHELF

DARLING FOOL

by MABEL McELLIOTT

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Monnie O'Dare, 20 and beautiful, is unhappy because Dan Cardigan who processes to be in love with her is influenced by his snobbish family. Charles Eustace, handsome newcomer to Belvedere, pays Monnie marked attention. He helps her with family difficulties and when Kay, her younger sister, tries to run off with a traveling salesman, he and Monnie bring her back without scandal.

Sandra Lawrence, one-time friend of Monnie's, tries to win Dan away from her. Sandra's maid, Hetty, thinks Sandra is trying to vamp James, the chauffeur, and is jealous. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XVI

Monnie heard Kay's voice and looked up. It was Sunday morning—11 o'clock, to be exact—and Monnie was enjoying the sweet freedom of her "day off," celebrating it by the weekly washing of her burnished bronze hair. Sitting out under the apple tree in a shabby old basket chair, looking extraordinarily childish in the white smock she wore, she answered her younger sister.

"Yes? What is it?"

A new Kay, since the adventure. A curiously silent, obedient, almost pathetically-anxious-to-please Kay, Monnie reflected. It had been lucky—it had been really miraculous—that no one else had learned of Kay's brief flight with Chester Bigelow, from which Charles Eustace and Monnie had providentially rescued her.

"Monnie, I want to do something!" Kay's voice, her expression were tragic. Her sea blue eyes, long lashed, shadowed faintly with mauve, stared straight ahead. "I've got to find something. I—I'll go crazy if I don't."

Monnie said mildly, "But there aren't any jobs for you in Belvedere—"

"I know," Kay interrupted. "That's exactly what I mean. If I could get away—to Chicago. Or New York—"

Her voice fell on the name. The magic name of The City. Kay, staring through apple-branches at the sky, was seeing, instead, the high minarets and towers publicized by the picture postcards—the famous "skyline." She was seeing the Empire State building and the Chrysler tower, the winking lights of Times Square.

"There'd be a chance for me there," Kay stated eagerly. "I could make something of myself—be somebody. Get some place."

Monnie sighed. They had gone over this ground before. She sympathized, wholly and utterly, but what could she do about it?

"You're too young to be on your own," she said with gentleness. "Even if we had the money to stake you for a while—which we haven't—you're far too young to go off that way by yourself. Mother would never hear of it."

"Girls not one bit older than I am," said Kay with fervor, "are earning scads of money in the movies."

"Oh, the movies, of course," said Monnie, dismissing them.

"Well?" Kay seemed to think she had made a case.

"Yes, but for the half dozen who are successful," argued the older sister, "aren't there hundreds who starve? Turn on the gas—all kinds of things. You read about it every day."

"I," said Kay magnificently, "would be successful."

Monnie gave her a speculative look. "You might," she said slowly. "And then again you might not. It's not being pretty and talented alone that puts you over. I read just the other day that a good camera man could make an actress and an unfriendly one ruin her chances. There are tricks — why, some of the most successful ones are not a bit pretty if you meet them face to face! Don't you remember Lilias Martingale, the girl I told you I met at Sandra's last winter? She was plain, really. Angular—and her skin was awful. Yet Sandra said she got a screen test that was wonderful. And she's getting along very well. I saw her picture outside the Cameo the other day when I came home."

"I forgot you'd met her," said Kay interested. "Was she really ugly?"

"Not ugly—but, well, plain in a distinguished kind of way. She," remembered Monnie, "was the girl Sandra met in Florence. From an old Boston family, I think."

Kay frowned. "Sandra, by the way, is throwing a big party tomorrow night. Having people from the city and the usual snooty crowd here. Wonder she wouldn't invite you! You used to be awfully clubby."

Monnie threw the bright veil of hair over her eyes. "Don't be silly," she said with affected lightness. "You wouldn't expect me to be asked to every party Sandra gave."

"She might have done it this time anyway," Kay went on, stubbornly loyal. "I know her. What she wants is to get Dan Cardigan all to herself. She worked hard on that job. She deserves him. All I hope is," prattled Kay, turning the knife in her listener's heart with blissful unconsciousness, "is that she gets Mamma Cardigan with him! They'd be a fine pair. Both bosses. Neither one will give an inch."

"What makes you think," asked Monnie in a muffled voice, "that she's going to 'get' Dan, as you so elegantly put it?"

* * *

"Well, I'll tell you," began Kay confidentially. "Mind you, Monnie, I wouldn't be talking this way if I weren't certain you'd got over Dan—and a mighty good thing that is, too," she interpolated. "Ever since that night you turned him down when he asked for a date I've been awfully glad. I was afraid," said Kay with sisterly candor, "you might be turning out to be the sort of dumb bunny who cries with joy when a boy shows her any attention. And that, with your looks, would be dumb!"

"Thanks." Monnie was brushing her hair now. It did not matter if her face had crimsoned.

"What I say," cried Kay warming to her subject, "is let Sandra have him, and good riddance! Charles Eustace is a better bet any way you look at it."

"You're not insinuating," said Monnie, between tears and laughter, "that Charles is in love with me? Because I never heard such nonsense in my life."

Kay whistled like a boy. "Maybe not yet, but all you have to do is lift a finger," she advised.

"That's absurd. If there's anyone he's interested in that way, it's you. He's always talking about your looks and your liveliness—"

Kay giggled. "Charles is? That's good." She seemed vastly amused.

"You talk as if he were Methuselah," said Monnie, nettled at the reception her bit of news received. "He's not yet 30."

"That's right, stick up for him," Kay told her. "He's O. K. I'm think he's swell. But not for me. He's just not the—not the type. Even if he is a cross between Ronald Colman and Gary Cooper."

"He's been everywhere, seen everything, knows everyone," Monnie said quickly, glad the talk had shifted from Dan to less dangerous ground.

"And he's very, very rich," Kay added shrewdly. "Mr. Briggs was saying only the other day—when I was there at dinner — that his mother inherited scads from old Mr. Waterman and that his father was an eastern millionaire."

"Not a bit spoiled though," Monnie reflected, pretending to be rapt in her subject, although, all the time, the thought of Dan was hammering at the back of her mind. So she was supposed to have relinquished him to Sandra, was she? Her fighting blood was stirred.

"What did you say?" She had been thinking of other things, her thoughts worlds away, but Kay was prattling on.

"I said she might have invited you, anyway." Kay was on the subject of the party again. Monnie frowned.

"I couldn't have gone," she said obliquely.

"Why not?"

"I have another engagement." She smiled at her sister's mystification.

"Monnie! Not a new beau!"

"Wait and see."

A little later, pressing the deep, crisp waves into her still damp hair, frowning intently at her reflection in the mirror, she said to herself that Dan Cardigan should not go to Sandra's party to be flaunted as her prize possession.

There were things Sandra Lawrence had to learn. One of them was that she was not nearly so subtle as she thought herself. The other was that Dan Cardigan was not hers for the snapping of a finger.

She, Monnie O'Dare, knew better than that.

"You seem in good spirits," her mother said to her at the luncheon table.

"I am!" Monnie's bronze hair, capping her small head like a molded casque of metal, seemed fairly to crackle with vitality. Her eyes sparkled.

She would show Sandra Lawrence that she was a foe worthy of respect!

ALL-BRAN MADE HIM REGULAR AS CLOCK

Delicious Cereal Corrected His Constipation

We quote from his voluntary and enthusiastic letter: "After reading your advertisement, I decided to use ALL-BRAN. I had been taking pills right along. But now I don't have to take pills.

"I take ALL-BRAN every morning, and am as regular as the clock. It has done me a lot of good."—Stephen Higgins, 51 S. Nein St., South Norwalk, Conn.

Common constipation frequently causes headaches, loss of appetite and energy. Yet this condition can be overcome, usually, by eating Kellogg's ALL-BRAN.

Tests show this delicious cereal provides "bulk" and vitamin B to aid elimination. ALL-BRAN is also rich in iron for the blood.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that in leafy vegetables. Inside the body, it forms a soft mass. Gently this clears out the intestinal wastes.

Isn't this safer than taking harmful patent medicines? Two tablespoonfuls daily are usually sufficient. Chronic cases, with each meal. If seriously ill, see your doctor. ALL-BRAN makes no claim to be a "cure-all."

Enjoy ALL-BRAN as a cereal with milk or cream. Use it also in making fluffy muffins and breads, etc. Get the red-and-green package at your grocer's. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

way, don't I?" responded Tom heartily. "I'll say I do. If it wasn't for you, where would me and my boys be?" Soppy nodded. "I guess that's right, Tom. Some of the boys, anyway, would be in jail, most likely."

"We've got to get something on this guy, Burke, and The Register, though," Soppy continued anxiously. "If we don't, I won't be on hand to help you and the boys after New Year's, old boy, old boy. And then good-bye tango and slot machines, eh, Tom?"

* * *

"Leave it to me, pal," said Tom. "I'm pretty good at the tango myself. Watch the song and dance I do here today for the reporters, er, I mea nthe jury."

* * *

"But when do I get to make my speech, Tom." Soppy wanted to know. "Can I talk to the jury, too?" Tom considered a moment. "No, I don't think we'd better make it quite that raw. But we can cut this trial out any time we feel like it and go over to the chamber of commerce. You can talk there at dinner. We arranged it especially for this. The trial don't matter. We don't give a whoop about this poor fool Communist, anyway. It's The Register we're after."

* * *

That was about all of it just then. But I happened to leave the courtroom just behind them, after it was all over. Soppy was looking dejected.

"We slipped up again, Tom. That damn Communist didn't say anything that would hook him up with Burke. I told you to look out. I've been trying for two years to put something over on him. Once I thought we had it but found we had a phony witness trying to stick him on a criminal offense. It backfired in my face, and they showed the witness was perjuring himself, if two other honest witnesses were telling the truth.

* * *

"Oh, well, we'll get The Register yet," Tom growled. "We'll get it yet," affirmed Soppy, and they shook hands on it. "Meanwhile, Tom, remember that anything I can do for you and your boys may be considered the same as done." "Okeh," says Tom.

News Behind the News

there's cream to be had and New York hates to see it all poured into foreign pitchers.

UPSET

Tammany's old guard is highly indignant at the proposal to indorse Fusionist McGoldrick for New York City Comptroller. They plan to force the nomination of Frank Prial whether the Farley-Dooling-Al Smith new guard likes it or no. It's their last chance to prove they still amount to something and they'll put everything on the ball.

If Dooling et al. refuse to name Prial—which is probable—they intend to back him in the Democratic primaries and expect to win. New York Republicans wish them luck. Such a development would upset Farley's carefully balanced applecart for fair.

SIDELIGHTS

The Republican old guard would like to draft Congressman Jim Wadsworth for Governor to ditch Kingsland Macy. The hitch is that Wadsworth—unlike Barkis——isn't willin'. . . . Dooling has a minor worry—Tammany is flat broke.

MILLION-DOLLAR GOLD STRIKE!

—Right Here in Orange County—

Most every home in Orange County has from ten to fifty dollars' worth of never-worn jewelry, out-of-date jewelry, watches, dental work, etc. Turn this into cash. Just a few days ago we paid a lady from Tustin $9.00 for a small watch case. You, too, can turn your old jewelry into cash at our store, AT HIGHEST PRICES!

We buy hundreds of dollars' worth of gold, turning same over the U. S. Government Mint, at a small profit to us. We also hold a license to buy newly mined gold.

Our place of business is located at 105 West Third Street. A number of our customers have returned to us the second and third time to sell their gold, because they were so well satisfied with the price they received. So bring us your old gold, and we will test and weigh for appraisal before your own eyes. Gold prices are high now and it is good business to take advantage of this FACT!

DO IT NOW! Go to the old dresser drawers and sort out that old gold jewelry . . . bring it to us and receive cash—

NRA MEMBER U.S. WE DO OUR PART

REPUBLICAN PARTY ALIGNMENTS FAST CHANGING

The political alignments inside the Republican party are fast changing.

The old political "machine," with all of its protection for special privilege, is organized behind the man, who, genial and amiable, is in no danger of starting a rebellion at any point. He is tried and true.

You can wrap the reins around the whipstock and he will take you home. He stands without hitching. And liberals, more or less organized, and a lot of the straight-laced prohibitionists are whooping it up for this candidate with the same oracular joviality.

Governor Young, who made a good governor, seems to be creating no excitement and no challenge. Probably the most experienced business man in the group, he hasn't seemed to sense the urge of the present social conditions in the state, either that, or his devotion to figures and business is so great that he seems unable to express it, and some of his political alliances are far from reassuring.

Mr. Quinn seems to have caught a vision of the situation and is emphasizing a program. There is a great deal of reason why Mr. Quinn will receive fine support in various sections of the state.

The one man, however, on the Republican ticket who seems to be attracting growing attention is Raymond Haight. Raymond Haight is a man of vision and of promise.

He served as corporation commissioner, and the work he did in cleaning up certain bad messes, stands out as an unusual public service. Mr. Haight is not a politician, in the ordinary sense of the term. He has made a study of public questions.

His attitude upon them is that of a statesman. He will be a candidate finally in the run-off.

He sees the situation in California from the standpoint of the deficit, of the taxpayer, of the unemployed, of the business man, as it is.

We are rather inclined to believe that as the days go on between now and the primaries, there will tend to come about a trek toward the candidacy of Mr. Haight.

He is the one man in the state for whom men are organizing, aside from the politicians, aside from those who are looking for power and position, besides Sinclair. He is the one man who seems to have created a challenge in the young men of the state, and with the Christian leadership of the state, who is running on the Republican ticket.

Our suggestion is to watch Raymond Haight. He will either be nominated on the Republican ticket and elected by the combination of the Republican votes and the Progressive and Commonwealth party, or he is pretty likely to be the factor which will determine who will be governor of California.

THE MAN WITH A PLACE

We wonder if President Roosevelt's trip to Honolulu may not have been, in part, to avoid political entanglements all over the country back home.

He is to return, we understand, on the 10th of August. That is, then is when he will land on the Pacific Coast. It will only be slightly over two weeks before the primaries are being held pretty much all over the union.

There will be such a volume of administrative work pressing for his decision and conclusion, that some of the politicians, urging for a personal word, can find no fault that they are not able at that time to lay the whole situation completely before him. And Mr. Roosevelt will avoid making enemies of the group whom he might not favor.

Mr. Roosevelt's political birthday did not occur recently. In fact, politically, he seems to be older than his own life. He knows that any one or any institution that must depend upon the votes of the people, cannot afford to divide it or his followers, in the preliminary skirmish.

There are lots of amateurs who do not understand that. There are some men running for all kinds of offices this year who are searching their very souls for expressive English to tell how much they are opposed to this man, that man, or some plan. One is everlastingly against Merriam, another against Creel, another against Wardell, another is against Sinclair.

But the truth is that the people are not looking for the men who are "agin", but for the man with the program. That is why they are for Roosevelt.

Roosevelt knows it, and he doesn't propose to be ruined by getting in the cross-fire of the small skirmishes. He is wise because the only hope of putting his program over is by the support of all the factions.

ALBINO SNAKE FOUND

Sober scientists of Wooster College, Ohio, were confronted with a pink snake the other day. The strange reptile which measured about three and a half feet long, was captured in Holmes County, Ohio, by three workers on the Federal corn-hog staff.

Some of us stupid folks might have thought that the snake was one that had just shed its skin for it is reasonable to suppose that the fresh newly exposed skin is a delicate thing, pink and white. But we don't know anything about it. That's one of the reasons we should honor the professors. They can set us right on many matters. This isn't their busy season so they went into the nature of the snake quite thoroughly and they decided that the curious snake is an albino specimen of the pilot black snake.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA SHOWS "HOW"

They just can't get ahead of Southern California!

In almost every walk of life, in every endeavor of personality, in the sports field, in music, art and other cultural developments, Southern California boasts her achievements.

There is no need to alibi for our boasting, for we can "tell the world" we have the "stuff." If they do not think so, just let them step up and find out.

In the sports field in particular, this spring it seemed as though almost every champion came from California, and a goodly majority of them from Southern California. University of Southern California furnished the tennis singles champ; California the winning crew at Poughkeepsie; Stanford's track team won the two major track meets; Olin Dutra scored in the United States open golf championship, and there were other victories too numerous to mention.

It seems as though the other sections of the country have been leading Southern California in one field—that of heat marks. But yesterday the affront stood no longer, for some longstanding heat records in Southern California were broken, and we had a heat wave also. No longer will the Middle West wave its banner triumphant, for it has fallen. Viva Southern California!

And not to be outdone, Southern California offers relief from this heat wave. Not the least of this remedy is found on Orange county's coast line, than which there is none finer. Truly it is thickly populated these days, and well it deserves to be. When more and better heat waves are developed, remember the coast of Orange county from Seal Beach to San Clemente!

Even with the hot weather and the larger numbers of residents who spend the latter years of their lives here, we fortunately do not have the death toll which they have in other sections of the country.

OPTIMISM, PESSIMISM AND JOY

A writer in one of the august magazines says that in countries where people have a pessimistic outlook they enjoy a happiness which people highly optimistic toward the future do not enjoy. Where people have little to hope for, where none of them are so foolish as to hope to be rich and own automobiles and even in other countries where there are millions of people always a little hungry the people find a kind of joy in simple little events of everyday life. Being denied exalted ambitions they have pleasure with the little things which can bring happiness.

There is something in the argument. Nora Walln in an article, "Notes from a Flower Diary," in the July Atlantic gives several instances of this outlook. Each one is connected with the Oriental's love for and his joy in flowers. In a country where the people hold high hopes for the future they are so busy planning and worrying for the future that they don't enjoy the present. When that glorious future never comes, one has lost the very real enjoyment which is to be found in each day. It is one thing to build for the future but another thing, and not so good a thing, to be obsessed by it.

Tlachtli—It's A Game!

Christian Science Monitor

It is not clear from the accounts whether the old game of the Aztecs, Mayas, or Mixtecs, which is to be revived in modern Mexico, is as hard to play as its name is hard to pronounce—tlachtli. This ancient game, played, apparently, for both secular and religious purposes, was, judging from the many courts which have been discovered by archaeologists, a popular sport in pre-Columbian Middle America. Emperors played it and brilliant tournaments were held. The best players evidently enjoyed some of the hero worship bestowed on the modern giants of athletic prowess. And, something which moderns might emulate, the game was used as a substitute for war. Monarchs, rather than fight, played the game with each other to settle a point or an argument.

The decision of the Mexican Republic to revive and restore this game and to adopt it officially is an interesting incident in the Indianistic movement of Mexico. Many of the ancient institutions and customs of old Mexico have been preserved without alteration throughout the four centuries of Spanish and Europeanized rule. They were, however, mainly those which did not conflict with the ideas and purposes of the exploiting foreigners. But, unfortunately, many of those which might have contributed to the happiness of the Indian were forced into disuse.

Ever since the Revolution the modern leaders of Mexico have acted on the assumption that the lost civilizations of the Indians had customs and institutions which should be restored not merely because of their inherent worth but because the Indians of their land had a right to them and would be happiest only when many of the traditions, of which the rocks and ruins about them speak so eloquently, came to life again. The Mexican liberals differ from many others in this respect. They do not condemn an institution merely because it is old. In restoring not only institutions but the conditions in which the Indians can express themselves most fully, modern Mexico is on the way to enrich not only herself and her Indians but the world with their arts—and their amusements.

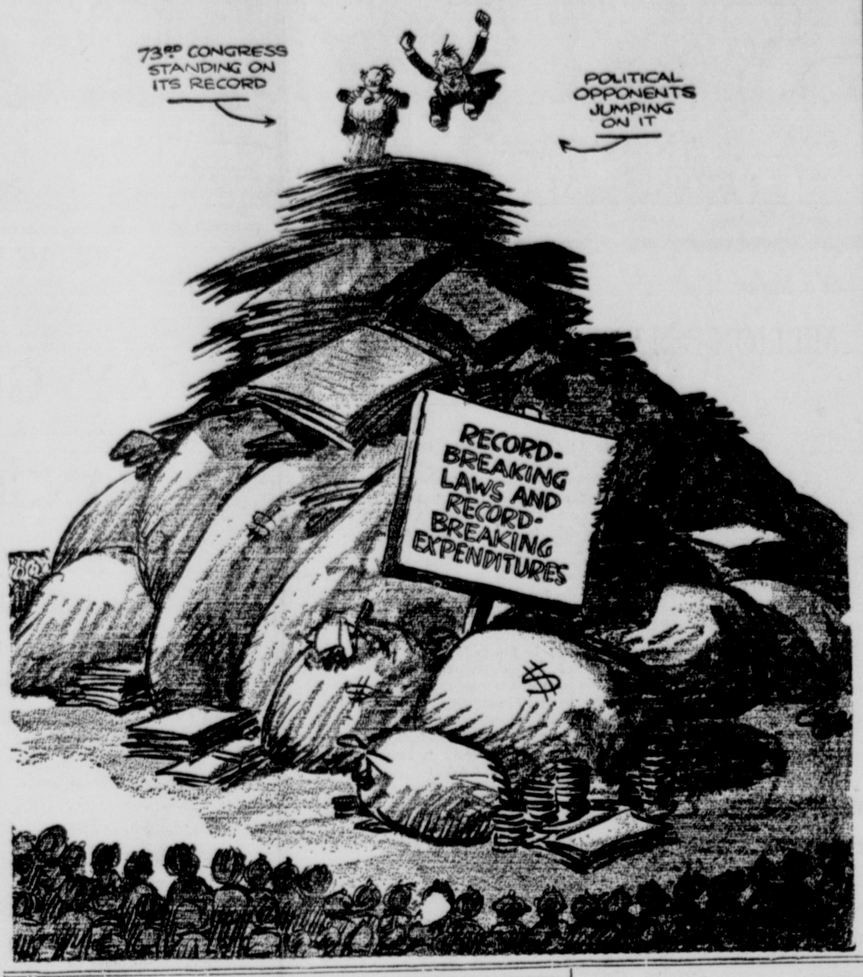

Thank The Collectors

Oakland Tribune

At the end of this year, present estimates holding, we may thank the stamp collectors of the nation for contributing $1,800,000 to the Federal income.

It had been assumed that the Postmaster General was not issuing the many special stamps, just for fun, or even to give artists the chance to display their wares. He knows that special stamps are bought in huge quantities by the collectors, tucked away in collections and never used, and that this portion of the issue represents almost a clear profit. So there came the Byrd issue, the Maryland Tercentenary stamp, and the Mother's Day one. The first of the National Parks series has been put out and also the Wisconsin Tercentenary. There will be a Presidential series.

More Truth Than Poetry

By James J. Montague

ART FOR ART'S SAKE

We are growing a trifle uneasy,
For our costly old dining room chairs
Seem destined some day
To crumble away
Beyond any hope of repairs.
The Sheraton high-boy is wabbly,
But we've stuck it together with glue
And a few strands of rope
Which leads us to hope
That perhaps it may possibly do.

Our bedstead is really a jewel—
A genuine old Duncan Phyfe—
But it swings to and fro
When the gentlest winds blow
And but feebly is clinging to life.
The ancient divan in the parlor—
Our most highly prized work of art,
An admitted antique—
Is beginning to squeak,
And we fear it is falling apart.

Through many long years we've collected
Good things that were hard to obtain.
But we always have found
They were frail and unsound
And shortly cracked under the strain.
So we're going to dispose of these relics
And buy stuff at a furniture store;
It may not be art
But we're plumb sick at heart
Of having to sleep on the floor.

FRED FEERNOT AS A SPY

Act 1

Scene, inside the enemies line.

Fred Feernot. Well, here I am on a dangerous mission and I'm not even hardly nerviss. I got to find out just exactly what time the enemy is going to charge us, because if we know that we can spoil their whole attack and take a buntch of prizzners of war and discourrage the whole enemy and then attack them ourselfs while they're feeling down harted. But I better be careful because about 20 of our spies have tried to find out already and not one has came back alive. I think I'll get behind these bushes till this sentry goes paesed.

Act 2

Scene, the same.

Sentry. Halt. Who goes there, frend or foe O, I didn't reckonize you, general, how are you

Generel. I's a darn site better than you'll be if you leave any spy find out what time we're going to attack. The enemy certeny seems curious to find out, ha ha.

Sentry. Ha ha.

Act 3

Scene, the same.

Sentry. Halt. Who goes there, frend or foe

Fred Feernot. Foe. I just wanted to ask you if you'd mind telling me as a special favor what time you're going to attack.

Sentry. Hands up you're my prizzner of war, you spy.

Fred Feernot. April Fool, I'm a frend! The generel made me put on this diskize to find out if you was a good sentry or not, and you certeny are, all rite. G, that's a hot one, now I can't remember myself just what time we're going to attack. Holey smokes I hope I don't start too soon and make the enemy sispicious. I remember now, 10 after 10.

Sentry. No, you darn fool, midnite. Do your want to spoil everything

Fred Feernot (disappearing rapidiy). I'll say I do.

The end.

In the Long Ago

From the Register Files 14 Years Ago Today

JULY 27, 1920

Mrs. Z. B. West jr. and little daughter Elizabeth, arrived from Palo Alto to spend the remainder of the summer with Mrs. West's parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Yarnell.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred L. Russell of Prosser ,Wash., left for Abyssinia after a short visit here. They had been honored on the previous night at a reception in the United Presbyterian church, under whose auspices they were to establish a new mission in Abyssinia.

"I'm kind of ashamed to put the neighbors to all this bother," declared Governor Calvin Coolidge of Massachusetts as he watched the building of a platform at Northampton where he was formally notified of his nomination as Republican vice presidential candidate.

Thoughts On Modern Life

BY GLENN FRANK

THE WEAK LIKE DICTATORSHIP

I approach with profound sympathy the instances in which, since the war, harassed peoples have chosen transient dictatorship in preference to the tragic anarchy of governments which, in the midst of panic disintegration and lacking the capacity to govern, let run unharnessed the wild horses of conflicting interests.

The intricate and interdependent life of a modern nation cannot tolerate non-government by stampede.

But this is something quite apart from the fashionable turning of tired radicals and impatient liberals to the alluring possibility of taking a shortcut to the triumph of their desires.

It is this latter, which has been so evident in the United States during the last few years, that presents a problem with definite and, in my judgment, dangerous implications for the American future.

The lure of dictatorship in a phase of unsettlement makes strange bedfellows. Since 1929 we have seen the most conservative business men and the most radical theorists alike flirt with the nation of dictatorial direction as a way out of our difficulties. That they differed about the nature of the dictatorship that would be most desirable does not change the similarity of impulse that has moved their minds.

When the fever of these days has subsided we shall see that this wistful admiration of the flourish of dictators was a delusion and that this insistent cry for action, without the much satirized discussion of democratic procedure, whether the criers be practical business men or theoretical liberals, was the cry, not of strong men, but of weaklings.

It is the business men who were blind when the economic tides were running high and the liberals who did not know what to do when they had a chance to govern who have lately surrendered to the lure of dictatorship.

Both, a bit ashamed of their record for leadership, are looking for a shortcut to action that will relieve them of the exacting demands of leadership.

Our Children

By Angelo Patri

A TIP-TOE

Standing on tip-toe and trying to reach something beyond one's range is about the most fatiguing thing one can do. The strain cannot be prolonged. Strength and courage fail and one sinks to his own level with a sigh of relief.

This is plain to us but we forget that it applies to mental reach as well as to the physical and we are guilty of making children stand on tip-toe in an effort to extend themselves beyond their power. We do it daily in every school and home in the land. "But try. You are not half trying," we say, when the child is worn out by his effort.

We do nŏt mean to be cruel. We cannot see the mental strain and suffering until the child cracks physically. This is usually shown by a burst of tears or temper or both and we make it an occasion for more advice, more injunctions to "try."

"When you sit at table tonight don't talk. Don't wiggle. Don't fiddle with your knife and fork. Let your napkin lie in your lap. Remember, don't make a sound until you are spoken to. Keep still as a mouse." Of course he cannot do that. He can stay still only for a few minutes because Nature has cvreated him as a creature of activity. He grows so tired he wishes he could fall off the chair. Then he spills his soup or tips his glass or speaks at the wrong time. Not because he was naughty but because he was tired of stretching to the adult standard of table manners.

"Mary Louise, what's getting into you? This is the third poor mark this month. You can get A's as easy as you can get D's. Let me have no more of this. Put whatever notions you have in your head right out now and get to work." So speaks the teacher of the A student who has failed to maintain her high standard.

As easy to get A's as D's. You know better than that. No student can get an A without effort. He might make one. A recitation by luck or intuition but he can't make an A record and sustain it for any length of time without downright hard work. That means he gets very tired and unless some outlet, some form of relief is offered him he begins to fall to a lower standard. Fatigue is like a drepressant poison to the mind. Instead of scolding the failing child try giving him a change, a rest from routine.

And then come conduct and manners. "Now why did you do that? Yawn right in the visitor's face and slouch down in your chair and behave as though you had no manners at all." The answer is simple. He behaved that way because he was tired out by the effort he had to make to reach the adult standard of manners and conduct. He had to be polite too long at a time.

The spirit needs a vacation now and then. It needs to find relief in some quiet place where "the wicked cease from troubling and the weary are at rest." In short don't expect too much for too prolonged a time, from children and youth. Give them time to rest from well doing and they will do better.

(Mr. Patri will give personal attention to inquiries from parents and school teachers on the care and development of children. Write him in care of this paper, inclosing a three-cent stamped, addressed envelope for reply.)
